Garnett 'Threat' Brings Warning By Crime Board

Protection Will Be Given Inquiry Witnesses, Randolph States.

Refused Snoopers, Says Phone Official

But C. & P. 'Cooperated in Every Other Way' With U. S. Attorney.

Every possible protection within the power of the House District Crime Committee will be accorded all witnesses appearing before it, Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, committee chairman, announced yesterday.

The declaration of the chairman was made after conferences of the committee and was aimed directly at the published statements of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett threatening Police Private James W. Peters with punitive action by the Police Trial Board for statements made by the policeman under oath before the committee last Monday.

Mr. Peters had testified under oath that Karl Kindleberger, assistant district attorney in charge at Police Court, had caused the arrest of Michael Edward Buckley, jr., and subsequently had refused to issue papers against Buckley when the prisoner, an attorney, had threatened to "expose" Mr. Kindleberger. Mr. Garnett said the statement of Peters was wholly false and "seems sufficient cause for action against him by the police board."

Randolph Gives Warning.

"In order to obviate any possible misapprehension," Representative Randolph said at the beginning of the hearings yesterday, "I feel impelled to state on behalf of the committee that all witnesses appearing before it will be accorded every possible protection within the power of the committee."

The threat of the United States attorney had caused concern among members of the police department who had been before the committee and others who had been summoned to conferences with committee members and John R. Fitzpatrick, committee counsel, with a view to possible summons later. Some police are understood to have asked to be excused from appearing. Their appearance, they pleaded, would only mean trouble for themselves with no possibility of recompense. The committee declaration by Representative Randolph was designed to set such fears at rest and give warning to officials the committee would resent efforts to punish frank witnesses summoned by the committee.

"The witness chair of this committee is not going to be a 'hot squat' for any policeman or other witness who has nothing more to fear than giving a truthful account," a member of the committee said informally. "This does not mean that any nefarious person may find sanctuary in testimony about his nefariousness before the committee. The committee does not intend to afford immunity to any witness. We are, however, determined to give to witnesses protection against the vengeance of

Church Aid, 70, Killed by Auto

Miss S. Edith Stevenson 17th Victim of Year; Driver Held.

A 70-year-old church worker of Woodstock, N. Y., who had come here for her health, was killed in an automobile accident last night as she was crossing Wisconsin avenue at Macomb street northwest.

Physicians at Georgetown Hospital reported the victim, Miss S. Edith Stevenson, who was staying at Alban Towers, 3700 Massachusetts avenue northwest, died instantly.

Miss Stevenson was the year's seventeenth traffic victim in Washington. With her death, February's toll amounted to ten.

Leroy Bornman, 22, of Seneca, Md., said to have driven the automobile which struck Miss Stevenson, was held in custody of police pending action by a coroner's jury.

Miss Stevenson came to Washington two months ago after a Woodstock physician advised her to seek a warmer climate. A woman of independent means, she interested herself in church work at St. Alban's Episcopal Church here.

A card in her pockets asked that relatives in Indianapolis, Ind., be notified in case of accident. She had no relatives in Washington.

Killed by Auto Gas

MRS. H. BRADLEY DAVIDSON, Jr.

Statler Heiress Victim of Gas; Held Accident

Inquest at Pinehurst Into Death of Mrs. Davidson Continues Today.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 27.—Unable to sleep after returning from a charity ball that had lasted well into the morning, 22-year-old Mrs. H. Bradley Davidson, jr., of Washington, donned her sports clothes early today, went to the garage behind the winter home of the Davidsons at Edgewood, and there, at the steering wheel of her automobile, she met her death—by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Before a coroner's jury investigating the death at a secret session tonight, Dr. M. W. Marr was reported to have testified that he believes the death was accidental, resulting from suffocation by fumes that had collected behind a garage door that the wind might have blown shut.

Later, Coroner D. Carl Fry, of Moore County, said a certificate of accidental death probably would be issued. The inquest will be continued tomorrow, at the telephoned request of a brother of Mrs. Davidson, from Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Davidson, the former Elva Statler, adopted daughter of the late E. M. Statler, American hotel magnate, had married Davidson, son of a prominent Washington realtor, here less than two months ago—January 3.

Her husband was one of the first witnesses called by U. P. Kelly, special coroner acting in the absence of Dr. Fry, as the hearing began at 3:30 p. m. today.

Davidson said he and his wife, together with two friends staying with them at the Davidson home, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Champaigne, of New York, had gone to the Pinehurst Country Club charity ball last night. They returned home about 3 a. m. today. Davidson said he went to his room and Mrs. Davidson to hers.

Davidson related that his wife was in the habit, when she found it difficult to sleep, of getting out her car and going for an early morning ride. He said that that is what she probably started out to do this morning.

Picking up the story, the Davidson butler said he had gone to the garage at 8 a. m. today. He found

English Ship And 28 Men Lost in Gale

Other Craft in Distress Finally Make Port or Receive Aid.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 27.—A roaring gale that crippled many ships in the Atlantic tonight apparently had sent the 3,259-ton British freighter Blairgowie, with her crew of 28, to the bottom.

As other battered vessels crept into port or fought to ride out the storm's fury, three ships which spent nearly ten hours searcing for the Blairgowie reported they could find no trace of her.

A terse message from Commander Oscar Scharf of the S. S. Europa said: "We searched all night in company with the S. S. American Banker and the S. S. Blommersdyk without success.

At 11 a. m. G. M. T. (6 a. m. Eastern standard time) the three rescuing ships discontinued their search as hopeless and proceeded for [illegible]ons.

Search for Ship Fruitless.

The last wireless from the English freighter, which gave her position as 48:20 north and 27:1 west, about 760 miles due west of Brest, France, and 1,000 miles east of Newfoundland, said her steering gear had been carried away and her hold was filling with water. Describing her condition as hopeless, the Blairgowie asked immediate assistance.

The Europa, only 60 miles away when the S O S flashed out, quickly reached the distressed ship's approximate position, to be joined later by the American steamer American Banker and The Netherlands freighter Bloommersdyk.

After the fruitless search, the Europa reported: "It is assumed that it (the Blairgowie) went down soon after (the S O S) with the entire crew."

(A dispatch from Glasgow said Capt. H. A. Preston, the Blairgowie's master, all the vessel's mates and engineers and part of the crew, including one youthful apprentice who was making his first sea voyage, were from Glasgow.)

Other Vessels Reach Port.

Anxiety concerning the Almanzora of Lisbon was allayed when the vessel reached port 16 hours late, delayed by the storm; the Caterina Madre reached St. Nazaire under tow; the damaged Adamantios J. Pithis radioed that she was proceeding cautiously toward her destination, and the San Mateo took the Johanne in tow for Corunna.

Other vessels reported difficulties were the Stranna, out of Bilbao for Glasgow, which suffered damage to her rudder and was struggling to reach port; the Bensyr, which was towed into Swansea Harbor with her steering gear damaged, and the Norwegian Ala which broke her anchor and went ashore, to be refloated later, in Swansea Harbor.

The crew of the trawler El Dorado was rescued after their ship went ashore near Aberdeen early today.

MacDonald to Quit 'When Necessary'

At Helm by Colleagues' Consent, Critics Told.

By the Associated Press.

Doncaster, Yorkshire, England, Feb. 27.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, in an address here tonight, said he will resign if and when he feels the situation warrants it.

Replying to critics of himself and policies of the national government, MacDonald also said he would leave office whenever his colleagues in the cabinet wish it.

"So far as I am concerned," the prime minister said, "I hold the position I do at the wish of my colleagues.

"When the moment comes that they find my services too dearly bought, or when the moment comes when I myself for one reason or another — and unfortunately there are many—am no longer satisfied that I can pull my full weight in the boat, I shall require nobody's advice to enable me to make up my mind what my duty is."

Sure Victory In Work Seen By Roosevelt

Confident Congress Will Redeem Itself, Says Chief Executive.

Compromise Is Sought as President Leaves Hyde Park Home.

By Leon Dure, Jr.
A Staff Correspondent.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27.—President Roosevelt left for the Capital late tonight, outwardly confident that Congress will yet redeem itself, in his eyes, for its handling of the $4,880,000,000 works bill and the slow progress of the social security program.

This was the impression he imparted at a press conference, during which he discoursed freely on many subjects, but would give no inkling of what steps he has in mind to break the impasse on the works bill and to speed up the social legislation.

Meanwhile, in Washington, leaders of the two factions in the prevailing wage fight over the works bill were seeking a compromise that would permit passage of the measure. Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, led the efforts to settle the fight over prevailing wages.

If the President has any fear his two big measures have bogged in Congress, he showed no signs of it. Rather, those present were given to feel he is hopeful both bills will be enacted in a form acceptable to the Administration.

Specifically, Mr. Roosevelt was asked if he is considering a radio appeal to the Nation to back him in his stand against the Senate on "prevailing wages," or if he plans a conference with congressional leaders. With a smile, he responded in the negative.

Further questioning brought the rather surprising statement that he has talked to only one person in Washington since he left last Saturday, and that person was in the State Department. This does not mean, however, that he has not been in constant touch with the Capital through intermediaries.

The interview was held in the President's cubby-hole office in a wing of his mother's Hyde Park estate. Clad in a rough, brown suit, Mr. Roosevelt smoked cigarettes and responded readily to inquiries, though both questions and answers were restricted somewhat by his rule against commenting on pending legislation.

Looks to Special Sessions.

It was indicated that the Administration's desire for social security legislation at this session of Congress is not altered by the fact that many of the State Legislatures will be adjourning in the next few weeks. While State laws are essential to the whole program, he feels special sessions of legislatures can serve the same purpose.

Because of the immensity of the President's works proposal, speculation on his struggle with the Senate over "prevailing wages"—as opposed to subsistence wages—has overshadowed all other developments of his five-day absence from the Capital. He will arrive in Washington tomorrow morning, prepared to resume the New Deal command, but no one here was able to say just what the next move will be.

Most of his visit, the President said, has been devoted to clearing his desk of reports and correspondence. He also has found time to catch up on back numbers of magazines. He has finished his message to Congress on shipping and this document will go to Congress tomorrow, if he finds time, or the next day.

The President leaves his home with reluctance, he indicated, with a hint that he is returning to Wash-

Recovery Program Menaced As Section 7(a) and Coal Code Are Voided by Federal Courts

11 to 12 Pct. Rise Is Seen In Food Cost

Wallace States Prices for This Year Are Headed Upward.

The price of food will increase during the first six months of 1935 approximately 11 per cent over the average price during the last half of 1934, Secretary Wallace predicted yesterday.

Basing his statements on a study by Louis H. Bean, AAA economic adviser, Wallace added that the prices during the last half of this year probably would be 12 per cent over those for the last half of 1934.

The biggest item in this increase, Bean indicated, would be the price of meat, which he predicted would rise 22 per cent during the first six months of 1935 and 34 per cent during the last half, as compared with the last half of 1934.

Still Under 1930.

The next important item, he indicated, would be dairy products, which he said would increase 6 per cent during the first half of the year. He indicated other food products would remain stationary.

In spite of these increases, it was pointed out, the cost of living still would be under that of 1930. Bean indicated that in the general price index, food constitutes the lowest group.

Bean predicted that in the first half of 1935 the cost of living, including all necessities, would increas 3 or 4 per cent. He indicated there is a chance dairy products would cost less during the later part of the year.

These predictions did not take drought conditions or other natural causes of crop failure into consideration, Bean said. Responsibility for price increases was placed both on the drought last summer and on AAA crop reduction activities.

Rise in Recent Weeks.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the price of food increased 1.8 per cent during the two weeks ended February 12. The currnt index is 12.7 per cent higher than one year ago and is at the highest point since April 15, 1931, the report said.

The meat group showed the greatest advance, rising by 3.5 per cent, the report showed. All items in the group, except leg of lamb and pork chops, increased in price. The dairy-products group advanced 2.5 per cent, only fresh milk showing

Commons Asks Status Of Walker as Alien

London, Feb. 27 (AP).—The government will be asked to give the House of Commons the facts concerning the status of James J. Walker, former New York mayor, as an unregistered alien in England, it was announced tonight.

Valentine La T. McEntee, Labor member from Williamston, gave notice tonight that he was filing a question asking Sir John Gilmour, home secretary, to inform the Commons whether Walker has been registered as an alien since his arrival and whether the government proposes to take any action.

Victor in NRA Suit Congratulated

U. S. Loses as Weirton Case Ruling Upholds Company Unions.

Appeals Speeded By Government

Adverse Findings May End NRA Regulation of Industry.

By Felix Bruner.

The whole structure of the New Deal recovery program was seriously threatened yesterday by two court decisions, which, if upheld by the higher courts, will mean the end of NRA and the end of Government control over the relationship of capital and labor and over business generally.

The first decision was that of Federal Judge John P. Nields, of Delaware, who held, in the famous Weirton cases, that manufacturing is an intrastate function and as such is not subject to Government regulation.

The second decision, that of Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson, of Kentucky, enjoined enforcement of the bituminous coal code on the ground that mining is an intrastate function.

Injunction Granted.

Judge Dawson granted 35 western Kentucky coal operators an injunction against the code. He previously had held the recovery act, as applied to coal mining, unconstitutional, but the case was remanded by the Circuit Court of Appeals for finding of fact as to irreparable injury.

In his ruling yesterday he held that "when the Government unconstitutionally interferes with the right of a citizen to do business in his own way, that interference constitutes an injury to the property rights of the citizen."

The whole theory of the recovery program has been based on the assumption that manufacturing, mining, oil production and similar local enterprises are subject to Government regulation because they affect interstate commerce. The Constitution gives Congress the right to regulate interstate commerce, but does not define the term.

Voids Section 7(a).

Specifically, the Weirton decision gave the Weirton Steel Co. the right to conduct a company union and declared unconstitutional and void section 7(a) of the recovery act. That section gives labor the right to organize and to select its own organization and its own representatives for collective bargaining.

NRA officials were quick to point out that the decisions were binding only in the cases involved and that they did not lay down a definite rule of law, but they admitted that the psychological effect probably would be serious. The Department of Justice planned to rush appeal on the cases, but it was said that there probably would be no possibility of decision by the Supreme Court before next fall.

The Supreme Court, however, now has before it the Belcher case, involving the lumber code, which, according to Blackwell Smith, chief NRA counsel, "squarely presents the issues of interstate commerce." This case may be decided during the present term of court and this decision, NRA and Justice officials

Belgium, U. S. Slash Tariffs In Trade Pact

We Agree to Reduce Duties on Products Affecting $5,200,000 Imports.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Marking the first reciprocal trade pact with a European industrial nation, an agreement was effected yesterday between Belgium and the United States to lower tariffs and other barriers on a large variety of commerce.

The United States agreed to reduce duties on 47 products affecting $5,200,000 of imports from Belgium on the basis of 1933 figures. Products on which the American tariffs were cut a weighted average of about 24 per cent included cement, steel items, plate glass, glass sand, linen fabrics, certain woven fabrics, lace, photographic film and plates and hatter's fur.

Belgium agreed to reduce its duties on 22 products, 54 if sub-items are counted, a weighted average of more than 35 per cent, affecting slightly more than one-third of American exports to Belgium on the basis of 1933 figures. In addition it was agreed to freeze 12 Belgian duties, liberalize quotas on six products and suppress two luxury taxes.

The Belgian reductions were applied to automobiles, automotive parts, radios, radio parts, a long list of fruits and several cereals. Import quotas were greatly increased on lard and pork products and on women's silk hosiery and clothing.

Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, who signed the agreement on behalf of the United States in a simple ceremony in the diplomatic room at the State Department, subsequently hailed it as "a

2 Billion 'Sop' To HOLC Wins In Committee

House Body Hopes Scheme Will Forestall Battle for Greater Sum.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

As a sop to revolting Democrats, the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday decided to support a $2,000,000,000 expansion in HOLC funds.

Perhaps the outstanding result of this maneuver will be to knock much of the wind out of the sails of the outspoken congressional faction determined to increase this phase of Government spending from $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000.

Another important possibility is that the $2,000,000,000 figure will permit the loan corporation to accept additional applications from prospective borrowers. Deluged with thousands of requests for help from distressed home owners and unable to meet the demand with its original depression war chest of $3,200,000,000, the agency months ago ceased accepting new appeals.

Committee Decision.

A bill to increase the corporation's loan authority by only $1,500,000,000 was favorably reported last week by the committee. The strength of revolting Democrats who talk in terms of $5,000,000,000 has reached such proportions, however, that the committee has decided it would be better to grant an additional $500,000 than to see the ante raised much higher.

Committee leaders last night were undecided whether it would be wiser strategy to agree on $2,000,000,000 now or make that concession when the bill reaches the floor, which may be next week. The committee will

Price of Gold Reaches Record High in London

By the United Press.

London, Feb. 27.—Londoners rushed today to take advantage of a spurt in the price of gold to a record high of 143 shillings 11½ pence an ounce.

Bullion and jewelry dealers were crowded with people who had unearthed Victorian heirlooms, gold coins, trinkets and gold and silver plate which they wanted to dispose of at the higher prices.

Mellon Claimed Loss on Stock Sold Daughter's Holding Firm

He Actually Controlled Company, Sought to Evade Tax Payment Through Transaction, U. S. Charges; Secretary Tells of Organization.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 27.—Records showing the personal holding concern of Andrew W. Mellon's daughter bought stock in a transaction upon which he claimed a loss of $383,537.50 in his 1931 income tax report were introduced today before the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

The evidence was taken from the books of the concern, known as the Ascalot Co., and those of A. W. Mellon, by his confidential secretary, Howard M. Johnson.

The Government charges Ascalot actually was controlled by Mellon and that he used it and other family-owned companies at his convenience to dodge taxes. The Internal Revenue Bureau seeks $3,089,000 additional taxes, while Mellon is asking a $139,000 rebate on the $647,000 he paid in 1931.

Johnson testified that Ascalot was organized in 1930, with Mrs. Ailsa Mellon Bruce depositing securities valued at about $7,000,000 and later adding approximately that much more.

The funds were obtained from gifts made by her father, including a $1,000,000 wedding present of 10,000 shares of Aluminum Co. of America preferred stock, Johnson showed.

While tracing sales and purchases of Ascalot, F. R. Shearer, expert Government accountant who relieved Robert H. Jackson as cross-examiner, asked about the purchase of 500 shares of Commercial National Bank & Trust Co. of New York stock.

Johnson, the witness, said Mrs. Bruce borrowed $150,000 from her father on February 16, 1931, to buy the stock. Shearer showed that the check had been made out to David K. E. Bruce, Ailsa's husband, who was at the time chairman of the Ascalot board of directors.

He also got from the books evidence that Mellon's account showed the money was lent to Ascalot, but that Ascalot's books did not show record of the loan from Mellon until the next December.

Apparently trying by inference

Foreign Substance in Engine Forced Post Down on Desert

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 27.—A damaging "foreign substance" was reported by airplane experts tonight to have been found in the engine of Wiley Post's plane, which was forced down last week soon after he took off on an attempted flight to New York through the substratosphere.

A laboratory analysis is being made to determine the nature of the substance, said Palmer Nicholls, president of Pacific Airmotive Corporation, authorized service representative of the Pratt & Whitney Co., which made Post's engine.

"We found a foreign substance," Nicholls said, "in the intake manifold, the air cooler between the supercharger and engine, in the oil and oil screen. This substance apparently caused excessive wear on the pistons, cylinder walls and blower section."

A great loss of oil, which was attributed to a leak in the oil system at the time, forced the noted flier down Friday at Muroc Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert.

After the plane was brought back here, however, no leak was discovered. Yesterday, a thorough overhaul of the engine was started at the Pacific Airmotive plant and the foreign substance was discovered today.

'Pink Slips' Rouse Congress To a Survey on Tax Publicity

By the Associated Press.

The sudden storm stirred in Congress by the pink slips that epitomize publicity of income tax returns resulted yesterday in the initiation of a Senate-House survey of the sentiment in favor of changing the law.

The move to gauge feeling was agreed to by Democratic leaders in both branches. One in the House predicted privately that the survey would show an "overwhelming majority" favored changing the law.

Both the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committee chairmen appointed six-man subcommittees to get together to discuss the situation. Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the House committee, said the subcommittees would meet "soon."

The question of what to do and how to do it has been left entirely in the hands of Congress by the Administration.

Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee, said a number of his committeemen had expressed themselves as favoring a provision giving the executive branch of the Government the right to make the returns public if it chose.

There also was some talk about changing the law so as to make public only the returns on incomes over $100,000. But most members said that would be discriminatory.

Should the survey indicate a majority sentiment in favor of liberalizing the requirement, leaders have agreed tentatively to bring out a new bill after the House Ways and Means Committee disposes of the

Bus Employes Demand Right To Join Union

Million Highway Transport Workers Represented at Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

A demand that employes of highway carriers be assured the right to organize was put before congressional committees yesterday along with appeals from more than a score of business, shipping and carrier organizations for Interstate Commerce Commission regulation of highway carriers.

George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, placed before the House Commerce Committee amendments which he said would guarantee the bus and truck company employes the right to unionize. He said there were about a million bus and truck operators and that about 10 per cent were organized.

Vote for Regulation.

Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of the newly assembled transportation conference, told the House committee the conference had voted for regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of all forms of transportation. He said the conference had no serious fault to find with the bill before the committee for bus and track regulation.

The conference, composed of a group of the Nation's chief business, shipping and carrier organizations, finished its discussions yesterday and adjourned subject to call of the chairman. It took no action on the method of reorganizing the Interstate Commission into an all-embracing commission, but voted to submit the proposal to the 15 separate organizations comprising the conference before attempting a decision. This will be done within the next few weeks so that views of the conference may be put before the congressional committees when the bill comes up.

Hours at Issue.

Frank McManamy, chairman of the legislative committee of the Interstate Commerce Commission, told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee it was in the public interest to regulate motor carriers. He stressed particularly the need for regulating the hours of labor of bus and truck operators.

Joseph B. Eastman, the transportation coordinator, voiced the view that the Interstate Commerce Commission should be broadened to cover all forms of transportation.

Wheeler told of the nine months' study of transportation problems hi; conference made during 1933 and 1934. He said it found very few points in the bill before the committee with which it disagreed.

C. E. Bockus, director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said his organization favored the general principles of the measure for regulating highway carriers.

Between You and Me

New Deal And The Hostile Courts; The Legal Red Light; Texans Behind Job Clamor.

By Raymond Clapper

THESE court decisions against the New Deal are more difficult to laugh off than the Republicans and Al Smith were. To demolish those political critics it was necessary only for the Administration to chortle and call them Tories.

At the first there was no concern over the danger the Administration program faced at the hands of the courts. When, a few weeks ago, the Supreme Court threw out the oil section of the recovery act, Mr. Roosevelt's poise was shaken no more than if Buzzie or Sistie had objected to going to bed when grandfather said to. He told the press that the Supreme Court had pointed out how the difficulty could be gotten around. Sure enough, the other day the Connally oil bill was rushed down and signed, putting the Federal Oil Administration back in control of hot oil shipments, just where it was before the court called a halt.

But the court trouble is not regarded with such breezy confidence now. The Administration had a close shave over the gold decision. It was saved from nobody knows what only because the court obligingly held that while the gold clause abrogation was unconstitutional there was nothing the buyer of a Government gold bond could do about it.

Now the lower courts are turning out anti-New Deal decisions faster than J. P. Morgan is selling art objects.

In Birmingham a Federal district court says that TVA can not go into the electric power business, thus jeopardizing the numerous vast power projects which were to have been paid for by sale of electricity.

In Wilmington another Federal court holds that Section 7(a) of NRA is unconstitutional because it seeks to regulate labor relations in a plant. This, the court holds, is not regulation of interstate commerce and therefore is outside the province of the Federal Government.

In Louisville another Federal judge holds the bituminous coal code unconstitutional on the ground that mining is not interstate commerce. The Supreme Court already has a lumber code case which involves the same point.

Courts have a way of switching on a red light to stop traffic. It is an American judicial custom. Critics of the practice say it was a usurpation of authority by Chief Justice John Marshall. However, the country usually has found a way around the courts when moved by sufficiently strong feeling. The first income tax law was thrown out. A constitutional amendment followed. The child labor law was held invalid and while the proposed amendment is fighting its way through the State Legislatures, NRA has struck at the employment of children through code control. The Supreme Court spoke its mind in the Dred Scott decision. The Civil War followed.

If the Supreme Court sets its foot down on key measures of the New Deal the finality of such action will depend upon whether the country wants to override the court. It is an old anecdote around the Supreme Court that there is no appeal from it expect to God Himself. That, possibly, is Supreme Court propaganda. In the long run the country has found some way of doing about what it wished to do.

That might seem like ingratitude at first glance because Texans have shown an uncanny skill in being at the right place at the right time when a plum was due to drop.

In the Senate they have the Vice Presidency and the chairmanships of the committees on military affairs and public buildings and grounds.

They also have an impressive heavyweight comrade, Chesley W. Jurney, as sergeant at arms of the Senate. Col. Jurney won fame as the officer who spent an entire night trying to elude William P. MacCracken, who wanted to be arrested during the Senate air-mail investigation. MacCracken figured that was the best way to keep out of jail. He parked himself all one Saturday night in Jurney's apartment. True to Southern traditions, Jurney was hospitable but adamant in his refusal to arrest the man.

So the other night MacCracken went to jail, thereby indicating Col. Jurney's novel theory that it is a mistake to arrest a man if you don't want him to escape.

While it is not to be expected that Texas could contribute many such geniuses as Col. Jurney to the public service, in addition to staffing up the Senate so notably, it has done fairly well in taking command of House committees. Sturdy Texans guide the destinies of the House Committee on Agriculture, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Judiciary, Public Buildings and Grounds, and Rivers and Harbors.

In face of this we still have the daily clamor for patronage. But it comes from the two or three Texans who haven't been let in on the gravy. They say that their more favored colleagues are taking all of the jobs. One Texas committee chairman is said to have 67 appointees, another 52 and a third 40. That explains why certain Texans have been so persistent in the House Share-Our-Jobs movement.

Group Opposes District Health Insurance Law

Board of Trade Committee Urges Delay in Passage of Legislation.

Delay in the enactment of legislation for compulsory health insurance in the District was recommended yesterday by the public health committee of the Board of Trade.

The committee urged its parent body to oppose such legislation until present plans for the socialization of medical and dental services here can be thoroughly tried.

The present plans referred to are the Central Admitting Bureau, recently established through cooperation of medical and dental societies, charities and the Community Chest to handle indigent cases, and the Medical and Dental Service Bureau, which the medical and dental societies will open tomorrow, as a means of enabling persons of lower income to adjust and meet their medical bills.

The action was taken after the committee had heard the report and recommendations of a sub-committee, headed by Dr. A. A. Chenay, on a study of health insurance.

In the report on the study of health insurance it was stated that the mortality rates of countries which have adopted it have not been lowered, that it does not decrease the total cost of medical care, and that the quality of medical service deteriorates under conditions imposed by insurance practice.

It was further stated that compulsory insurance fosters competitive and commercial practices in organized medical groups and that it eliminates the principles of free choice of physician and destroys the personal relation between physician and patient.

1,400 Blank Treasury Checks Stolen in Seattle

Seattle, Feb. 27 (AP).—Theft here February 18 of more than 1,400 blank United States Treasury checks was disclosed today when Postoffice Inspector C. E. Caine asked police cooperation in recovering them.

The checks were reported to have been mailed from Washington, D. C., to the disbursing officer of the Coast Guard here and to have disappeared from a mail delivery truck while it was parked in front of a downtown office building.

Traffic Skids With Icy Wave Holding City

Temperature Drops to 15; King Frost Reigns in Eastern Cities.

Washington yesterday enjoyed a touch of the old-fashioned "pre-inaugural" weather. It was below freezing and while the snow stopped and the sun shone, there was little lift in temperature.

The Capital was not alone in feeling the grip of the Ice King. According to Associated Press reports the season's fling stretched from Maine to Florida.

Icy streets menaced traffic. Yesterday's low was 15 at 7 a. m. and the high was reached at 3:30 p. m., with a 24 reading.

Ice jeopardized Pennsylvania motorists, derailed street cars in Philadelphia and stalled many autos along Delaware County roads, according to the Associated Press.

Abnormal cold encamped almost everywhere east of the Rockies with the mercury dipping under zero in some of the Far Northern areas. Illinois counted its death in the current siege at ten. Another was added to the toll of Michigan, where a minimum of 16 below zero was reported at the Soo. Iowans waded through slush.

A few roads in the Midwest were still blocked by heavy snows, but the recent precipitation failed to dispel drought fears. Prevailing fair weather brought much comment on lack of subsoil moisture at the Chicago Board of Trade, and wheat edged up.

Annuities Kept In Security Bill By House Body

Retention Voted, 12 to 6, Despite Protests of Insurance Firms.

By the Associated Press.

Overriding protests of insurance companies, the House Ways and Means Committee voted,12 to 6, yesterday against elimination of voluntary annuities from the social security bill and neared tentative completion of its work on the bill.

The schedule was to have the much-revised bill ready for presentation to President Roosevelt shortly after he returns to the Capital today. Then it would be given final committee consideration and presented to the House some time next week.

Early committee action at the Senate end of the Capitol also was indicated. Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committe said his committee would begin consideration of the bill as soon as the House Ways and Means Committee completes rewriting it, without waiting for action by the House.

Change of Plans.

Harrison's comment disclosed a change of plans, since he originally had announced action would be held up until the House voted on the measure.

Despite these evidences of speed on the measure, little possibility of quick enactment was seen because of the legislative jam caused by the works relief bill controversy.

Under the voluntary annuity section any individual could buy bonds—"annuity certificates"—from the Treasury.

When he reached 65 years of age, the certificates would mature, and he could be paid off in a lump sum or in monthly installments not to exceed $100 a month until he got back all he had paid in plus 3 per cent interest. If he died before all the certificates had been bought back, his original investment plus the 3 per cent interest, compounded annually, would go to his heirs.

System Is Protested.

Protests had been made that such a system would offer unfair competition with private insurance companies, since these necessarily must have a bigger overhead.

Furthermore, committeemen argued that putting the Federal Government into the annuity business would not only let it compete with private companies but that if such a system were to be set up, it should be left to the States.

Against the "competition" idea was advanced the contention that the Federal system, since it would pay a maximum of $100 a month, would extend insurance against old age to a class not covered by existing insurance companies.

Four Convicted Of Operating Gaming House

Charged with operating a gaming house in the 1700 block of Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Peter Pape, Frank Pape, Thomas Ryan and John Midolo were convicted in the District Supreme Court yesterday. Two others, named in the same indictment, were found not guilty. They are Francis J. Smith and Joseph Castell.

By direction of Justice James M. Proctor, the four were committed immediately to the District Jail. It is the practice to commit upon conviction and to refuse bond, pending an appeal, until the appeal papers have been perfected and are ready for argument in the Apellate Court.

United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett pointed out that the conviction was the first major "notch" in the campaign to eliminate gaming here. He said it has been many months since a like number of convictions had been obtained in one case.

The Papes, Ryan and Midolo were each found guilty of four separate violations of the gaming laws. They can be given four separate sentences, although Justice Proctor indicated he would not pass sentence until the men have had a chance to file motions for new trials, and their cases have been investigated by the Probation Office.

5-Foot Floral Piece Capone Tribute to Pal

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Barred, literally, from attending the funeral of Frankie Rio today, "Scarface Al" Capone had a 5-foot floral piece at the casket of his former bodyguard and cellmate. The inscription on a banner across the red, heart-shape offering read:

"To my pal from Al."

Rio, who survived gang warfare to die of a heart disease, was denied none of the pomp in his funeral which marked those of men who died in the common gang fashion. A neon cross blazed among the truckloads of elaborate floral offerings which almost filled the funeral chapel.

Cathedral Gets $25,000 Under Mrs. Chase Will

Many Other Charitable and Philanthropic Bequests Made.

The Washington Cathedral will receive $25,000 from the estate of Mrs. Helen Stirling Chase, widow of Stephen M. Chase, it was learned yesterday, when her will was filed in the District Supreme Court.

Many other charitable and philanthropic bequests were made by Mrs. Chase. The Episcopal Home for Children was given $25,000 with which to build a nursery or infirmary, the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Episcopal Church was given $12,000, a $25,000 trust fund was created for the Washington Home for Incurables and the Episcopal Church Home was given a trust fund of $5,000, with which four persons, to be named by the rectors of the St. Alban's and All Saints' Churches, are to be maintained by the home.

Another bequest provided $25,000 for All Saints' Church for erection of a tower in memory of Canon John Walton Chase. Mrs. Chase also bequeathed St. Stephen's Church $600 for a memorial window for her mother, Ursula H. Lincoln. St. Paul's Catholic Church is given $1,200 to provide oil for the sanctuary lamp as a memorial to her husband.

Quasi-quintuplets at Washington Sanatorium!

The definition was reached yesterday morning when three bouncing (really bouncing) baby girls were born to Mrs. E. W. Haviland, jr., of Seat Pleasant, Md.

These three youngsters arrived at 10:30, 11:10 and 11:17 a. m. and weighed 4 pounds 14 ounces, 5 pounds, and 6 pounds 2 ounces, respectively.

Because the trio was placed in a nursery which already housed a pair of twin boys born on George Washington's Birthday to Mrs. Fred D. Vechery, of Riverdale, Md., the quintuplet idea was developed.

The three little girls have not been named. Their parents already have two children, a boy and a girl. The twin boys are Harvey Thomas and Henry Hugh Vechery. They are the first arrivals in the family.

All five births were added to the total of children which Dr. Lauretta Kress, beloved Takoma physician, has brought into the world. Dr. Kress has now attended the births of 3,656 infants.

Wheeler Hits Utility Group On Propaganda

Blames It for Floods of Protests to Congress on Holding Bill.

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Wheeler, of the Senate Commerce Committee, last night accused "organized public utility interests" of "flooding Congress with misleading propaganda" in opposition to the bill which would abolish utility holding companies.

In addition, he asserted his committee probably would call Henry L. Doherty, president of Cities Service, to account for what Wheeler termed an effort to "terrify stockholders" of that company into writing hundreds of letters objecting to the bill.

Meanwhile, the committee of public utility executives issued an analysis of the pending measure which predicted that its enactment would "seriously impair the Nation's electric and gas service" and result in losses to investors running into billions of dollars.

The bill would abolish all public utility holding companies after an interval of five years, during which period they would be subjected to strict regulation. It is backed, in part, by the Administration.

Healy Asks Abolition.

The House Commerce Committee, already at work on the measure yesterday heard Robert E. Healy, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, excoriate holding companies. He insisted mere regulation would not be effective in reaching them.

Among some Republican members of Congress a movement is taking shape directed at substitution of permanent regulation for the section which would put the holding companies out of business after 1940.

Wheeler said he was receiving "hundreds" of letters daily and that other members of the Senate also were being "deluged." In many instances, he added, dozens of letters obviously had had a common origin.

He cited instances in which he said numbers of telegrams received from a single city were identically worded. The same was true, he added, of letters also received from a single section.

"Threat" in Letters.

Cities Service, he continued, sent letters to all its stockholders, signed by Doherty, saying that while the company had been hit by the depression it now saw its way out, unless the pending bill is enacted.

The stockholders were threatened with severe losses, the Senator said, and were urged to oppose the measure. He added the comment that but for "manipulation and overcapitalization" Cities Service would be in much better condition than it now is.

The committee of public utility executives, in its statement today, asserted it was "apparent" the purpose of the measure was "not to regulate but to destroy." The bill's "real effect," it continued, would be "nationalization of the electric and natural gas industries."

Orchestra to Play American Works

Chorus to Join in All-Native Program Today.

A program devoted to the music of contemporary American composers will be presented by the National Symphony Orchestra this afternoon in Constitution Hall, under direction of Hans Kindler. Randall Thompson, Roy Harris, Daniel Gregory Mason, Deems Taylor and Charles Vardell—the composers selected for the program—will be present in the audience.

The major work to be performed is Thompson's second symphony, which will have its local premiere on this occasion. First performances in Washington also will be given to the "Chorale for Strings," by Harris; the "Chanticleer Overture," by Mason, and "Joe Clark Steps Out," by Vardell.

Taylor's cantata setting of Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem, "The Chambered Nautilus," will be presented with the assistance of the Washington Choral Society, of which Louis A. Potter is director. This cantata was sung by the choral society last season, but this will be the first presentation with full orchestral support.

Members of the orchestra association have been invited to a reception in honor of the visiting composers after the concert.

Three Arrested In $14,000 Holdup

Officers Continue to Search for Stolen Mail Pouch.

By the Associated Press.

Hazard, Ky., Feb. 27.—Three men with pistols, who seized a mail pouch containing approximately $14,000 from a Government truck near Tribbey today, were believed arrested later at Jackson, Ky. They had escaped in a small coupe.

The pouch contained the pay roll of the Hardy-Burlingham Mining Co. The mail truck operates between Hazard and Hardburly. The pouch had been made up on the Lexington-Flemington train and delivered to the truck at Hazard.

James Napier, driver of the truck, and another man with him in the holdup, told officers they recognized the three arrested men.

The trio, Floyd Hadden and Marvin and Ralph Hall, brothers, ranging in age from 20 to 25, were placed in jail here as officers continued to search for the stolen money.

Vote Promised On Bill to End Profits of War

House Test Assured on McSwain Measure; Probe Bares Huge Gains.

By the Associated Press.

While the Senate Munitions Committee recorded new evidence of the millions made during the World War, the House yesterday was promised an opportunity to vote on the McSwain bill aimed at strangling profiteering in times of conflict.

The House Rules Committee assured consideration of the antiwar-profits measure "in a week or so" after Representative McSwain (Democrat), of South Carolina, reminded that President Roosevelt said recently "the time has come to take the profits out of war."

The evidence brought forward at the Senate hearing showed the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and its subsidiaries had made $68,000,000 in profits during the World War period. They paid about $12,400,000 in taxes on this.

Promised Debate.

McSwain said he had been promised there would be four hours debate on the bill, which aims at war profits by setting maximum prices when the country enters a war.

Instructed by the Rules Committee to get the President's reaction to the legislation, McSwain assured the members the Chief Executive favored the general move.

After quoting the President's antiwar profits declaration, McSwain said:

"We mustn't assume that the President has any idea of the detailed machinery to do that."

He added that Bernard Baruch and Hugh S. Johnson, members of a committee named by President Roosevelt to study antiwar profit proposals, favored his bill.

Disclosure of the profits of the shipbuilding company brought a protest from Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, in the Munitions Committee against what he termed preaching by private shipyards that it was "unpatriotic and immoral" to have the Government build its own ships in its own yards.

Both he and Chairman Nye (Republican), North Dakota, of the committee, declared the Navy had demonstrated the Government yards could construct ships at a lower cost than the private yards. The Senators estimated there was a saving of about $2,000,000 on cruisers built by the private yards at prices ranging from $10,500,000 to $11,600,000.

Challenge From Wakeman.

This brought an immediate challenge from S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem corporation. He said there was dispute about the Navy figures.

"I can't see why there is all this preaching by you people," Bone declared, "that it is unpatriotic and immoral for the Government to build its own ships in its own yards.

"You are going to build a backfire against yourselves that will cause you a lot of grief and trouble.

"Why shouldn't the Government make this saving by building in its own yards?"

"Do you interpret this," Wakeman asked, "as indicating the Navy can build cheaper?"

"The Navy says so," Stephen Raushenbush, committee counsel, asserted, and Bone replied:

"Most certainly."

"It has been impossible to learn what are the proper costs for the Navy to build ships," Wakeman protested.

The committee turned to profits made by the Bethlehem corporation. Wakeman agreed that at times the profits on individual ships had ranged up as high as 25 per cent.

Such profits came, he said, when the company was in doubt about the style of building, such as the lighter cruisers designed in compliance with the Naval Limitations Treaty.

"In dealing with this new and then unknown equation," he told the committee, "we overestimated in some instances, and we effected savings which we had no reason to anticipate at the moment."

social security and bonus bills—about the third week in March.

Meanwhile, the Treasury could be advised of the schedule and decide it was not "practicable" to make the income data public before then.

Harrison announced he had appointed Senators King (Democrat), Utah; George (Democrat), of Georgia; Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts; Couzens (Republican), of Michigan; Keyes (Republican), of New Hampshire; and La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, to confer with the House Committee. La Follette was one of those who led the fight for adoption of the publicity amendment.

Tax Publicity Fought By Industrialists

Opposition to publicity for income tax returns was registered yesterday by the board of governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association who also voted to disapprove the proposed bill to set a limit of 40 hours a week for women.

The board contended the tax publicity would be capitalized by the underworld. The labor bill was opposed because, it was said, many jobs now held by women would be taken by men and because Washington employers would be met with competition from nearby States where the hours of labor for women are not so limited. The group also voted to hold its week-end booster trip on June 21-24, and approved a plan for unemployment insurance.

Child Labor Ban Rejected.

Boston, Feb. 27 (AP).—The State Senate late today killed ratification of the child labor amendment, 34-0. The House overwhelmingly defeated the amendment last week.

Vast Road Program Likely in Virginia

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Feb. 27.—Expenditure of at least $4,500,000 on primary road construction in Virginia was believed assured by the State highway department today as a result of Gov. Peery's consent that the road commission incur a deficit in order to match Federal funds on July 1, Commissioner H. G. Shirley announced today.

The combined State and Federal expenditure would be made during the next fiscal year and will mean the employment of thousands of men in road building.

The Federal aid allotment available next July 1 will amount to $2,278,000, and it is expected that the commission will borrow at least an equal amount on short-term loans in order to benefit by the grant from Washington.

Commissioner Shirley explained that it is necessary to incur a deficit to match the Federal fund because, after deducting from the highway budget $3,000,000 needed to operate the State convict road force, only $95,000 in State money is left to spend on primary road construction.

Before entraining at the little Hyde Park Station tonight, Mr. Roosevelt went for an automobile drive, during which he inspected his experiments in forestry. Several hundred acres of the estate are being used for this purpose, in cooperation with the State forestry service, and Mr. Roosevelt is much interested in experimental research on oaks and acorns.

The President's short visit here was singularly free of conferences. Not one Administration leader called to see him, and Raymond Moley, former head of the 'Brain Trust," was the only visitor of importance to penetrate his secretarial guard. The President began his trip Saturday, going to Cambridge, Mass., to see his son, Franklin, jr., initiated into the Fly Club, and then coming here for four days of relaxation.

no change. Egg prices rose 2.7 per cent.

Fruit and vegetable prices increased 1.9 per cent, oranges cabbage and onions accounting for the major increases. Miscellaneous foods registered an advance of .5 per cent. Coffee declined; sugar was unchanged. Price increases occurrred in 49 out of 51 reporting cities, and in each of the geographical divisions. New York and Portland, Oreg., were the only cities that showed no change.

In Washington, the report showed, food prices increased .7 per cent during the two-week period and 2.9 per cent since January 15. As compared with a year ago, the increase was 14.3 per cent, and as against two years ago, 34.5 per cent. As compared with five years ago, the report showed, prices had declined 18.7 per cent.

Man Arrested as Drunk Blames Cut-Rate Liquor

Samuel McDaniels, of Baltimore, walked out of the Hyattsville Police Court yesterday a free man after spending nearly a week in jail on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

He pleaded guilty to the charge, but denied he had been drinking his own wares. He sells lemon and other extracts. His troubles came about, McDaniels told Judge Waldo Burnside, after he tasted some of Washington's "cut rate" liquor and he collapsed under a tree at University Park. Sergt. Ralph W. Brown made the arrest. Judge Burnside decided a week in jail was enough punishment and suspended sentence.

Lieutenant Kelly and R. A. Walker Hurt in Wreck Near Keysville.

A motor vacation to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans ended in tragedy yesterday as Albert J. Sardo, 30, of 412 H street northeast, prominent Washington undertaker, was killed when his automobile collided with a truck on the highway near Keysville, Va.

In the same crash Robert A. Walker, Traffic Bureau policeman, was injured seriously, and Lieut. James L. Kelly, head of the Washington police radio system, suffered several broken ribs and cuts about the head and knees. Albert J. Sardo, jr., 8, son of the dead man, was hurt slightly, and picked up by a passing motorist to be brought to his home here.

Taken to Hospital.

After the accident the automobile, operated by Lieut. Kelly, plunged off the road and down a shallow embankment. Lieut. Kelly and Policeman Walker were taken to a hospital in Farmville, Va. Mr. Sardo died about 15 minutes after the crash of head and internal injuries.

The four were on their way to New Orleans in Mr. Sardo's car. There they were to join Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and his bride.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen was to have accompanied the party when first it was planned. His recent illness prevented his going.

The party left the Capital yesterday morning for a 15-day vacation. Keysville is on the highway south, half way between Richmond and Danville.

Mr. Sardo had acted as chairman of the citizens' committee at the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police here last year. He was an honorary inspector in the police department and a close friend of Maj. Brown.

He is survived by his son, his father, William H. Sardo, sr., and two brothers, William H., jr., and Joseph E. Sardo.

Lieut. Kelly, who is 37, has a wife and a 3-year-old son. He lives in the first block of Ninth street northeast. He installed the police radio system at the Tenth Precinct February 18, 1933.

not hear of more than $2,000,000,000, revolt or no revolt.

Indications were the committee's bill, introduced by Chairman Steagall, would be called up under a rule permitting liberal debate and the offering of amendments from the floor. Leaders intimated they thought such a plan would give critics of the HOLC executive set-up an opportunity to air their views.

It became increasingly apparent, however, that the House high command would do everything possible to prevent adoption of the pending Sweeney resolution for a sweeping investigation into his charges of administrative inefficiency and irregularities.

John H. Fahey, HOLC chairman, has refused even to dignify the charges of Representative Sweeney (Democrat), Ohio, by appearing before the House Rules Committee for questioning on the resolution for an inquiry. The measure has been pending several weeks. He unquestionably would have used his influence with the committee had he feared passage.

While he has granted no interviews on the subject, Fahey is known to have been decidedly upset by the action of the Banking and Currency Committee in amending the Steagall bill to prevent retention of employes in regional offices of the agency unless they were residents there when the branch was opened.

HOLC executives interpreted that amendment as a move by job-hungry Congressmen to create vacancies which would make way for their friends. When the measure reaches the floor some supporter of the HOLC management probably will seek to scrap the amendment on the ground that it would lower the efficiency of the agency by forcing dismissal of several key men. Most of the rank and file regional employes, however, are natives of the areas where they work.

There have been three or four separate revolt movements among House members this session. The 500,000 increase in home loans will be the first real victory any of the cliques have achieved.

These days Washingtonians sing about the "Isle of Capri" and trill the praises of the Harrington's Maid's-Day-Off Dinner.

Leaders Seek A Compromise On Works Bill

Wagner Takes the Lead in Striving for Accord With Labor.

By Robert C. Albright.

An Administration understanding with labor on the strife-torn wage amendment to the works bill last night was the apparent goal of Senate leaders, as the embattled measure lay snarled in committee, awaiting return of the President today.

Center of open gestures toward an agreement was Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, who served an apprenticeship in such matters as chairman of the National Labor Board. Senate Majority Leader Robinson was reported leaning heavily on Wagner.

While no compromise had been effected at a late hour last night, there was indication that neither side in the war over whether the prevailing wage, or "security" pay will be labor's lot in the works program, is unyielding.

Wagner Voices Hope.

Asked if there is any field for compromise, Senator Wagner replied:

"Of course there is an area."

This statement followed a conference between the New Yorker, Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, author of the prevailing wage amendment, and Senators Edward P. Costigan (Democrat), of Colorado, and Robert La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, ardent sponsors of labor's cause.

McCarran insisted, however, that there would be no recession from the "principle" of his prevailing wage amendment. Asked if he would insist on the text of his amendment as it passed the Senate, he said he is "not wedded to any language."

Wagner, lifetime champion of labor's cause, who personally mediated a host of employe-labor disputes in the early days of the NRA, is now drafting a labor dispute bill as an NRA complement, and angling for Administration support. He is among the 21 Democrats who voted for the prevailing wage amendment.

Wants to Save the Bill.

Administration opposition to that amendment forced the bill back in committee, where it has reposed, unacted on, since last Friday. The German-born Senator is one of many Democrats said to be in difficulty because of their vote. New York would receive a lion's share of the $4,880,000,000 appropriation. Wagner wants the prevailing wage amendment, and at the same time he wants to save the bill.

The President's insistence on a security wage scale as opposed to prevailing rates of pay meanwhile drew support from the United States Chamber of Commerce, through its president, Henry I. Harriman.

"The compensation for relief works should be on a substantially lower scale than the going rate of wage in private industry," Mr. Harriman said. "There then will be no incentive for the worker to stay on Government work once jobs are available in private industry. This principle is indispensable to a relief public works program, and without it such a program should not, in my judgment, be undertaken."

Both Mr. Harriman and Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy League, urged a substantial reduction in the amount sought for public works. Mr. Harriman pointed out that there were large unexpended balances available from previous appropriations.

Curran, in a letter addressed to individual Senators, declared most cities are "lying down on the Federal Government" in extending relief to the needy. He urged that Congress appropriate only $1,00,000,000 for relief in the next fiscal year, and require the cities to do their part.

Neither the prevailing wage amendment nor the efficacy of public works should be at issue, said Curran.

"The vital point, which is amply proved by the present discussion, is the necessity for home rule in relief," he said. "It is time for the Federal Government to get out of this business and leave it to the cities, where it belongs."

Administration leaders, however, apparently have decided to fight the battle out on the prevailing wage front. In one quarter it was claimed yesterday that two Senators who voted for the McCarran amendment are ready to change. This was hotly denied by Senator McCarran.

'Gained Strength.'

"I have reason to believe we have gained strength," he said.

Senate Majority Leader Robinson indicated progress was being made toward bringing order out of legislative chaos that has prevailed on the measure, but declined to disclose his course. The President is expected to take a personal share in clearing the atmosphere when he returns to Washington today. A few leaders may be called into conference at the White House.

Following were among the half-dozen alternatives discussed yesterday:

Separation of the public works bill from relief, and independent action on a $880,000,000 direct relief measure.

Reduction of the $4,880,000,000 measure to $1,880,000,000.

Another showdown on the McCarran prevailing wage amendment, holding the work-relief bill at the President's $4,880,000,000 level.

A substitute for the McCarran amendment, giving the President authority to determine personally the rate of wages.

Increase in the amount of proposed security wage payment above the suggested $50 average.

A plan to make contracts a basis for all public works, continuing the present system of prevailing wage payments.

2 Rulings Menace New Deal; Weirton Decision Voids 7(a)

hope, will answer the questions raised in the other cases.

The new decisions leave Congress further up in the air than ever on the question of extension of the recovery act, which expires June 16. President Roosevelt is understood to have suggested that section 7(a) remain unchanged. With the constitutionality of that section questioned by a Federal court, and with the whole theory of NRA in jeopardy, Congress faces a problem difficult of solution.

An adverse decision by the Supreme Court would affect not only NRA but the theory of the Wagner labor bill, the Guffey coal bill, the 30-hour week bill, oil control legislation and similar New Deal set-ups. The Government would be deprived of control of any industry except that which directly involves shipment across State lines.

The Belcher case was appealed from a decision of Judge Grubb, of Alabama, who dealt another blow to the New Deal last week when he declared sale of electric power by the TVA was illegal.

Test of U. S. Power.

The Weirton case, long delayed, has been looked upon as a major test of the Government's power to regulate employer and employe relations. The court held that an employe election held by the company was valid, although the company refused to permit supervision by the National Labor Board. The court held that the Labor Board had no authority to conduct an election. He said its position was that of a mere volunteer, "acting as a group of individuals and not as a lawfully constituted body."

"The suggestion that recurrent hard times suspend constitutional limitations or cause manufacturing operations to so affect interstate commerce as to subject them to regulation by the Congress," the court said, "borders on the fantastic and merits no serious consideration."

The ruling cited four Supreme Court decisions which it said upheld the company's contention that it is not engaged in interstate commerce with its employes.

"Old World Theory."

"The relations between defendant and its employes do not afford interstate commerce," the court held.

"Manufacturing is a cooperative enterprise. Production in quantity and quality with consequent wages, salaries and dividends, depends upon a sympathetic cooperation of management and workmen. A relation acceptable and satisfactory to both workmen and management is an essential feature of the enterprise. If satisfactory, the court will not disturb it.

"It is said this relation involves the problem of the economic balance of the power of labor against the power of capital. The theory of a balance of power, or of balancing opposing powers, is based upon the assumption of an inevitable diversity of interest. This is the traditional Old World theory. It is not the twentieth century American theory of that relation as dependent upon mutual interest, understanding and good will.

"This modern theory is embodied in the Weirton plan of employe organization."

The ruling held that the company union "is a lawful instrument for collective bargaining under the act and is free of domination and control of management."

The Weirton company is owned by the National Steel Corporation, but the court pointed out that the latter company is not a defendant to the suit.

"It is true," Judge Nields said, "that part of the business of that corporation is interstate commerce. Weirton Steel Co. is the sole defendant in this suit. Its business is the manufacturing of iron and steel products. Defendant is not engaged in interstate commerce save to a negligible extent. In its relations to its employes as dealt with in Section 7(a) it is not engaged in interstate commerce.

"Those relations are incident to manufacture. The fact that defendant is a wholly owned subsidiary of the National Steel Corporation can not change the character of defendant's business from that of manufacture to commerce.

"Therefore, in considering the question of the constitutionality of section 7(a) the business and corporate structure of the National Steel Corporation is immaterial."

The court cited a number of Supreme Court decisions to uphold its stand that manufacturing in itself did not constitute interstate commerce.

"The very thing emphatically condemned by the Supreme Court is what has been attempted by means of section 7(a) of the recovery act and the codes approved thereunder," Judge Nields said.

Referring to a Supreme Court child labor decision, the lower court said:

"This is a clear and emphatic statement that the commerce clause can not be construed so as to bring within the regulatory power of the Federal Government the manufacture of goods intended for shipment in interstate commerce, and a fortiori the entire economic life of the Nation.

"The Constitution did not give to Congress the power to regulate manufacture. The authority of these cases of the Supreme Court stands and must continue to stand until the Constitution is amended. Their application to the business of defendant is quite certain.

Condemned by High Court.

"If the defendant's manufacturing plants and manufacturing operations are to be regarded as instruments for the interstate movement of goods, it follows that practically all of the manufacturing industry of the United States would be brought within the control of the Federal Government.

"Such result has received the unqualified condemnation of the Supreme Court."

"As to the position taken by the court on constitutionality of Federal control of matters involving manufacturing," he said, "the decision as reported to me seems to be based on an outmoded theory of constitutional law. It seems to me that there is no cause for concern on this count in view of the realistic appreciation of modern industry and commerce shown by the Supreme Court in the Appalachian Coals case.

"I assume there will be a prompt appeal and I have no doubt as to the outcome on the constitutional question."

In the Appalachian case, Smith explained, the court held that the Government had power to prevent "the wells of commerce"—manufacturing—"from going dry."

Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, father of the NRA bill, former head of the Labor Board, and author of the present labor bill, refused to comment on the decision.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, declared that "there is a line of decisions which tend to sustain the contention that the power of Congress under the commerce clause is not necessarily confined to the regulation of what is technically termed commerce, but also extends under proper statutes to the businesses which substantially affect interstate commerce."

Robinson declared that security and the right of collective bargaining for labor is "the only safeguard of the individual laborer, as well as of laborers en masse, against backward tendencies respecting wages and living conditions."

"Sentiment in Congress," he said, "overwhelmingly supports the provisions of section 7(a) which are designed to secure to laborers the right of collective bargaining without restraint, interference, or coercion on the part of employer."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared that labor can not accept the Wierton decision as final and conclusive. He said that, pending appeal, labor will continue to send 7(a) cases to the National Labor Relations Board for decision. Francis Biddle, chairman of that board, indicated it would continue to hear such cases as usual.

Green said that the decision was "evidently based upon either a misunderstanding or a misrepresentation of facts." He declared that public opinion "will insist and demand that labor must be free."

He said that under the Nields decision labor would be reduced to a basis of industrial servitude.

On the other hand, James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, declared the decision "will promote rational employment relations."

Other Comment.

The decision, he said, "sounds the death knell of the fundamental fallacies underlying the pending 30-hour week bill, the Guffey coal bill and the Wagner labor disputes bill. It revives constitutional government."

Senator Gerald P. Nye, coauthor of the resolution to investigate the NRA, saw in the decision a "double reason for the most deliberate consideration of any NRA renewal program."

The Associated Press quoted Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of Weirton, as saying the decision was "a complete vindication of our constant position that we have never in any way influenced or dominated our employes in the operation of their employe representation plan; that at all times they have had complete freedom of action and have conducted their organization according to their own ideals."

"It also decides," he said, "the legality of employe representation and its outstanding value to employes in the matter of collective bargaining with their employers."

Tenants Flee Apartment Fire As 2 Are Hurt

Two Families Homeless, Ill Woman Routed in Northwest Blaze.

Two families were made homeless, their household furnishings virtually destroyed, as fire swept a portion of the Emerson Apartments, 930 Emerson street northwest, at 11 a. m. yesterday. Two men were injured and more than a score of men, women and children were driven to the street.

Three alarms summoned 15 pieces of fire-fighting aparatus, but flames spread from a basement storeroom into the apartments of Sidney Adler and William Cheri before they were brought under control. Fire and water ruined most of their household belongings.

The injured were Ernest Eslin, 42, of Silver Spring, Md., a fireman of No. 11 station house, whose head was gashed as a portion of flooring tumbled about him, and William A. Cusick, of 3843 Thirty-fourth street northeast, an employe of the Capital Transit Co., who suffered torn ankle ligaments when a trestle raising hose lines above the Georgia avenue car tracks, collapsed, pinning him down.

Children Taken to Safety.

The flames spread rapidly. In the Cheri and Adler apartments, where the fire was centered, Mrs. Evelyn Cheri and Mrs. Bertha Adler were barely able to get their children, Helen and Raymond Cheri, ages 4 and 3, and Loretta Adler, 2, to safety.

Meanwhile, in a second-floor apartment Mrs. Tessie Jaffe stood by the bedside of her sick mother, Mrs. Ida Feldman, 48, until firemen told them to leave. With the assistance of Mrs. Minnie Fruedberg, another tenant, Mrs. Jaffe carried her mother to safety.

On the same floor with the Jaffes, Mrs. J. A. White got up out of a sick bed for the first time in a week and walked to safety, while Mrs. James A. Bolen carried out her 8-month-old daughter, Wortley Virginia.

Cigarette Blamed.

Others routed by smoke included Mrs. K. L. Bedlow, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McKenney, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Key and Mrs. J. W. Leedman, who with Mrs. Leedman's daughter, Louise, 4, sought refuge from the cold in a street car blocked by fire hose; Richard Walker, 18, son of Mrs. Hulda Walker; Mrs. O. A. C. Oehmler, who fled with her daughter, Elizabeth, 14, and the family canary; Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Becraft and Julian and Ruth Wood.

Officials expressed the opinion the fire may have been started by a carelessly handled cigarette. They estimated the damage at $2,500.

Legal Batting Mark Of NRA Put at .811

By the Associated Press.

The legal battles that have raged around the NRA found the Blue Eagle with a batting average of .811 in the courts, up to and not including yesterday's Weirton decision.

This figure was compiled by editors of the United States Law Week. They pointed out, however, that a number of the 134 cases won by the Government out of a total of 156 (not including oil and PWA cases) were consent decrees and pleas of guilty. Appeals were not included in the tabulation.

Here's the box score:

Favorable to NRA (134).

Permanent injunctions entered, 99.

Criminal convictions obtained, 17.

Suits against Government dismissed, 18.

Unfavorable to NRA (22).

Coal Industry Code 'Illegal,' Court Decides

Government Interference Unconstitutional, Says Federal Judge.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 27.—Granting 35 western Kentucky coal operators a writ preventing the Government from enforcing the bituminous coal code, Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson declared here today "the citizens of this country have the right to conduct their business without unconstitutional interference or regulation by governmental authority."

Judge Dawson reaffirmed his previous conclusion that the national recovery act as applied to mining of coal is unconstitutional. He ruled that coal mining is an intra-State business and beyond the regulatory power of Congress.

Previously Judge Dawson had granted the operators a temporary injunction and held the code invalid but the case was remanded by the Circuit Court of Appeals for finding of fact as to irreparable injury. Judge Dawson branded as fallacious the Government's contention that gains from the coal code should be offset against losses.

"When the Government unconstitutionally interferes with the right of a citizen to do business in his own way, that interference constitutes an injury to the property rights of the citizen," Judge Dawson said. "If that interference takes the form of exacting payment of wages in excess of what the citizen is willing to pay, to the extent of increased wages this citizen has been injured in his property rights.

Judge Dawson said if the Government's contention were correct "then a benevolent despotism at Washington can take charge of all business in this country, regulating wages and hours of service and all the other elements thereof, and the citizen would have no redress unless he could demonstrate that operation under Government supervision would result in a loss to him which otherwise would not have been sustained."

The outspoken jurist, who recently held the Government lacked authority to condemn private property for slum clearance projects, concluded the reading of the opinion with the comment, "I am through with the coal case—I hope."

The Government, which was overruled on all points of law raised, planned an immediate appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals, which meets at Cincinnati March 5.

Showdown Due On NRA Probe Today in Senate

Move Planned to Appoint Select Committee to End Dispute.

A Senate committee tug-of-war over what body will investigate NRA and its alleged code and monopoly abuses is headed for a showdown in the Senate today, when an effort will be made to turn the inquiry over to a select committee of "disinterested" Senators.

Determined not to relinquish its grip on the Administration's NRA extension program, the Senate Finance Committee, which already has approved a resolution to investigate NRA, will insist on appropriation of $5,000 to prosecute its own NRA inquiry.

Equally insistent that an NRA monopoly investigation undertaken by his Judiciary sub-committee shall not be sidetracked, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, declared last night he will go ahead with his investigation whether or not the Senate appropriates funds.

Moving to bring the two inquiries together under an independent committee, Senators McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, and Nye (Republican), North Dakota, will seek to amend the Finance Committee resolution today.

Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee served formal notice he will fight it.

"The Finance Committee not only is charged with this investigation," he said, "it is charged with planning extension or modification of NRA. For a select committee to be appointed could only delay or hamper the Finance Committee in its consideration of changes.

"We are proceeding in an orderly, rational way, and the committee on finance resents any intimation that there is to be a "whitewash."

Chairman Harrison has intimated he does not intend to employ a committee counsel if the Senate approves his group's investigation. Senator King's Judiciary sub-committee already has engaged Lowell Mason, former Darrow Board counsel, to conduct its monopoly investigation.

New Testimony Heard in Case Of Closed Bank

Court Defers Ruling on Protests to Pleasant Valley Report.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., Feb. 27.—Additional testimony was heard yesterday by Chief Judge Francis Neal Parke, of the Carroll County Circuit Court, on exceptions to ratification of a report by John J. Ghingher, receiver for the closed Pleasant Valley Bank, of Carroll County.

After a hearing January 26 the court deferred decision on whether payment of certain legal fees and other expenses incurred by the bank in the second year after institution of the banking act was constitutional.

The court also took under advisement questions of whether claims of certain infants were preferred and whether the bank was indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Crouse, of Tyrone, for a dividend on $12,500, alleged due them.

Yesterday's hearing followed action taken by Mr. and Mrs. Crouse to reopen the previous hearing on the ground new evidence affecting their claim had been discovered. Witnesses for the bank yesterday asserted the bank was not indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Crouse, as a draft for $12,500 had been cashed by Nevin Crouse, their son, while he was cashier at the bank, and that Mr. and Mrs. Crouse had benefited from the $12,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouse contend they did not benefit from the draft charged against their account and that the money was used by their son in stock market operations. Nevin Crouse is now serving a three-year sentence for embezzlement from the bank. Decision on the questions will be deferred by the court several weeks.

Martinsburg Body Defeats Proposal Of Charter Shift

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 27.—A draft of proposed changes for the Martinsburg city charter, prepared by a committee from the chamber of commerce and three service clubs, was swept into the discard at a public citizens' meeting here.

Organized labor was credited with throwing its composite strength against the proposals. Labor spokesmen at the open meeting expressed the feeling that labor had been ignored in the drafting of the proposals, and a labor spokesman made the motion to reconsider the recommendations of the charter committee, which were before the meeting. The adoption of the motion overwhelmingly ended the efforts to amend the charter, which were to have been presented to the Legislature, if approved, with a request for action this week.

The final meeting Monday night was full of spirited discussion; charges that Chairman Clarence E. Martin, who had headed the citizens' committee which sponsored the charter revision plan, and who himself had made a vigorous attack upon the charter committee report last Thursday night, when it was presented to the parent citizens' committee; an appeal from the chair on the hearing of the committee report which was presented for the committee by Attorney Harry H. Byrer, and a vigorous attack upon the committee recommendations by Attorney A. C. McIntire, speaking for the labor element.

to show Mellon actually was owner of the bank stock, Shearer brought out the loan had been made without any collateral or interest.

As Secretary of the Treasury at the time, Mellon was prohibited under an interpretation of the law by the Solicitor General, from engaging in trade or commerce, or owning bank stock.

At this point, the answers of the usually amiable, gray-haired Johnson were clipped sharper. It was near the end of his sixth day in the witness chair, most of it under cross-questioning.

Loan Is Authorized.

"The company simply went to Mr. Mellon for the money instead of going to the bank," Johnson asserted. He showed he, himself, as an officer of Ascalot, had been authorized by the board of directors to make the loan.

Among a list of securities purchased by Ascalot on December 1, 1931, Johnson listed the following as having been sold by A. W. Mellon, with the loss to him from cost:

Shares	Stock	Loss
6,200	American Locomotive	$180,692.50
3,900	Texas Gulf Sulphur Co.	106,022.50
1,900	United Light & Power Co	24,100.00
2,500	Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg.	70,722.50
	Total	$383,537.50

On the same date, Ascalot sold to A. W. Mellon 2,000 shares of Penroad and 800 shares of Republic Steel common for $12,800.

$61,312 Surplus Shown By Chesterfield Board

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27 (AP).—The board of supervisors of Chesterfield County has "exercised due diligence and has administered the affairs of the county in a commendable manner," resulting in a surplus of $61,312.55 in the operating fund on June 30, 1934, a report filed today by State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs said.

The auditor recommended to the board, however, that they include sums needed for debt service in the budget and that adequate reserves be set up for redeeming the long-term debt and for liquidating deficits brought over from previous years.

Edison Utility Decision Held Possible Today

Distribution of Rates by Electric Concern Is Involved.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 27.—Some action on the part of the State Public Service Commission in the Potomac Edison case is expected tomorrow. The regulatory body declined, however, to confirm or deny that its final decision is ready for announcement.

Potomac Edison, an electric company serving western Maryland counties and parts of Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, was ordered to reduce its gross income by $325,000 a year, effective with meter readings of this month.

The utility twice submitted rate schedules alloting, the commission held, too great a proportion of the cut to its out-of-State subsidiaries. Both schedules were rejected, and a public hearing on the distribution of rates was held in an effort to reach an agreement.

Since tomorrow is the last day of the month, it is believed that the commission will render its final decision then.

Protest Fuel Oil Cost.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27 (AP).—Protesting against what they term as high rates for fuel oil, approximately 35 users of oil for heating purposes in Washington County have started plans for organizing a company to purchase their own fuel in large quantities.

mutually profitable" pact which he said, would mean "more trade, more production and more employment of labor in both countries."

Mr. Phillips pointed out that the concessions given to Belgium on building material should be of particular value to Americans on the Atlantic Coast. He pointed out that lowered prices for such material "should help to stimulate both urban and rural building, make it less costly to enter upon new building and repair operations and thereby facilitate the general spread of business recovery.

Senator Pierre Forthomme, of Belgium, chief of that country's special mission to negotiate the treaty and the signer on behalf of King Leopold III, asserted that President Roosevelt has "clearly seen that without foreign trade no real prosperity is to be dreamed of and that it is a fallacy to imagine that one can develop exportation while keeping down importations to the lowest possible level."

He said the agreement constituted a first step toward a universal "new deal of a liberally conceived exchange of goods and commodities."

Auto Executive Favors Pact.

Since the agreement was signed and made public late in the day, American industrial interests were slow to comment on it, although Robert C. Graham, speaking for the Automobile Manufacturers Association, declared the pact was "another forward step in the sound development of our foreign trade through the progressive elimination of artificial and uneconomic barriers to that trade." Representatives of the plate glass and cement industries, however, were not expected to be so enthusiastic.

The provisions of the agreement become effective 30 days after its proclamation by President Roosevelt and its simultaneous publication in the official Belgian gazette, the Moniteur Belge. It does not need ratification by either Congress or the Belgian parliament. Authority given by the Belgian parliament for the conclusion of such agreements expires today—the reason why signing of the pact was rushed.

Due in part to this need for speed and due also to currency difficulties and uncertainties resulting from Belgium's adherence to the gold standard, this agreement was not as complete or sweeping as that signed with Brazil earlier this month.

Aside from a pledge by each nation of unconditional most-favored-nation treatment for the commerce of the other, the pact does not contain any general provisions for governing the commerce of the two countries, as did the Brazilian agreement. The Brazilian pact was made for a specified period of two years. After expiration of that period it was subject to termination on the giving of six months' notice by either country.

Its Life Not Specified.

The life of the Belgian pact is not specified, being subject to termination at any time on six months' notice, with provision for its termination at any time on six months' specified conditions arise. One condition is the occurrence of a wide variation in the rate of exchange of the currencies of the two countries.

In addition, each country reserves the right to withdraw granted concessions on any article or to impose quantitative restrictions "if at any time there should be evidence that as a result of the extension of such concessions to third countries, such countries will obtain the major benefit of such concession and in consequence thereof an unduly large increase in importations of such article will take place."

If the two countries can not agree on the withdrawal of specified concessions, the pact may be terminated entirely on 30 days' notice. This escape clause was designed to protect American industry from importations from so-called "low-cost" countries.

Existing American tariffs under the pact would cut 25 per cent on cement, asbestos shingles, waterproof cloth, cordage, certain woven fabrics, and photographic paper; 50 per cent on prayer books, shotguns and silica sand; 33 1-3 per cent on various types of plate glass, and between 15 and 25 per cent on steel items such as muck bars, steel ingots, billets and bars, die blocks, boiler plate, sheets of iron or steel valued at 3 cent a pound or less, beams, girders and hoop or band iron or band steel.

Belgian Reductions Listed.

Belgium, in exchange, reduced its tariffs by 15 per cent on assembled automobiles, 64 to 80 per cent on 11 classifications of automobile parts which if applied to all automobile parts would be an average reduction of 50 per cent; approximately 50 per cent on grapefruit, dried peaches and fresh pears; 15 to 20 per cent on radios and radio parts, on canned pilchards or California sardines, and prunes.

The Belgians agreed to bind or freeze the existing quota on apples, leaving the rates unchanged at about 20 per cent ad valorem. The quota on American lard, on the free list, was raised to 3,207,000 kilos, while the quota on pork products was raised to 1,044,000 kilos. In each of these cases the new quota represents the annual average imported from the United States in the 1929-1933 period. In 1933, however, Belgium bought only about 28,000 kilos of American pork meat.

The quota on women's silk hosiery was raised from 1,400 kilos to 6,000 kilos, and on clothing for women from 3,500 kilos to 6,000 kilos. The quota on collars and cuffs was increased from 350 kilos to 1,000 kilos. In the case of dictating machines and cylinders for them a 9 per cent luxury tax was suppressed.

Natives Enlist In Italy's Army Of East Africa

Thousands Reported Ready to Serve; 2 Troop Ships Sail.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Feb. 27.—Thousands of natives on both sides of the Red Sea were reported enlisting under Italy's flag in East Africa today for possible service against Ethiopia.

Meanwhile two more Italian ships, the Arabia and the Leonardo da Vinci, sailed with their quota of troops and war materials for East Africa to swell the nation's war contingent in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

Emperor Haile Selassie, of Ethiopia, through his charge d'affaires in Rome, denied Ethiopia intends to "touch a stone" belonging to Italy's African colonies and asked withdrawal of the reinforcements sent there.

This proclamation, issued to the foreign press by Charge d'Affaires Negradas Yesus, was received in silence by the Italian government.

Contingents of troops from Taranto, Chieti and other points continued to pour into Naples tonight, indicating further embarkations were planned shortly.

Dispatches to the Corriere Della Sera, in Milan, said thousands of tribesmen from many countries along the Red Sea and Indian Ocean were flocking to Eritrea and Somaliland to enroll in the Italian native army.

(Dispatches from Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, said that government was informed Italy was recruiting troops in Yemen, Arabian kingdom with which Rome is on friendly relations, for service in east Africa. The Milan newspaper's correspondent also reported hundreds were crossing the Red Sea from Yemen.)

Emperor Haile Selassie's communication was made public by the charge d'affaires in an interview in which he reiterated his country's desire for peace.

"I have just received a letter from my Emperor," he said, in which he swears on his dynasty that Ethiopia never made any aggressive move toward Italy and never had any such intention.

"Hence the mobilization of Italian troops near the frontiers is inexplicable to the Emperor whose sole desire is to live in peace and friendly relations with Italy and Europe."

Sailing of the Arabia and Leonardo da Vinci, the latter having delayed its departure until today, raised to eight the total number of ships en route to Africa with Italian troops, and pushed well past 15,000 the men Benito Mussolini has ordered to his colonies.

Three ships already have arrived at Massaua, capital of Eritrea, with an estimated 3,000 soldiers and specialists aboard.

Simon Rules Out Plan For British Mediation

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 27.—A suggestion in Commons that Britain take the lead in sending an international army to the scene of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, just as she did for the Saar plebiscite, was overruled today by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

Simon told Geoffrey Mander, Liberal member who advanced the suggestion, that there was no similarity between the two situations.

Replying to Mander's further questions, the foreign secretary said Britain had called to Italy's attention the 1906 tri-power agreement among Britain, France and Italy to cooperate in maintaining Ethiopia's political and territorial status. The three countries are keeping in communication on the matter, he added.

A new British Imperial Airways line between Brindisi and Khartum, meanwhile, was announced for early inauguration under the terms of the Anglo-Italian civil air agreement. It was officially stated no new agreement was under consideration or necessary.

Communication Aid.

The new line, giving Italy rapid and regular communications with her East African colony, will route British transport planes from Brindisi to Tobruk in Cyrenaica and to Alexandria and Khartum, connecting there with Italian planes for Eritrea.

Although the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel was already simmering when the aviation agreement was signed, authorities here insist that the purpose from the British point of view was merely to make possible more direct routes to the British colony and India.

Millet's Grandson Jailed for Fakes

Six Months' Term Imposed for Art Swindles.

By the Associated Press.

Fontainebleau, France, Feb. 27.—Jean Charles Millet, gandson of J. F. Millet, who painted "The Angelus," today was sentenced to six months in prison and fined 500 francs for faking "old masters" and selling them at the prices genuine replicas would bring.

His collaborator, Paul Eugene Cazot, a former house painter, was given a similar sentence.

In addition, Millet and Cazot were ordered to pay $7,970 to M. Michaud who brought about their arrest by complaining that a picture he had bought from them as a genuine Millet was a fake.

Millet admitted to the court, during the trial last month, that his canvasses "signed" by Corot, Pissaro, Manet and Monet, had never been near easels of those artists, but protested in defense of his activities that his pictures were for the export trade only.

"The so-called American and British experts," he testified, "know nothing about art. They buy only pictures with pedigrees but have not the slightest notion whether they are genuine or not. All you have to do is ask a fabulous price."

France Urged To Woo Trade By Propaganda

World-Wide Publicity 'War' Proposed in Chamber of Deputies.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Feb. 27. — A world-wide "propaganda war" on behalf of France, visualizing coordinated use of the press and radio to bring back French export and tourist trade, was vehemently urged upon the Chamber of Deputies today.

Describing a "real war where arms are wits, thoughts, verbs, arts and sciences," Deputy Ernest Pezet reported on resolutions proposing to offset the propaganda of rival countries, with a footnote reference to Germany.

He told the chamber about "the prodigious strides in the propaganda of foreign nations with whom we compete most and with whom conflict perhaps threatens."

Pezet suggested that press offices be attached to French embassies and important consulates and that government officers visiting other countries frequently should coordinate as subordinate diplomats in all efforts to make France better known.

Deputies Andre Fribourg and Adrien Dariac proposed the creation of a "superior propaganda council" within the government to counteract anti-French "campaigns" in America and Europe.

Pezet pointed out that the new French superliner Normandie, which is soon to enter the transatlantic service, had been a boomerang on France.

"It is perhaps inopportune," he said, "to try to astonish America by such a construction (it cost 800,000,000 francs) at the very moment when we have refused to pay our American debts. Those well-informed in American affairs know that publicity about the Normandie produced in the United States the opposite effect from what was expected."

Hitler Holds Parley With Reichsbishop

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Feb. 27.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today received Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller for their long-deferred and oft-postponed discussion of Germany's church affairs.

Whether the two talked about the insistent demands from Mueller's opposition that he resign his leadership of the German State Protestant Church was not disclosed.

After the meeting, however, the Reichsbishop said:

"I am very satisfied with the results of my conference with Der Fuehrer. I am pleased and happy. I can't reveal the details of the discussion."

While church leaders tonight expressed the opinion that the Hitler-Mueller meeting may have been the turning point in the church struggle, the Reichsbishop conferred at his home with 50 churchmen.

One faction interpreted Mueller's satisfaction as meaning he was promised the extraordinary powers which his chancellery said he wanted to get in the meeting with Hitler scheduled for February 5. That meeting was postponed.

Other circles, however, believed Hitler patted the Reichsbishop on the back and commented favorably on the comparative peace in the church controversy since Christmas, all preliminary to granting him leave of absence, which would be tantamount to ousting him.

Chiang Erases Central China's Red Influences

Social Revolution Returns Property to Owners as Radicals 'Repent.'

By the Associated Press.

Ningtu, Southern Kiangsi Province, China, Feb. 27.—A social revolution has been set in motion by the Chinese government to eradicate all traces of the communistic influence in central China.

In the territory recaptured only a few weeks ago from the Red army, the nationalist government is faced with the problem of overturning a communistic society which had become established during the seven-year history of the Chinese Soviet Republic.

Methods both benevolent and drastic have been used. Under orders from Gen. Chiang Kai-Chek, whose portrait has replaced that of Nicolai Lenin in the public buildings, the military administrators are attempting to woo the confidence of the people. Captured Communists who show a desire to "repent" are trained in a reformatory for six months and then released.

The entire political system has been reorganized and the peasants look upon Chiang Kai-Chek as both deliverer and ruler. There are no more free "handouts" of land. Private property seized by the Communists and divided among the people is being redistributed and returned to the owners. The confiscated shops and industries also are being returned.

Gen. Lo Cho-Ying, a lieutenant of Chiang, who delivered the final smashing blow against the Reds, told interviewers at his headquarters here that the people of central China have lost their sympathy for communism.

Gen. Lo said there was documentary evidence to prove that the Chinese Soviet Republic had a Russian adviser, who posed as a missionary. He said the evidence showed the Communist Party here was linked to the Third Internationale.

Reich Cuts Interest On All Public Bonds

Berlin, Feb. 27 (U.P.).—Encouraged by the success of its recent huge conversion of mortgage bonds, the government issued a decree today reducing interest rates on all German public bonds, such as state and municipal loans, to 4½ per cent. Bonds totaling 2,000,000,000 marks ($800,000,000) are affected.

Master Mind of Reich Spy Ring Is Discovered Hiding in Poland

By the United Press.

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 27.—The United Press tonight located Baron Georg von Sosnowski, "master mind" of the spy ring in Germany which resulted in the beheading of two beautiful Berlin society women at dawn on February 18.

The dashing young cavalry officer has been exchanged by the German government for German secret service espionage operatives.

He arrived in Warsaw two days ago, and is in hiding here temporarily, possible fearing reprisals from fanatics who feel that he, like the German women he led into the fatal plot to procure military secrets for him, should die.

The baron is staying with his father, a prominent Warsaw architect, but servants said he refused to see anyone. He came to the telephone a little later, but in answer to queries responded:

"I can say nothing."

Whether this was because of grief at the death of the Baroness Benita von Berg, with whom he was said to have been in love at one time in the course of his alleged machinations and intrigue against the German government, or because of official seal on the lips of any operative in this dangerous service, remained conjectural.

Havana Blocks Teacher Move To Collect Pay

Thousands Run Into Police Barrier; Fifth Member Quits the Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

Havana, Feb. 27.—Police today blocked thousands of school teachers trying to collect their salaries ahead of time as the fifth member of President Carlos Mendieta's cabinet resigned in the face of Cuba's spreading school strike.

The teachers, acting on the advice of strike leaders, marched to the office of the board of education to demand their February pay.

A cordon of police, carrying emergency rifles, met them and firmly refused to let them enter the building.

Secretary of Labor Quits.

Rogelio Pina, Mendieta's secretary of labor, was the newest minister to desert the government. His resignation tonight was being considered by the patched-up cabinet, from which four other secretaries previously had paraded.

The other resignations were those of Cosme de la Torriente, secretary of state; Raul de Cardenas, of justice and interior; Rafael Santos Jiminez, of commerce, and Jose Capote Diaz, of education. Torriente and Cardenas quit yesterday, in company with their respective undersecretaries; Santos Jiminez and Capote Diaz got out last week.

As strike leaders finished their work of paralyzing the island's public school system and brought many private institutions into line with them, efforts were under way to get government employes and labor unions into the movement.

Workers Join Movement.

Some small groups of workers already had joined the strike. Transportation workers voted to walk out Thursday, promising to tie up motor, freight and other traffic.

To replace Cardenas in the justice department, President Mendieta designated Andres Morales del Castillo, magistrate of the Audiencia court.

Meanwhile an important meeting of strikers was under way at Havana University, where leaders considered ways and means of ousting the Mendieta government, one of the announced purposes of the movement.

The conferees included the central strike committee, the university's joint council of students and teachers and the special "ways and means committee." A definite plan for overthrowing the administration was believed likely to result from the meeting.

3,000 Indians Kidnap Whites

4 Reported Killed in Revolt Fostered by Radicals in Ecuador.

By the United Press.

Rio Bamba, Ecuador, Feb. 27.—Three thousand Indians, allegedly inspired by white Communist leaders, revolted today, kidnaped ranch managers, employes and their families, and entrenched themselves in the hills.

Unconfirmed reports said four ranch employes were killed, one policeman injured and several insurgents wounded.

The report of the uprising was brought here by two ranch owners, Nicolas Velez y Galtez and Ramon Borja. Both were absent at the time of the outbreak and rushed here to seek aid in quelling the revolt.

The movement was believed to have wide ramifications, but centered chiefly in Chimborazo Province, and affected the estates named especially. The natives revolted after demands for a four-day week and wage increases had been rejected by government mediators.

According to their employers' versions, two alleged Communist leaders, Garcia Lasso Naulo and Col. Gusnay, went through the area, encouraging the Indians in their demands, and urging them to attack civil and religious authorities.

The natives had only a few firearms, but were well supplied with spiked clubs, a deadly Indian weapon.

In the outbreak the insurgents seized estate administrators, employes, servants, wives and children and fled to the hills.

Bank of England's Bullion Yard Guard Slain by Mystery Bullet

Soldier in Prince of Wales' Regiment Is Victim, Inquiry Speeded.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 27.—A young Welshman who left the coal mines to join the Prince of Wales' crack Welsh Guards was found fatally shot in the Bank of England's bullion yard early today, and the financial district buzzed with the mystery of his shooting.

As police and military authorities maintained silence, it appeared likely the full story of how and why James Baker, the 20-year-old guardsman, met his death would not be told until the coroner's inquest Friday.

The silence which settles over London's financial district at nightfall was broken shortly before dawn by the crack of a rifle shot.

"Turn out the guard," shouted a sergeant of the guard as he rushed to Baker's post at the main gate of the bullion yard near Threadneedle street.

Baker was found lying on the ground, blood pouring from a bullet wound in his head. He died soon afterward in a hospital.

The first intimation of the sensational occurrence within the closely guarded confines of the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" came with the Welsh Guards Barracks' notification by police that "Baker met with an accident."

It was understood one cartridge was missing from the dead guardsman's belt, but friends insisted he was of the happy-go-lucky type. He had no apparent worries, they said.

The young soldier, who was unmarried, had been in the army only a year.

He was a member of the Prince of Wales' company, crack military organization dressed in a picturesque uniform of red coat, black trousers and beaver busby. The colorful attire has been familiar for years to American tourists who have witnessed the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

The Bank of England has been guarded nightly by a detail composed of an officer, a sergeant, two corporals, 24 men and a bugler since the institution was threatened by an infuriated mob during the Gordon riots in 1780.

Workers occupied during the night with building operations inside the bank said they knew nothing of the shooting.

Man Loops, Glides, Testing 'Bat Wings'

By the Associated Press.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 27.—Clem Sohn today stepped out of an airplane 12,000 feet up, left his parachute unopened and tested a set of "bat wings."

The wings were of canvas and attached to his arms. He also had a canvas web sewed between his overall legs. Thus attired he did three loops, several sharp banks and some gliding. It was all over in about a minue and a quarter, while he slowly counted 75. Then he opened his parachute, some 10,000 feet lower than the altitude from which he jumped, and landed safely.

Sohn said without the "bat wings" it would have taken him only 30 seconds to fall 10,000 feet.

"I am sure that I could have glided a mile or more laterally if I had concentrated my efforts on that," he said.

British Cabinet Backs Crusade To East Europe

Moscow Bid Meets Favor; Simon and Eden Ready for Peace Tour.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 27.—The British cabinet today decided "in principle" to send two of Britain's foremost internationalists to visit distant European capitals in the interest of the continent's peace.

While no official statement was forthcoming after the cabinet's session, well-informed political circles said the government had approved plans for Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, to go to Moscow, Warsaw and Praha after they visit Berlin.

Government quarters admitted an informal invitation from Moscow for Simon to visit the citadel of communism had been well received. It was expected an official announcement shortly would confirm the report that long-standing British prejudice against direct contact with Soviet leaders had been brushed aside.

Impelling the government to that action, political circles said, was its determination to leave no stone unturned in an effort to bring about an inclusive European settlement which would end tension on all frontiers.

As Simon packed his bags to go to Paris tomorrow, ostensibly to lecture on British parliamentary procedure, British official quarters declined to speculate as to whether he would include Warsaw and Praha in his itinerary, or whether Eden, Britain's disarmament expert, might visit those capitals alone.

As far as available records show, Simon would be the first British secretary in history to visit Moscow on official business.

Europe Set Agog By Spelling Error

Mistake in Duke's Name Gives Rise to Rumor.

By the Associated Press.

Strasbourg, France, Feb. 27.—A police error in the spelling of a name gave half of Europe the chills and fever today when reports were circulated that Archduke Otto was en route to Vienna and Budapest by plane to claim the Hapsburg throne.

It was only a mistake of a few letters, but it meant the difference between an ordinary tourist air voyage for Archduke Anton, of Hapsburg, and a dramatic air dash of the Archduke Otto, who is heir to the old Austro-Hungarian crown.

Anton left Le Bourget air field yesterday in a plane given him by his wife, Princess Ileana, with a passenger named Zwilling. He landed at Nancy last night on account of darkness, hopped again this morning and landed at Strasbourg. There he got a cup of coffee and refueled, departing for Vienna at 8:30.

In transcribing the name from the airport register the police got it "Otto," and when the local agency sent it out with that name the news quickly sped to Balkan capitals. It shocked the Little Entente especially, where there is great opposition to a restoration of the throne in Austria.

Spurred by numerous demands for verification, the police checked the register again and tonight issued a correction.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

British Convict Naval Captain In Ships' Crash

Sawbridge Stripped of His Command; Final Trial Scheduled Today.

By the Associated Press.

Portsmouth, Eng., Feb. 27 (AP).—Capt. H. R. Sawbridge, of H. M. S. Renown, was stripped of his ace command today by a court-martial which found him guilty of hazarding his ship and the H. M. S. Hood in recent maneuvers off Spain.

Nine naval officers composing the court were unanimous in their verdict that the veteran British officer failed to take effective action to prevent a collision of the great battle cruisers, January 23.

Capt. Sawbridge was put on half pay by the verdict, which naval officers said was a rare one against captains in recent naval history.

There is no appeal from the court-martial, but the papers will be considered as a routine matter by the Lords of the Admiralty, who alone have the power to alter the decision.

It was expected that the papers will not be forwarded to London until after the final court-martial growing out of the collision, which will be held tomorrow. Yesterday Rear Admiral Sidney Robert Bailey, in command of the squadron, was acquitted, and tomorrow Capt. F. T. B. Tower, of H. M. S. Hood, will be tried.

Rear Admiral Bailey was the final prosecuting witness today in the Sawbridge hearing.

Capt. Sawbridge is expected to be given a temporary technical command of H. M. S. Victory, Nelson's old flagship, on which the hero met his death at Trafalgar. The Victory now is a museum ship in Portsmouth dockyard.

This technical command will permit Sawbridge to give evidence in the trial of Capt. Tower. No officer on half-pay in the Navy is permitted to give evidence.

Capt. Sawbridge took the court's verdict in traditional naval fashion. When he was asked whether he wished to make any statement seeking to mitigate the punishment, the officer, standing at attention, his face set and stern, replied, "No."

When the sentence was read Sawbridge bowed slightly, but did not glance at his sword on the table. It was pointed toward him, the sign of his guilt.

The collision of the Hood and the Renown was reported by the admiralty January 24. Both ships received slight structural damage, but continued to Gibraltar after the incident.

Crime Inquiry Will 'Protect' Its Witnesses

those who may be involved in their testimony."

Phone Official Testifies.

Ralph A. Van Orsdell, chief counsel for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., took the spot light in the brief hearing conducted yesterday. His company, he said, had given Mr. Garnett complete cooperation, but refused to have its employes become snoopers. Mr. Van Orsdell testified under oath. He was the first witness called before the committee under formal subpena.

Since May 28, 1934, Mr. Van Orsdell testified, his company has received from the United States attorney's office eight requests to discontinue telephone service of certain subscribers for the reason Mr. Garnett believed the service was being used for gambling purposes. One or two of the requests involved more than one subscriber, and all had been complied with, he said. As a result 275 telephones had been disconnected and requests for service had been refused in 58 instances in which the United States attorney had said he was sure the service was to be used for gambling purposes, Mr. Van Orsdell said.

"Has your company ever refused to cooperate?" asked Representative Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), of Indiana.

"No, ma'am," replied Mr. Van Orsdell. "We never have." He added that he was speaking for the legal, the commercial, and the plant departments of the company; in fact, for the entire company. He told of a request from Police Capt. Joe Morgan, commander of the Fifth Precinct, for information from the collector of a pay telephone station. The collector told what he had seen and knew but he had seen nothing and knew nothing, Mr. Van Orsdell said. The place was dark when the collector was there, he said.

"Snoopers'" Request Denied.

"Have you received any other requests?" he asked.

"We received requests for our installation and repair men to report anything improper they might see," the company lawyer said. "In that procedure we refused to cooperate. We felt the people have a right to depend on our men either in a home or a place of business.

"We can not make our men peace officers. We will not permit our men to snoop around. They are not snoopers."

Representative Clare G. Fenerty (Republican), of Pennsylvania, introduced in the record a letter written by Mr. Garnett to Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the Senate's Nation-wide crime investigating committee. In the letter Mr. Garnett emphasized the confidential character of grand jury proceedings. Introduction of the letter had reference to an admission by Mr. Garnett before the District crime committee that he had turned a grand jury report over to a House committee.

Data on Buckley Shown.

William A. Norgren, chief deputy clerk of the Police Court, took the place of Frank A. Sebring, Police Court clerk, who had been summoned by the committee. Mr. Sebring was ill. Mr. Norgren identified court records showing Buckley had been released on bond and a transcript of the Eighth Precinct police station record showing he had been charged with being drunk, disorderly and assaulting Officer Peters.

Policeman Raymond C. Radifer, of the Eighth Precinct, who arrested Buckley last June 13, testified before the committee on Monday that he had made out an information in the corporation counsel's office in Police Court charging Buckley with being drunk and disorderly.

That paper is not in the court files, Mr. Norgren testified. It had been searched for, he said. He did not know who was responsible for its removal, he said.

The hearing was adjourned until 1:30 p. m. on Monday. In the meantime, committee members and Mr. Fitzpatrick plan to confer with various persons and go over the record to map the course of the hearing. They said Inspector William G. Stott, chairman of the police trial board, probably would be the next witness heard.

Indiana Standard To Buy Yount-Lee

By the Associated Press.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 27.—President Frank O. Pryor of the Stanolind Oil & Gas Co., in a formal statement tonight, said his firm, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, is negotiating for purchase of all the stock of the Yount-Lee Oil Co., of Beaumont.

The Houston Post says the consideration is approximately $50,000,000.

While Pryor did not divulge details of the negotiations, the paper says it was learned reliably that Wright Morrow, Houston attorney, obtained exclusive option last Thursday from the stockholders of the Yount-Lee firm. Morrow could not be reached for comment.

Stanolind engineers have been stationed at Beaumont and in the east Texas field since February 15 checking production, undeveloped acreage and pipe lines of the Yount-Lee holdings in Texas and Louisiana.

Mrs. Davidson's Death by Gas Held Accident

Statler Heiress Inquest to Continue Today at Pinehurst.

the doors shut, and opened them. Then he saw Mrs. Davidson. She was in the front seat of her car. The motor was running and the air was heavy with fumes. Apparently, the butler said, she had tried to get out. The left front door of the auto was open and her body slumped half-way out. She was unconscious.

Dr. Marr Testifies.

Dr. Marr testified that he was called and that he found the body still warm, although Mrs. Davidson apparently was dead by then. He said he had taken her to Moore County Hospital at Pinehurst and spent two hours vainly seeking to revive her.

Two hours of testimony brought out no other facts. The inquest adjourned at 5:30 p. m., and Coroner Fry, of Pinehurst, ordered resumption of hearings at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The body was taken to Powell's funeral Home at Southern Pine, six miles south of Pinehurst, pending final action by the coroner's jury.

Sister-in-Law Here.

Possessing only meager details of the tragic death of her sister-in-law, Miss Louise Davidson remained at the family home in Edgemoor, Md., yesterday and last night awaiting further word from her brothers, H. Bradley and Richard P. Davidson.

The latter informed her by long distance telephone, she said, that the former Eleva Idesta Statler came to her death by lingering in the garage while the automobile's engine was still running.

The Davidson home is at 7001 Fairfax road, Edgemoor.

Society sections of Washington, Pinehurst, New York and newspapers in other cities heralded the wedding January 3 of Eleva Idesta Statler, heiress to the hotel fortune, and Henry Bradley Davidson, jr., son of the prominent Capital realtor.

The ceremony was performed in Pinehurst at the home of Richard P. Davidson, who escorted the bride to the altar. It was he who gave out news of the tragedy at Pinehurst yesterday. He is the husband of the former Betty Hanna, granddaughter of the late Mark Hanna.

Mrs. Davidson's former home was in Buffalo.

Byrd Launches Second Attack On Works Bill

Urges End of 'Spending Orgy,' States Plan Can't Succeed.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Byrd, of Virginia, yesterday made his second assault on the Administration's $4,880,000,000 work relief bill, warning "the time has come to reduce the spending orgy at Washington."

Meanwhile, sentiment appeared to be growing for Byrd's amendment reducing the bill's appropriation to $1,880,000,000.

There was talk at the Capitol of a concerted drive for it, especially if the McCarran prevailing wage is kept in the bill. The Administration is opposed to the wage agreement, asserting it would wreck the work relief program, and a bill reduced to $1,880,000,000 still would carry enough funds to provide continuance of the dole.

Byrd's first attack was a speech on the Senate floor. His new one was in a statement to newspapermen.

"The plan to revive prosperity by expending borrowed public funds to construct public works," he said, "is not new and has never been successful in any country."

Virginia Tried It.

He said Virginia tried that plan 100 years ago and "the State still owes more than one-third of the debt then incurred, but the public works then constructed have long since passed away."

"From 1820 to 1861," he said, "Virginia issued State bonds for $33,000,000. This sum was mainly expended for the construction of canals and railroads and much smaller amounts for turnpikes and toll bridges. The projects were supposed to be self-liquidating.

"Today Virginia has left only the stock in the R. F. & P. Railroad, valued at $1,368,744. Nearly $13,000,000 of the original bonds are still outstanding. More than $100,000,000 of interest has been paid on these bonds. At the conclusion of the War Between the States, when Virginia was devastated like France and Belgium in the late war and West Virginia was taken by force of arms, Virginians found themselves saddled with a huge bonded indebtedness for public works which had even then become nearly valueless. Undismayed by this staggering debt and despite our impoverished condition, to the eternal honor of Virginia this dabt was financed without repudiation by sacrifices nearly as great as the war itself.

Huge Debt Rise Feared.

"National prosperity never can be restored by a public works program on borrowed money. If the pending $5,000,000,000 public works bill is passed, the Federal debt will increase to the extent of $18,000,000,000 in five years.

"Virginia's share of this public debt incurred since the beginning of the depression will be $500,000,000. It is in fact more, because Virginia is the seventh tax-paying State in the Union and pays more Federal taxes than 15 other States.

"I am opposed to mortgaging the future welfare of our children, grandchildren and even generations to come. The time has come to reduce the spending orgy at Washington and to install economy, efficiency and simplicity in our public affairs."

Sportsman Testifies Emerson Agreed to Give Wife Freedom

Said He Would Step Aside to Make Way for Love, Court Is Told.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 27.—Barton Sewell, millionaire sportsman, avoided relating some of the oft-told spicy details of an asserted exchange of wives with Walter Emerson, actor-writer, when his turn came today to testify in Emerson's divorce suit.

Sewell has been named corespondent by Emerson, whose wife, Mrs. Jane Emerson, socialite, countered with a cross complaint naming Mrs. Leah C. Sewell as corespondent.

The alleged exchange of mates occurred following a beach party last November.

When Sewell came up to that point in his testimony he asked:

"Do you want me to go into the details of—of—uh, what has been told so many times here?"

He referred to Mrs. Emerson's previous testimony that he and she were in one bedroom during the night while Mrs. Sewell and Emerson were in another, adjoining.

"If what has already been told us is according to fact, you may so testify, and spare us the details," the court instructed.

"I so testify," Sewell replied, blinking.

He said the following day all four persons returned to the city together. Shortly afterward, he said, he and the Emersons met in the home of a mutual friend.

This was the afternoon of November 28.

"I told Walter I was in love with Jane," Sewell said, in a low voice. "He said he had been aware of that for some time, and said he had been unhappy for several years in his married life. He told us that under the circumstances he would step aside and let us go with each other as we saw fit."

"And what was the atmosphere during all this?"

"Very cordial. I might say exceptionally agreeable."

"Did you and Emerson shake hands when you left?"

"We did."

Fritz refused to say whether he had accepted.

Kaiser Draws Death Sentence In Slaying Here

To Die in Chair April 26; 'I Expected That,' Doomed Man Tells Court.

"I expected that," Harrison McKinley Kaiser, convicted slayer of James P. Morgan, said yesterday, as Justice James M. Proctor, in the District Supreme Court, sentenced him to death by electrocution.

Kaiser, a small man with a thin, eager face, stepped jauntily to the elevator and was carried down to the cell block in the courthouse, from whence he was taken to the "death row" at the District Jail. Unless the Appellate Court reverses his conviction he will never again see the outside world.

Justice Proctor directed that Kaiser should be electrocuted April 26. Kaiser maintained an air of indifference throughout proceedings.

The charge against Kaiser was that he waited in ambush for Morgan, against whom he held a more or less imaginary grievance. Kaiser believed, the Government testimony indicated, that Morgan could help him to win reinstatement in the Navy Yard, where Morgan was an official of the machinists' union. He shot Morgan five times in the back as the latter emerged from his Jocelyn street home.

Prisoner Takes Stand to Deny Killing In-Law

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 27.—Alexander B. Morris, 39, East Rockingham Mountain resident and former foreman at the Grottoes CCC camp, went on trial for his life in Rockingham Circuit Court today charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Henry Raines, 52, last November 9.

Raines' body was found at the home of Mrs. Hattie Via, 3 miles east of Port Republic. There was a wound over his eye. He died of a skull fracture.

Morris and Raines had been together at the Via home and left. Morris returned soon afterward, said he found Haines drunk on a path and asked if the man could be brought in for the night. Mrs. Via said she did not see Raines until the following morning, when she discovered the body.

The State charges Morris and Raines fought over moonshine liquor. The defense contends there was no motive, as Morris was on good terms with Raines.

At., Pac. & Gulf Oil Held Insolvent

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Feb. 27—The Atlantic, Pacific & Gulf Oil Co. and all but one of its five subsidiaries are hopelessly insolvent, E. E. Amick, temporary trustee, asserted today in a statement filed with Judge Albert L. Reeves in Federal court here.

He recommended the immediate liquidation of the parent company and all the subsidiaries except the Pennsylvania Consumers Oil Co.

The other subsidiaries are the Atlantic, Pacific & Gulf Refining Co., the Pennsylvania Petroleum Co., the Orient Petroleum Co. of Illinois, Inc., and the Plass Engineering Corporation.

The oil group went into Federal receivership in December, 1931, and was granted permission last June to attempt a reorganization under the recent amendment to the Federal bankruptcy law. Judge Reeves had set today for the trustee's report.

Jury Tampering Rumors Sifted.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27.—Following rumors of attempts to reach members of the jury sitting in liquor violations, Judge Frank G. Wagaman from the bench today asked jurors if they had been approached. None responded and the court said he assumed the rumors were false.

Cuba Boils Again.

Reports of increasing social and political difficulties in Cuba do not come as a surprise. The instability of the Mendieta government, together with the economic plight of the people, has kept the island in a state of unrest in spite of conscientious efforts to establish a new order. During the last few days that unrest has been manifested in an island-wide school strike, agitation for a general strike of labor and four cabinet changes.

Apparently President Mendieta has made an earnest struggle to restore constitutional government in Cuba. But he is confronted by tremendous obstacles, beside which the strong diplomatic support accorded him by Washington is relatively powerless. A few months after he took office he lost the support of the powerful ABC group. Since then his original cabinet has gradually disintegrated. The revolutionary factions which overthrew Machado find it difficult to agree among themselves as to the future course of Cuba. And so long as dissension continues it disheartens the people, discourages essential reforms and stimulates revolt.

Failure of the Mendieta government to bring about elections is a source of criticism. Yet in the present state of the public mind political contests might easily lead to grave disturbances. It seems questionable whether an election could be safely held under the impending threat of strikes and further revolution. But if it is not held political tension may be accentuated.

So long as the Platt amendment remained in effect it was easy to blame the United States for a great deal of the turmoil in Cuba. Since that treaty has been abrogated and a liberal trade agreement with the Havana government has substantially improved the economic situation, it is apparent that Cuba's maladjustments run deep into her own political structure.

President Mendieta is trying to heal the wounds of the Machado period and the revolution by a conciliatory policy, as indicated by his selection of former President Grau San Martin's undersecretary of state to fill the most important post in his cabinet. There is still hope that he will succeed. But his outlook is not so promising that our Department of State can afford to stake all its cards on his chances.

The Passing Fraternity.

It is a matter of some comment in college circles that the fraternity is on the wane. Only recently Alpha Delta Phi, the oldest fraternity at Yale, voted to terminate its existence after 98 years of colorful participation in the life of the university. Likewise, the New Haven chapters of Psi Upsilon and Beta Theta Pi are continuing only on greatly modified programs. It is generally agreed that the new "house plan" at Yale hastened the disintegration of these venerable institutions, but indications throughout the college scene point to a general decline in fraternity interest.

A recent poll among college editors on the question of the future of fraternities indicated that enthusiasm is progressively declining, particularly on the Eastern campus. Evidences of such disaffection are less apparent in the South and West, these differences in undergraduate sentiment being explained by the almost universal pattern of coeducation in these areas that stimulates a higher demand for social centers which the fraternity (and the sorority) fulfills.

For in recent days the fraternity has developed into little more than a social club. First conceived as literary or scholastic societies, almost all have fallen away from their original constitutions until now only the barest vestiges of such purposes can be discerned in their activities. The notable exception to this, of course, is the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, founded at William and Mary in 1776; which still stands as the preeminent national honorary scholastic organization. Similarly, technical and professional schools have a few fraternities that consider scholastic attainment primarily in their elections.

Having evolved, then, into social organizations, the fraternities are open to competition from the automobile with its tendency to decentralize social activities, from the moving picture and similar present-day distractions. To these, the depression has added another telling blow. The depleted purses of both the student and the alumnus, together with the more serious attitude toward higher education, have combined to further subdue the fraternity spirit.

Accordingly, the unnecessary luxuries of palatial houses, the outmoded entertainment of inane initiation ceremonies, the tedium of rituals—all are showing signs of disappearing. But for those who like to think of bright college years in terms of glamour and romance, there is no cause for despair. So long as young men are thrown together there will be steins on some table and good songs ringing clear. It always has been so and, we are assured, still is—with or without palatial houses.

At The Half-Way Mark.

The need for strong and purposeful leadership on the part of the Administration grows more apparent every day. It can not safely be withheld much longer. The bogging-down of the work-relief bill, uncertainty over the future of NRA, difficulties which have arisen with regard to the social security program, court decisions which now culminate in the adverse Weirton judgment on Section 7(a)—these are only high lights in the mass of evidence which shows that the ship of state is drifting amid stormy economic and political seas.

This growing realization comes with the more force because it has been so generally assumed that the Administration has a definite program which could be expected to arouse criticism and opposition, but would none the less be pursued by concrete steps leading to specific objectives. Aside from the restoration of commodity prices, which is a negative gain unless accompanied by a sustained increase in purchasing power, it is now none too easy to say what the recovery program is, or whether it is currently succeeding.

The absence of clear-cut policy has been strikingly demonstrated by two recent events. One is the way in which the slipshod work-relief bill has been subordinated to the secondary problem of what wages should be paid on the undefined projects proposed. It is very significant that the crisis should have arisen over the remuneration to be given rather than over the character of the work to be done. For this shows clearly that the pressure of groups is taking precedence over a program of national well-being. And such a development is only possible if the Administration is not able to make clear that there is a national policy more vital than the objectives of any special interests.

The other highly significant episode is the way in which the Administration has tossed the future of NRA into the lap of Congress without any strong recommendation on the line it wants to have followed. The basic principles of good government have here again been ignored. It would have been highly profitable to have had much more analysis and discussion of NRA before it was launched. But once approved and in operation such undertakings should not be subjected to arbitrary revisions except where shown to be either useless or socially harmful. The opinion of the legislator is most valuable at the outset, that of the administrator when the project is under way. The Roosevelt Administration has reversed that logical order. And in consequence we see a Congress which was at first shamefully subservient now jumping the traces at almost every legislative step.

The first half of Mr. Roosevelt's mandate is rapidly drawing to a close. Next Monday will mark the second anniversary of his inaugural. During these first two years it has been customary to refer scathingly to the shortcomings of those who had responsibility before his advent. Now, however, the time has come when results rather than recriminations are in order. For the latter are of no value in moving the wheels of industry, finding jobs for the unemployed, or helping the Nation to live within its means.

"Under the old order," said the President in August, 1933, "the social, the economic or the political life of the unit was drifting down hill through lack of action or because of adherence to old rules which had been promulgated to fit conditions of a bygone age."

Unless care is taken, unfriendly critics will have a case to say that the same is true under the New Deal. For there planned economy has not displaced adherence to the old rules of patronage, and there also the downhill drift in social, economic and political life is becoming all too apparent to even casual observers.

NRA And Congress.

Senator McCarran is reported to have said that "unless a satisfactory basis for NRA extension is laid by disinterested studies, and needed modifications are made in the present law, the Black 30-hour-week measure may completely displace the NRA."

It is doubtful whether any Senator who agrees with this opinion is himself sufficiently unbiased to attempt an objective study of the workings of NRA. The patent hostility of many of those who are demanding investigations and calling for amendments makes it only too likely that an effort will be made to amend the law in such a way as to whittle away the good while trying to eliminate the bad features.

In the first place the NRA has provided a reasonable alternative to a proposal such as the uniform 30-hour week, which would probably impose an intolerable strain upon industry and have disastrous consequences for labor. As it stands, the law permits hours of labor and rates of wages to be adapted to the requirements of different industries. Under intelligent administration the position of labor can thus be greatly improved without endangering employment opportunities. Such adaptability will be sacrificed, however, if legislators who share Senator McCarran's views are influential in shaping the recovery act.

Furthermore, substitution of a law governing hours of labor for one which covers a wide variety of organizing activities would involve a sacrifice of collective bargaining experiments which are in process of development. It would also necessitate abandonment of efforts to organize industries on a cooperative basis for the purpose of eliminating unfair trade practices. The work of code making is extremely difficult, and mistakes are unavoidable. Only by a process of trial and error, with freedom to order changes vested in the responsible administrators, will it be possible to reach satisfactory agreements on the innumerable controversial issues that confront organized industries.

Many failures can be debited to the account of the NRA, but it can also point to many positive achievements, as shown in the recently issued report of its research and planning division. The wise procedure for Congress, therefore, would be to suspend judgment until the present organization has shown whether it is capable of eliminating evils without sweeping away the structure in which so much effort is embodied. The time has not yet come to make radical amendments in an experimental piece of legislation like the NRA.

The Moral Is Plain.

At the end of 18 months the housing division of PWA has completed only three projects accommodating 124 families, although it has approved slum clearance undertakings which, if built, will cost over $121,000,000. Out of the original allotment of $150,000,000, however, actual disbursements have amounted to an insignificant sum—$2,500,000 for Federal projects and approximately $11,000,000 advanced in the form of loans or grants to limited dividend corporations.

This negligible achievement is by no means to the discredit of the PWA, since slum clearance and low-cost housing enterprises require very careful preliminary surveys. Otherwise the money will almost certainly be dissipated, with little gain to anybody except real estate speculators and a few contractors.

It would be a mistake, therefore, to underestimate the importance of the demand for construction materials and labor created by the $100,000,000 in housing projects which the PWA states it may have under way by next August. Unfortunately, there is no present assurance that these plans will come to fruition, since the funds with which to begin construction have nearly vanished. The FERA, it appears, has borrowed $95,000,000 from the housing division of the PWA to tide it over the existing emergency. Until that loan is repaid the PWA housing program will have to be held in abeyance. With the work-relief bill held up by the wrangle in the Senate, it is evident that, at best, the program will be hampered. And the longer the stalemate between Congress and the Administration continues, the greater will be the delay in getting new enterprises started.

The carefully advertised embarrassment of the housing division of PWA is an especially flagrant, but nevertheless typical, instance of the kind of difficulties created by the irresponsible way in which Government funds have been shifted by executive orders to meet immediate needs, leaving other projects "in the air." The PWA, for instance, has advanced large sums for the initiation of various kinds of public works that can not be completed unless or until Congress votes new appropriations for the purpose. Such practices are worse than irresponsible. They create a situation which makes it virtually impossible for the legislators to exercise their constitutional control over executive outlays.

The tangle in which the housing program has become involved should of itself prove the need for planning a spending program in advance and providing funds sufficient to finance that program to completion. In face of the record it is amazing that Congress should be urged to approve a blanket type of work-relief bill on the plea that it would encourage a speeding up of housing activities and take workers off the dole.

The bill must contain specifications showing the nature of the projects to be undertaken, accompanied by careful estimates of costs. It is no longer questionable that the country needs adequate safeguards against the wastes of planless spending.

Cogs Into Cowls.

A New York secretarial school is now incorporating in its curriculum a course for beautifying the secretary's speech. While admitting that typing and the mastery of such weird symbols as the oo-hook are essential fundamentals of a stenographic education, this school nevertheless believes that it is high time business girls were learning to speak in a "low, sweet voice."

Miss Dorothie Bigelow, the teacher, blames most of the "terrible twang" of modern secretaries on a deafness resulting from continuous shouting and being shouted at. In installing this study, she is evidently going on the theory that the wheels of commerce will run smoother if oiled with honey.

There is no doubt that such training is needed. The results will determine its practicability. But in conjunction with this speech purge it might be a good idea to let each pupil pick some actress whose diction she particularly admires and have her own voice modeled accordingly. Then when calling an employment agency, the big butter and egg man could specify his choice thus: "She must be able to take 90 words a minute and answer the telephone like Kit Cornell."

It is impossible to judge aforetime just how far this new venture will go toward revolutionizing business. But it's safe to guess that even the hackneyed "he's in conference" will take on a different and more welcome sound when spoken in the dulcet tones of a Cowl.

"The depression is at the surface simply the absence of profitability over a wide range of actual or potential economic enterprise."—Sir Arthur Salter. London fog at its worst.

Now and then we sit down and wonder if Albert Einstein and Amelia Earhart comb their hair with the same type eggbeater.

Exceptions To The Rule.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Mr. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co., says that men will not work except for profit, either in war or peace times, he must have forgotten the heroic deeds of soldiers, sailors and marines in the World War. Many of these men gave their lives cheerfully, and others risked theirs knowing full well the risk they ran; and in peaceful pursuits men have done the same.

We have but to call to his attention such men as Henry M. Stanley, in Africa; Dr. Reed, after whom the Walter Reed Hospital was named; Dr. Steinmetz, of the General Electric Co., and the great number of scientists in physics and chemistry, who have sacrificed their lives or given their whole active lives for the sheer love of their work, impelled by a sense of duty to humanity.

Of course, in all fairness to Mr. Grace, it can not be said that munitions manufacturers were the only profiteers in the World War. It was my personal observation that many employes, particularly in the building of cantonments and munition plants, were also "unconscionable profiteers." It is my impression that the manufacturer and worker got his while the getting was good.

And it does come with ill grace from a man who was paid so handsomely during the World War to have regrets about the veterans asking for a bonus. I say this, too, while being of the opinion that the veterans are not acting wisely in demanding the bonus.

I can only wonder whether Mr. Grace has ever thought George Washington worked for profit during the Revolutionary War, or Robert E. Lee and U. S. Grant in the Civil War. GROVER AYERS.

Men Wanted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At this time, when so many men need work, why can not some extra men be placed in the Eighth and H streets northeast postoffice. The men stationed there do their best and give excellent service but can not wait on the crowds that stand in line. This morning I saw two girls go away not waited on and an old lady and myself also had to give up and leave without being able to send our packages.

This was unfortunate in my case because my package was important and should have been sent out immediately, but I grew so tired that I could wait no longer.

Feeling The Pinch.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The farmers last year received an estimated $1,000,000,000 more under the New Deal than in 1933. With the rising cost of living, it gradually dawns on the city dweller that the agricultural adjustment act is largely a case of robbing Peter Townsman to pay Paul Farmer.

This might be tolerable, when one envisions the small farmer trying to grub a living from the ground for himself and family. But, according to Federal statistics, more than 40 per cent of our farms are worked by tenant farmers. Thus a vast percentage of our farms merely represents capital—the investment of the man living in the city and drawing his dividend, when possible, from his farm investment.

It is a known fact that the great majority of business ventures fail, and the townsman loses his savings. But a sentiment seems to prevail that the farmer, regardless of his possible inefficiency, must by Government aid be prevented from failing. In other words, all farmers, good and bad, capable and incapable, must be assured success in their business ventures, though the business man, small and large, fail.

If the Government in a high-handed way is to secure "justice" for the farmer, let us be sure that the poor city worker is not being robbed in order to increase the earnings of capital, merely because it is invested in farm lands.

And, if we are going to continue the new distribution of wealth, let us make it broad enough to provide for the 2,000,000 and more farm laborers, the poorest paid workers in America, that the prospering farmers shall pass on some of the Federal bounty.

The Man Beethoven.

To the Eidtor of The Post—Sir: A recent editorial in The Post, on Beethoven, mentions new manuscripts found, including one with a title of whimsical humor. The musical world will be interested.

As to humor, Beethoven's sense of humor was not especially subtle in appeal, shown frequently in jovial letters to friends. Also in his music a ponderous, elephantine humor exists at times. A disposition, somber and even severe—home cares, isolation, deafness—beneath a rough husk was much kindness. Under inspiration, in a state of exaltation, he seemed out of the world. To disturb at this time gave a shock, like sudden awakening from sound sleep.

Beethoven had no time to be admired as a celebrity, for casual conversation, or to hear numerous infant prodigies, for whom fond mothers demanded compliments. At opportune times and when properly introduced, Beethoven was a courteous and considerate host, as the following contemporaries testify:

Edward Schultz, a German by name, though an Englishman, visited Beethoven in September, 1823. Introduced through a friend of Beethoven, the approach was not difficult: "He looked at me rather sternly at first, but immediately shook me by the hand. He understood me very well, if I addressed him slowly, or in loud tones. I dined with him later in a romantic valley called 'Das Helenenthal.' I can not describe to you with what pathos, and I may say sublimely, he spoke of Handel's 'Messiah.' The friendly manner with which he treated me and bade me farewell has left an impression which will remain with me for life."

A Much-Needed Gesture.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you kindly publish on your editorial page advice as to the proper method to pursue in joining the campaign against the "Pink Slip" tax publicity rule? It seems a very much-needed gesture, and should be done quickly.

Noiseless Noise Advocate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No noise known to cilivilization rivals the hideous signals employed by the local fire department in search of its foe. The siren of the ambulance may rank second, but it lacks the volume.

When Mulciber conceived his temple of Pandemonium he was limited for discord to the shrieking banshee, the wailing wraith, the laughing hyena and howling execrations of disappointed ambition.

A professor from a technology institute at Hoboken is worthy of decoration as king commander of all the Brain Trusters and should be commandeered for duty in our lovely Capital forthwith. He addressed a conference at New Haven the other day at which he declared "inaudible sounds" are now readily at hand. Symptoms of fear and joy may be attained by the mere use of different pitches of sound. Pitch, quality, nuance and intensity all may be produced. For him I suggest the supreme command of all fire apparatus and ambulance cars in Washington.

Emergency calls for duty under the direction of this gentleman will then become lullabies and our citizens of good conscience will soon know the meaning of a refreshing night's sleep. JOSEPH A. CONRY.

The "Big Gun" Remedy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the letter in The Post of February 25 regarding the disarming of the underworld, why is not the suggestion some time ago in The Post by Robert Quillen that it be made unlawful to manufacture firearms under, say, two feet long a good one? In that case concealed weapons would be an impossibility and lawabiding citizens, at least, would be able to see their opponent's weapon.

Companions In Darkness.

"Talking books" for the blind, books of stories, poems and Biblical literature recorded clearly by trained readers on phonograph disks, are available through libraries for the blind; they may be borrowed and mailed without charge. Each record plays for half an hour; a novel of 80,000 words can be reproduced on a dozen disks. The Library of Congress has funds for the manufacture of these talking books. To transform the silent disks into companions for reading aloud, a reading machine has also been made on which the records are played. With about 24 different talking books available, ranging in subject from the Psalms to many modern stories, the problem now is to provide reading machines for those of the blind who can not buy them. The American Foundation for the Blind, in whose laboratories the talking books and the reading machine were developed, comes to the public for aid. The association sells the machines for the cost of making them, $42. Its appeal is for funds to put the reading machines into the homes of 2,500 blind persons in the New York area, and eventually to provide 10,000 machines for the blind in other parts of the country. It is a simple and effective scheme for relieving one of the most pitiable consequences of blindness.

The Post Impressionist

Finite Infinity.

Post Office, Thursday.

THUS, in effect, for the current issue of an eminently modernistic review of modern literature, writes an equally eminent admirer of everything modern:

"Above all, it is the suppression of the finite verb and of conjunctions—or at least their reduction to the extremest requirements of clarity—which, together with the flow-of-consciousness formula and that formula's employment of the present tense, characterizes and vivifies the styles of both American and English fiction in our day, distinguishing it from every other."

This revelation thrills the Post-Impressionist. It particularly thrills him because it justifies his enthusiasm for an author he has lately been reading. An author whom he has for some weeks believed worthy of general recognition. An author whose modernism the Column—having now high authority for so doing—begs to present to its readers.

Could the following description be more vivid? And could it, preserving clarity, contain fewer finite verbs?

"Washington. Congress in session for the winter term and the Speaker sitting in his high-backed chair. As much dampness in the streets as if the waters had but newly retired from the face of the earth, and it would not be wonderful to meet a Megalosaurus waddling up Pennsylvania avenue. Automobiles splashed to their very tops. Foot-passengers jostling one another in a general infection of ill-temper.

"Fog everywhere. Fog up the river, where it flows among green aits and meadows; fog down the river, where it rolls defiled among the shipping. Fog on the Maryland marshes, fog on the Virginia heights. Fog creeping into the cabins of locomotives in the Union Station yards. Chance people on the bridges peeping over the parapets into a nether sky of fog, with fog all round them, as if they were up in a plane in the misty clouds."

Or could there be fewer conjunctions, for the sake of the sense, than in this next passage picturing a certain legal figure and his habitat which should be familiar to every Washingtonian?

"Here he is today, quiet at his table. An oyster of the old school whom nobody can open.

"Like as he is to look at, so is his apartment in the dusk of the present afternoon. Rusty, out of date, withdrawing from attention, able to afford it. Heavy, broad-backed, old-fashioned mahogany and horsehair chairs, not easily lifted, obsolete tables with spindle legs. . . Everything that can have a lock has got one; no key is visible."

He is working out some problem, its factors represented by bits of sealing-wax and other articles on his desk. He moves them about. And our author thus vividly describes the game in the best Twentieth Century flow of consciousness manner:

"The red bit, the black bit, the inkstand top, the other inkstand top. So! You to the middle, you to the right, you to the left. This train of indecision must surely be worked out now or never.—Now!"

And mark how, in the hands of a genuine artist, the modern method of sentence-construction—which grizzled old fogies call sentence-destruction—gives the sense of motion to the lawyer's progress:

He goes "to H street. To Black's Stationery, Loose-leaf Blank Books, Paper, Paper Products, 'If it's paper we've got it,' etc., etc., etc."

The modern style moves to drama the dry bones of even the most trivial incident.

Here is our lawyer at the stationer's. He is greeted by a clerk, one Brown. And the modernist again adds the present tense to his artistry:

"Black in?"

"Black is in, and Brown will get him. Black disappears, glad to be out of the store . . .

"Mr. Black appears: greasy, warm, herbaceous and chewing. Spits out a bit of gum."

This 1935 manner of writing lends force even to social satire—makes the most effective sort of radical propaganda:

"There are ladies and gentlemen . . . for whom everything must be languid and pretty. Who have found out the perpetual stoppage . . . Who are not to be disturbed by ideas. On whom even the Fine Arts, attending in powder and walking backward . . . must array themselves in the milliners' and tailors' patterns of past generations and be particularly careful not to be in earnest, or to receive any impress from the moving age."

We won't conceal the name of this modernist master, or of his novel, any longer. Indeed, we have changed only some of his punctuation, a noun or two . . .

The novel is "Bleak House."
The author is C. Dickens.
And the date is 1853.

Conundrum Of Cuba Is Still Unanswered

Evidences Of Economic Improvement Coincide With A Darkening Political Outlook.

By Paul Vanorden Shaw.

Mr. Shaw, a well-known student of Latin-American problems, has recently returned from a visit to Mexico and Cuba. Conditions in the former country were discussed by him on this page yesterday. Today our correspondent examines the Cuban situation, where antagonism to the Mendieta regime is obviously increasing.

THERE are signs that the economic condition of Cuba has improved in the last 12 months. There are more new cars on the streets, omnibuses have been painted, thoroughfares are cleaner, the soldiers wear new uniforms, and the circus has drawn larger audiences. Furthermore, as compared with just a year ago, the general atmosphere is clearer, even though the political situation is actually darker. Questions of American recognition and the presence of our battleships do not disturb the peace of mind and the thinking of Cubans. And there are many who believe that an economic revival of Cuba will ensue as soon as the burning political questions of the day are on the way to a solution.

How much of the economic improvement discernible is due to the trade agreement which went into effect in the early days of September, or to measures adopted by all the governments which succeeded that of Machado, or to certain world-wide upward trends, it is difficult to determine. The truth, perhaps, is that all three have converged to stimulate activity and to inject a little life into a body which was moribund, and in which the only change possible was one for the better. Cuba could hardly have sunk any lower than she was a year ago.

Many results optimistically attributed to the trade agreement have little or no foundation in fact. It has been asserted in the United States that the great increases in exports of American goods to Cuba were the first fruits of the new reciprocity treaty and that they foreshadowed the restoration of Cuba as an important buyer in American markets. Assuming that this condition reveals an increase in the purchasing power of the islanders it would follow that this new style of commercial internationalism is productive and mutually beneficial.

IN THE first place, the trade agreement is still too recent for the alluring statistics of its first few months of operation to mean anything as portending a definite movement. In the office of the United States Commercial Attache in Havana much satisfaction with the results obtained thus far was evident. But it was learned that the enormous increases in exports to Cuba in recent months represented not an increase in the normal flow of trade between the two countries, but the sudden loosening of a flood of commodities which had been held up and stored in New York pending the signing of the new treaty.

Wise and farsighted Cuban importers had held off until advantage could be taken of the new tariff rates. And though the American attache believes that the new "normal" will be higher than the old, as a result of the trade agreement, there are many who disagree with him and who assert that any improvement in Cuba will be due as much to internal measures as to outside aid.

The governments of de Cespedes, Grau San Martin and Mendieta have all contributed one or more measures which have altered the internal situation. The number of soldiers and government employes, and the salaries of the latter, have been increased. Under the 50 per cent nationalization law of Grau, many Cubans have been put to work in the place of foreigners. The amount of silver in circulation was augmented by an act of Martinez Saenz when he was minister of finance. Furthermore, the Mendieta government has declared a moratorium on all debts. This stopped the drainage of gold from the country and released for the purchase of necessities and luxuries millions of dollars which otherwise would not be circulated in the island today.

Only now are benefits from some of the measures adopted during the Grau regime beginning to show results and to distinguish these from those of the trade agreement is well-nigh impossible.

OPINION on the question varies, falling into two classes. The same question was put to all. Those who spoke favorably of the trade agreement were almost all Spaniards, Americans or Cubans related to foreign commercial interests. Those who denied that the trade agreement had brought about any improvements in their businesses were those who cater to the average man and woman, and dispassionate and passionate Cubans. The latter are moved by a deep anti-Americanism, and their testimony must be discounted.

Rather than accept as conclusive the opinion of any group, I made, with the assistance of Cubans whose dress and speech would not set those interviewed on their guard, an investigation in shops and stores in and outside of Havana. Here any real improvement in the lot of the average Cuban would be automatically registered. The question, "Como van las cosas?"—How are things getting along—was always put by one of the Cubans as a matter of conversation while some small purchase was being made. The replies were instinctive and uncalculated. All showed that no matter who had benefited at the top the conditions of the masses was still far from showing any measurable improvement.

In one little shop outside of Havana, in a town where vegetables and fruits for export are grown, I observed, while my Cuban assistant was buying a package of cigarettes, two scenes which perhaps can be duplicated in every town and small store in all of Cuba. In the first instance a ragged urchin, smoking a long cigarette, came in and put down four cents for a few grains of corn, and in a second a little girl with a small can in her hand asked for a few cents' worth of lard. When the lard was ready, she unrolled from a large dirty kerchief the few centavos she had been intrusted with and gave them to the clerk. Drug store and grocery store owners and other retailers tell the same story of small and insignificant purchases.

INDIRECT evidence that none of the measures taken either by the Cubans themselves, or by the United States, has really produced any radical and fundamental change in the underlying situation came from an off-the-record interview with Col. Fulgencio Batista.

Though the bombings may have become something of a racket and though communism may flourish from artificial causes, they would never end, it was agreed, until the workers of Cuba had homes, clothing, milk for the children and medical care for the tubercular. It seemed evident to me that the colonel believed that the only way, ultimately and definitely, to end the surface strife was to change the conditions which produced hunger, homelessness and despair. Furthermore, I judge that he does not believe that any of the measures taken thus far go deep enough.

On the other hand, there were many who expressed themselves somewhat optimistically as to the general outlook. They believed that as soon as the political problems of Cuba can be solved many constructive forces now pent up will be released and that these will redound to the benefit of all Cubans.

Physicians Denied Parking Privilege

Reserved Space at Offices Refused by Hagerstown.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27.—Special parking privileges for physicians were denied, and they will have to take their chances of finding a place to park in front of their offices the same as any other person, the board of street commissioners announced.

A petition signed by 20 physicians asking exclusive parking rights in front of their offices had been presented the board after one physician had been tagged for violating the new traffic ordinance.

The physicians contended that in order to properly serve humanity they must have ready access to their cars. Physicians now have the exclusive privilege of parking between 1 and 4 a. m. while on calls.

Old Dutch Bible Shown at Library

Book at Warrenton Published in 16th Century.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 27.—A Dutch Bible, thought to be the oldest of its kind in this section, is on exhibit at the Warrenton Library.

The old book, in an excellent state of preservation, has a back of wood, covered over with leather, and trimmed with hand-made metal ornaments, hinges, etc. A foreword bears the date of July 29, 1637.

The Bible was given the library by the late Mrs. Wirton Matthews, who made her home at Creedmore, near Warrenton, many years. The Bible came to her in direct descent from her father's family, of Dutch origin. Mrs. Matthews, being the last of her family, donated the old volume to the library and with it a display case. The book was said to have been published in 1500.

Hungary Is Swept By Grippe Epidemic

Budapest, Feb. 27 (AP).—An epidemic of grippe temporarily crippled many communities throughout Hungary today. At Sopron, near the Austrian frontier, all schools were closed and 80 per cent of the workers in some factories were absent because of illness.

Madrid, Feb. 27 (AP).—The zoo was decimated today by the influenza epidemic which has been causing great suffering throughout Spain. An elephant, lion, polar bear, zebra, llama, camel and a kangaroo died.

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

The Message Controller.

IT is seldom that we don't pick up something of educational value out of our national controversies. Take the big controversy over the $5,000,000,000 works bill, for example. We have learned already who is the undisputed message controller of this country. By this we mean the man who has absolute control over the turning on and turning off of the message flow of indignant citizens to their Senators and Representatives. There has always been some doubt about the matter. There is none now. It is unquestionably Father Coughlin.

BARGERON.

There was a question as to whether it was not Mr. William Randolph Hearst or Huey Long. The three cooperated in the great World Court message outpouring and there was such a deluge of messages as our Representatives and Senators had never seen before.

• • • •

It followed that after this the supporters of each of these three men would insist it was his hero who was responsible, he who so successfully tapped the message-sending reservoir of the country. But Mr. Hearst is now eliminated.

In the matter of sending messages to the Representatives and Senators demanding they support the President on the works bill, Mr. Hearst has given his voice but there has been no response. He issued the call the day after the bill got caught in a jam and was sent back to the committee. Come on, he demanded in words of bold type on his front pages, telegraph your Representatives and Senators to get behind the President and away from the demagogues. All Hearst followers knew this front page pronouncement was official. There was no mistaking its authenticity.

And it is not to be said there was not a quiver among the country's message-senders. One would imagine, in fact, that there was, that the mesage-senders gave a quick start like the firemen when they hear the first clang of the bells. But then, when the master's call didn't follow, it is clearly apparent they returned to their games of checkers.

Of course, this elimination of Mr. Hearst does not eliminate Huey. But no good can be accomplished in trying to determine who, between him and Fathe. Coughlin, is the message controller. They work together. Huey, at this stage of the game at least, would not think of stepping out and issuing the call for messages without Father Coughlin's approval. It may be, in fact, that the orders of this firm read that no mesage call signed by Huey is good unless it is countersigned by Father Coughlin.

The question naturally arises as to why Mr. Hearst got himself out on a limb in this matter, why he put himself in a position where the whole country could see he was not the message controller. After the World Court episode many people insisted it was Mr. Hearst. Others said, naw, it was Father Coughlin, and still others said naw, naw, it was Huey. The point is that many said it was Mr. Hearst.

Nobody will give him the credit now.

• • • •

Obviously he should have conferred with Huey and the Father before he issued this call, or with the Father alone, which would have been quite sufficient. He should have called him on the telephone and asked, "How about another message call?"

Methinks, when he moved into this firm on the World Court enterprise, he assumed that he moved in as the head. He probably had no understanding of this kind. It was just his assumption. It is perfectly clear now he was wrong.

He ran out on the occasion of the works bill and barked, and then sat back confident the message flow had been turned on. But the message senders, although stirred, realized on second thought this was not their master's voice. If Mr. Hearst wants to carry weight with message senders, he will have to learn to imitate the Father's radio voice.

No End of Books

Garden Lore And Garden Pictures For Readers Already Itching For Trowel and Rake.

By Theodore Hall.

SAID H. L. Mencken once (and some day I'll have to make a concordance of my favorite provider of springboard texts): "The great majority of human beings apprehend beauty as a spookish and sinister enemy to the serious business of living, and they avoid it instinctively, with all the earnest watchfulness they give to the avoidance of truth." The remark, quoted by Louise Seymour Jones, gets the good lady's dander up.

"That beauty is a vital part of life, only a Mencken would deny," she replies tartly. Dear me!—such a denial is the very last thing he meant, isn't it? But then Mr. Mencken said to himself in his youth: "See here, Henry, never let me catch you coming out flat for sweetness and light!"

Not so with Mrs. Jones, I'm afraid. In her little book, "Who Loves a Garden" (very nicely printed by the Primavera Press, Los Angeles, $2.50), it is such passages as this which leave me queasy and restive: "Among the winsome delights of life, the nameless thrills that lurk in bouquets are some of our most cherished memories." But we can easily forgive these "garden-is-a-lovesome-thing" cadenzas, and enjoy the rest of Mrs. Jones' mellowed notes and anecdotes on gardens and gardeners in history.

Here's Lady Mary Wortley Montague, 60 years old, up at 6 in the morning to weed the garlic out of the plot before the Italian castle she bought for £100. Here's the poet, Cowper—with no garden of his own, he had his writing-study (an old sedan chair) set where he could peer out at his neighbor's roses. We read of the mathematical gardens of Cyrus the Great; of the Elizabethan custom of paying rent by a rose a year (William Penn rented out a house in Pennsylvania at the same pleasant rent); of Ireland's patron saint of gardens, St. Fiacre, who, by odd chance, is the patron saint of cab drivers in France.

Mrs. Jones has been gathering her garden lore for 20 years. You'll find her book very engaging, indeed, so long as you aren't given to squirming at oversweetness. Refreshing dash of lime juice is provided by Theophile Gautier, who hated the tendency of gardeners to lay a constant improving hand on nature, and hung up this sign before his woodland: "All gardeners are prohibited from entering here."

• • • •

BUT the photographs of sylvan loveliness on page 11 of the next book beside me—a flower-brimmed brook made out of an old drianage ditch in Englewood—would have made Gautier rise up and bless the gardener's hand.

The 1935 annual of "Gardens and Gardening" (The Studio, paper, $3.50; cloth, $4.50) takes us in sumptuous fashion on a tour of gardens all over this country and Europe.

A cliff garden in Manchester-by-the-Sea (planted by men let down in ropes—ah, the dear ingenuity of America!), alpine plants beside a Vienna week-end guest house, pergola of gourds on an English country place, rose tree and cut box at Florence, rioting vines above checker-board benches in Seville, trailing junipers on a wall in Sweden—here we have the international gardeners' havens in extraordinarily handsome photographs.

Nothing could show the impertinence of alarums without better than a scene from Berlin—a high flag-stone terrace, backed by what adepts call an herbaceous border, surmounted by a vine-clad post holding a bird-feeding platform, and inclosing a plot of smooth lawn on which white rabbits gambol!

After this pictorial tour, certain high chiefs of the gardening clan take up and dilate upon the growing of chrysanthemums (known about 400 B. C. in the Far East, 1687 in Holland and 1754 in England—where there were only 12 varieties by 1820); the use of ferns in gardens (we have 165 varieties to choose from); the herbaceous border (perennials whose ancestors lined the vegetable gardens of monasteries), and the spring-blooming garden. All these topics are illustrated in a way to strike the garden lover pink with envy. In fact, if you haven't got a plot of land to work upon you're going to find this a dangerous and unsettling book.

F. A. Mercer, the editor of this annual, complains in the preface that nobody seems to give him any criticisms—all he gets is flattery. I've only one point to make, one which Mrs. Jones stresses by calling it "hiring someone else to eat one's cake." Almost all these gardens have been laid out by professionals—it would be interesting to see a bit more of the results a man can get for himself without the opulence implied.

But beyond this, I'm very much inclined to believe that eulogy for a valuable and handsome work is all that Mr. Mercer and the studio should have.

Cruise Books

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

WHEN we prepare to undergo a major operation, we take an anesthetic. When we prepare for a pleasant experience, we should take just the opposite of an anesthetic, for we wish to have our minds stimulated by knowledge and our senses made as keen as possible.

To all those who are now preparing for spring, summer or autumn travel in Europe, I should like to recommend some books that are at once entertaining reading and excellent tourist-teachers, so that the traveler on the deck of an ocean liner may have something attractive to read and may also whet his curiosity about the places he is to see in Europe.

• • • •

As I have said before in this column, there is one English author who seems to be ideally fitted for this combination of diversion and instruction. His name is H. V. Morton and I recommend four of his books as indispensable—"In Search of England," "In Search of Ireland," "In Search of Scotland" and for those who are taking the Mediterranean cruise, "In the Steps of the Master."

Clara Laughlin has performed immense services to American tourists abroad by her series of publications in handy form, called "So You're Going to France" or wherever it may be. J. B. Priestley's book, "English Journey," will familiarize the American with the differences that distinguish one part of England from another.

There is a book, "Italy on Fifty Dollars," which will be of great help to those of extremely slender means. I can not at this moment remember the name of the author, but any good librarian or bookshop will tell you. The same author has written similar books for other countries.

• • • •

In addition to the guidebooks, if one plans to spend some time in England, one would do well to read the novels of Thomas Hardy for the southwestern part, the novels of Sheila Kaye-Smith for Sussex, those of Charlotte and Emily Bronte for Yorkshire, the poetry of Wordsworth for the northwestern countries.

Very few American travelers except those who travel in their own motor cars ever study the maps of the countries they visit. They should not only study them, they should learn them so thoroughly that they know where the different counties, provinces, towns, cities, etc., are situated.

Insanity Issue Defense's Hope

Few Questions as State Begins Murder Case Against Utley.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 27.—The defense of Morris T. Utley, on trial for the slaying of Charles Schimunek, indicated today it would base its case principally on an insanity plea. The first 16 prosecution witnesses left the stand with little cross-examination.

Utley's attorneys, at his arraignment, had entered a plea of "not guilty" by reason of insanity and today questioned only Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, post-morten physician, and Oliver von Hagel, manager of the chain store where Schimunek worked.

Conviction of first degree murder was asked by the State as the trial opened. Utley, a former hospital orderly and native of Richmond, Va., was arrested in Lancaster, Pa., two days after Schimunek was fatally wounded in the store February 11.

Von Hagel testified that Utley came into the store early that morning with a cocked gun in his hand and announced "this is a stickup."

Conspiracy Trials Delay Is Expected

Virginia Cases Due to Be Heard in July.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 27.—Bonds supplied by all 34 defendants named in a blanket conspiracy indictment returned by a Federal grand jury at Harrisonburg recently are returnable here on March 4, but it is believed that Judge John Paul, who will be here on that date, will set the cases for trial later, possibly at the July term of court.

Local Federal officers point out that a special term may be held here in April, as only a few matters are on the docket of the court's regular term scheduled at Big Stone Gap that month.

The cases will be prosecuted by Sterling Hutcheson, of Richmond, United States attorney for the eastern district of Virginia, and Frank S. Tavenner, jr., of Woodstock, assistant to Joseph W. Chitwood, attorney for the western district. Mr. Hutcheson was appointed special attorney for the Department of Justice, with Mr. Tavenner as his assistant, to conduct the grand jury investigation.

81% of Pupils Found To Need Dental Work

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 27.—Nineteen per cent of all the children in Frederick County schools have perfect teeth and the remaining 81 per dent, unless they pay a visit to their dentist, soon will experience twinges and aches for their neglect.

A survey recently completed disclosed that only 519 children of 2,712 examined possess sound teeth. Local dentists, aroused to the importance of having the defects corrected, have contributed the equivalent of $600 in services.

Roosevelt Has Lost Psychological Hold

By Elliott Thurston.

IN one very definite sense, President Roosevelt has lost his control over Congress. The present impasse over relief reflects not merely confusion and conflict of ideas over how best to promote the general welfare, but marks the waning of the President's psychological influence. He is obliged now to fall back upon the dubious pressures which most Presidents have had to exert in the effort to whip their nominal party followers into line. That is, he is pondering an appeal to the country over the heads of Congress. And, in addition, he has the old weapon of patronage.

BUT psychologically the New Deal has lost the momentum and command which until this session enabled Mr. Roosevelt to carry through Congress just about whatever he wanted—so much so that Congress was accused of being a rubber stamp. That time has passed, not merely because members of Congress resent being called rubber stamps, but because so few of them any longer see in the New Deal a realization of their own ideas.

As long as the New Deal produced a rapid, bewildering succession of acts labelled recovery, reform and relief, as long as the psychology prevailed that the New Deal was on the way to a more abundant life, it carried a large majority of Congress along with it, even though in cloakrooms and private retreats one heard deep misgivings. Conservative Democrats went along when what was being done did violence to their most cherished convictions. Republicans went along lest to do otherwise expose them to the wrath of constituents supposedly enthusiastic for or at least indulgent toward the New Deal.

• • • •

ALL that is changed. When it became apparent to the President that private bpusiness was not receiving and would not revive in an atmosphere of constant turmoil and uncertainty, the New Deal began slowly but surely to change its direction and its tone. For some months it has seemed clear to most observers that the President had resolved to produce as much certainty as could be produced out of the confusions, consistent with such avowals and actions as could not be undone or recalled without a confession of error. That is, the New Deal stopped going to the left. It came to a halt, as nearly as it could, somewhere to the right of the center.

Once its position became more fixed, it was inevitable that attack would open up intensively from both ends, especially from the left. From the outset the right has carried on a more or less persistent though largely ineffective warfare against much of the New Deal. The left remained restive but, less inclined to find fault. The hope always existed—or, at least, could not be gainsaid—that the New Deal would move further leftward as it had from the outset and by cajolery or compromise be led into the camp of those who would spend even more freely, or inflate more directly or do still more for silver or what not.

• • • •

IT became apparent toward the end of last year that Mr. Roosevelt had chosen to do what he considered possible to do, consistent with his accomplished acts and purposes, to revive business. This meant that his program became at once too tame for the Left, even though it remained too extreme for the Right. The forces which are now arrayed against him on relief—which have produced the present deadlock on this issue and threaten to do even worse when the security and other measures come up—are Left wing forces. Some of the Right wing have joined hands with the Left to add to the trouble and embarrassment. But they are playing a particularly cheap kind of politics. They are not acting according to their honest inclinations.

The Left forces, however, are expressing what they believe, and they believe in spending more, inflating more, having the Government assume more and more debts and responsibilities.

The crux of the relief bill battle was over the McCarran amendment to require the Government to pay not less than the prevailing wage on "made work." Mr. Roosevelt took his stand firmly for a non-competitive wage on the theory that otherwise private business would not revive, the Government could not get out of the business of relief and hold the budget under control. The opposition is not much concerned with any of these objectives. Rather the general theory of the Left is that the more Government spending the better—the more money ladled out by the Government the greater mass buying power will be. Inflation holds no terrors for most of the Left.

IN retrospect it now seems as if Mr. Roosevelt would have been better advised not to try to strike a compromise between the dole and made work, since the compromise he offered satisfied neither side and has now been rejected in the Senate—though by an appeal to the country or by the patronage whip he may yet be able to salvage it. He might well go the whole way now and stand for the dole. In any case he can not surrender to the bigger spenders and inflationists without sacrificing the chance of reviving business—on which the New Deal's success must stand or fall.

The issue is symptomatic, however, of a political and economic conflict which, barring an attempt at further compromise or outright surrender, is likely to become increasingly pronounced from now on through the next presidential campaign. Mr. Roosevelt's psychological advantage and the hold it gave him have all but vanished.

Once Overs

By H. I. Phillips.

Mr. Andrew W. Mellon,
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Dear Andrew:

I just read in the newspapers that you have $97,000,000 and I thought I would sit down and write you a letter of sympathy. I am very sorry to hear the bad news. If a man has even one million it is a shame what they do to him in this country today, to say nothing of a fellow with 97 of 'em.

• • • •

But do not be downcast or discouraged, Andrew. Despite the handicap of great riches a rich man like you has a chance to get ahead in America today with perseverance and luck.

• • • •

Of course, with everybody from the Government to the village idiot throwing bricks through his windows and pinning "Kick me" placards on his pants and coat, a rich man can not expect much peace, but he should have patience and try to realize that even with the handicap of great wealth he can carve out a future if he has the patience.

• • • •

Your case is tougher than most cases because with a sum like 97 million you are practically ruined. The fellow who has about $3.85 to his name can get plenty of help; in fact, if he can prove he is broke and wholly incompetent, a bright future is assured him, but a rich man has no friends anywhere these days.

• • • •

Consider the terrible plight of the rich man in the year 1935 A. D.! There he lies, flat on his back, in a great pile of national, State, municipal, corporation, inheritance and personal tax forms; surrounded by hordes of snoopers, investigators, congressional committeemen, fresh-cooked economists, reformers, radio haranguers, kingfish and assorted Wild Men of Borneo!

• • • •

There he lies under a barrage of rotten eggs, dead cats, paving blocks, tin cans and overripe fruit, with the newsboys outside bawling "Extra! Another Bomb Misses Huey," and a soap-box orator out on the lawn shouting, "Comrades, why should any man have $10?"

• • • •

Andrew, I know how you must suffer. But bear up. In the darkest moments always remember that if things go as they're going now, you won't be bothered by all that money much longer. The volunteer redistributors are on the way and will get around to you as soon as possible, although there is a big waiting list and you may have to be patient. Just stand it as long as possible and pretty soon all that dough will be taken off your shoulders and spread around for others to worry over. Then you and the other men in this country who had the brains, initiative and courage to make a lot of money will be allowed to be as happy and comfortable as if you hadn't.

Yours, truly,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—I knew a man once who had millions of dollars but he turned out all right and by hard work wound up broke and happy.

State Is Urged To Ratify Law On Child Labor

32 Maryland Organizations Indorse Amendment to House Body.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Representatives of 32 organizations appeared before the House Federal Relations Committee this afternoon to urge the passage of a joint resolution ratifying the child-labor amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Mrs. William Rosenau, chairman of a steering committee, presented the speakers. The steering group consists of Mrs. Adolf Guttmacher, John O'Shea, the Rev. J. Monroe Stick, Alfred Levis, Paul T. Beisser, Mrs. Calvin Gabriel and William H. Meese.

The speakers were Miss Emilie Doetsch, representing the Business and Professional Women's Council; Joseph P. McCurdy, president, State Federation of Labor; Washington Irving Cleveland, president, Kensington Chamber of Commerce, chairman of legislation, Montgomery County Civic Federation; Sidney Hollander, member of the board of State Aid and Charities; Mrs. Emil Crockin, president Baltimore League of Women Voters, president, legislative clearing house; R. L. Lamb, legislative chairman, Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. William Milnes Maloy, chairman of legislation, Women's Civic League, and chairman of legislation, Eastern High School Alumnae Association.

Chaplain Stick, of the American Legion, was unable to be present but sent a telegram stating that the legion is in favor of ratification of the amendment.

The principal points made by the speakers urging ratification were:

1. Congress require authority to enact child labor laws when the 500 NRA codes now prohibiting such labor expire.
2. Child workers displace adults—heads of families—adding to relief costs.
3. Children receive small compensation and their employment tends to lower general wage scales and living standards.
4. In the present "machine age" children must remain in school longer to be fitted to accept employment.
5. State regulation of child labor has been found to be impracticable because of divergent laws.
6. Industries in States having strict child labor laws have to face unfair competition from States having lax or no child labor laws.

Resolutions supporting the ratification of the amendment were submitted to the committee by the following organizations: Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, Women's Civic League, Annapolis, and Anne Arundel County Young Women's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association of Baltimore City, College Club of Baltimore, State Conference of Social Welfare, State Federation of Labor, Jewish Council of Women, American Legion, Consumers League, Business and Professional Women, Eastern High School Alumnae, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Baltimore Federation of Women's Clubs, Federation of Churches, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Hebrew Association, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Baltimore Chapter, American Association of Social Workers, Maryland State Nurses Association, Baltimore Teachers' Union and Housewives' League.

M. E. Temperance Board Gives Data on Cases in Virginia Cities.

By the Associated Press.

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, Methodist Episcopal Church South, yesterday released a statement on comparative arrests for drunkenness in Virginia cities since the opening of State liquor stores.

Quoting a "recent news report released by the (Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control) board," Pickett cited figures slightly more extensive than those given by the board in its original release.

Computing arrest increase percentages on a basis of the number of arrests and the number of months during which a liquor store has been in operation, the church organization secretary gave Martinsville, Va., the highest percentage of increase. In that community, Pickett says, the increase was 305.51 per cent. Suffolk, with 159.68 per cent, was second, and Staunton, with 77.91 per cent, was third.

Lowest percentage of increase in arrests was given Harrisonburg. In that community, Pickett's figures say, a store has been open four months. In his "wet" column he gives an arrest figure of 197 and in the "dry" column 191—an increase of 3.14 per cent.

Standard Milk Law Is Sought for County

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27 (AP).—Washington County dairymen have requested the Hagerstown Health Department to intercede with the officials of incorporated towns of the county to adopt a standard milk ordinance similar to the one which has been in effect in Hagerstown for four years.

The local health officer is planning to visit Williamsport shortly to explain the ordinance and its provisions, providing chiefly for the labeling of bottled milk sold by dairymen and the publication of the grades each sells.

$373,130 Set As School Cost For Arlington

Increase of $20,000 Over Past Year Is Sought; Assessment Up.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The total school budget in the hands of the county manager yesterday for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935, calls for expenditures amounting to $373,130, an increase of $20,000 over last year.

With a total school enrollment of 5,900 pupils and 22 school buildings, the budget carries the following items:

Administration, including superintendent's salary and office expense, $6,825; instruction, including teachers' salaries, $190,970; textbooks and other school supplies, $10,395; auxiliary expenses, $4,400; operating expenses, including janitors' salaries, heat, light and water, $38,900; insurance upkeep of buildings and insurance, $16,000.

Total amount set aside for retirement of bonds during the year, $40,000 Interest on bonds, $65,540, making a grand total of $373,130.

The full county budget, which is now being prepared by the county manager, will be in the hands of the county board on March 15.

There will be a public hearing, after which the budget will be adopted at the April meeting.

After considerable discussion on the matter of front-foot assessment for lateral sewer lines and the method of making house connections, the county board at its meeting yesterday voted to hold a special meeting the night of March 22 at 8 o'clock. At this meeting, members of the Master Plumbers Association of Arlington County will be asked to attend and a definite decision will be reached as to whether the county will carry the house connection to the property line or whether the house owner shall have the work done.

The county manager, on motion of board member Christopher B. Garnett, was instructed to cooperate with the Arlington-Fairfax Railway in the matter of taking care of street crossings.

Garnett pointed out that the company is an asset to the county and that the county in turn should assist in keeping up the grade crossings.

By a vote of 3 to 2 the board refused to approve the petition of citizens asking that the name of Chesterbrook road be not changed in the program calling for the renaming of all streets.

The board approved expenditures totaling $18,638.55, of which $9,918.43 represented the pay roll.

Pursuant to a request of the State highway department, the Arlington County zoning appeal board, at its meeting held yesterday at the courthouse, deferred action on the matter of changing the setback along the Lee Boulevard. The original request called for a change of from 60 to 25 feet from Lyon Park to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, but the board announced that at its meeting to be held the afternoon of March 27, action will be taken to change the setback to 25 feet the entire length of the boulevard, extending from the bridge to the county line.

The board by a unanimous vote refused to reconsider its action of July, 1934, calling for the rezoning of a section of property along the Washington-Richmond highway in the vicinity of Virginia Highlands from light industrial to local business.

William C. Gloth, former Commonwealth's attorney for Arlington County and one of the owners of the property in question, declared that the request for a change in the zoning of the property came through a petition from the Jefferson Civic League which was not signed. He said that the board denied the petition in July, 1934, and saw no good reason for it to change its former action.

Roy Miller, appearing for the citizens' group, stated that he was not notified of the July meeting. He said the conditions existing were a disgrace and a change should be made.

The ladies of the Community Methodist Church at Aurora Heights will serve a benefit luncheon today from 12 to 2 o'clock at the church.

The Nordica Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra and the Nordica Banjo Club of Washington will give a benefit concert tomorrow night in the Madison School auditorium at Falls Church. The proceeds will go to the Falls Church Fire Department.

There will be a meeting of Arlington Lodge, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, tonight in Odd Fellows Hall, at Clarendon. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock.

'Bootleg' Coal To Be Banned By White's Bill

'Fly-by-Night' Truckers Hit in Legislation Soon to Be Offered.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—A bill will be introduced shortly in the General Assembly by Delegate John S. White (Democrat), of Prince Georges County, regulating the sale of coal and coke in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties.

Under the provisions of the measure, all sellers of fuel in the counties shall send with each delivery a ticket indicating the seller's name, the date, the weight of the coal or coke in the load, the kind of fuel and the name of the consignee. All loads shall be weighed before delivery and the ticket signed by a weigher in the respective counties.

Sellers in the District of Columbia may have deliveries weighed either in the county or in the District, the bill provides.

The bill is designed to stop "bootlegging of coal," according to Delegate White. Much fuel is brought into nearby counties and sold by "fly-by-night" truckers with no system of weights or measures, with detriment both to the consumer and the legitimate dealer, White declared.

Originally drafted only for Prince Georges County, the bill was revised to include Mongomery County at the request of the legislative delegation of the latter area. Much sentiment in favor of the measure has been received, Delegate White said.

Fairfax's Club Of Democrats Wait Elections

Plan to Start Aggressive Campaign to Name County Officials.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 247, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

All officials of Fairfax County are to be elected this year, and the Young Democratic Club of the county will take an active part in the election. This will be the first election of county officials since the club was formed.

Under the leadership of Judge Paul E. Brown, president of the Fairfax Club, plans are being made for the launching of its most aggressive campaign for greater participation in elections. Such a program is intended to place the club in active contact with every prospective voter in the county.

The first step in the campaign was taken by the club at its meeting in the courthouse Tuesday night, when a resolution was adopted calling on the chairman of the six magisterial districts to appoint precinct leaders. the district chairman is also to appoint a superintendent of registration in each precinct whose duty will be to see that all persons eligible to vote are registered.

The club's program also calls for a general election laws committee composed of a committeeman from each of the 25 precincts. This committee is to prepare a list of qualified voters in each precinct for the use of the club.

Each committeeman would have from one to five assistants, who would assist in disseminating information relative to qualifications to vote; urge the prompt payment of capitation taxes; see that all otherwise qualified should register; attempt to increase membership in the club; digest all pertinent sections of the general election laws, in order to assist voters who may desire information, and in general bring about greater interest in citizenship and the Democratic Party.

The county club voted to cooperate with the Falls Church club in the publication of the Northern Virginia Democrat. The annual dues were raised from 50 cents to $1, with new members being received at the old rate for the first year of membership.

Red Cross funds will be used to purchase cod liver oil for indigent children in Fairfax County, Va., according to plans made at the quarterly meeting of the county chapter. The funds for this project will be under the supervision of Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamans, county health nurse.

Final results of the annual membership roll call were announced by the county treasurer, with an enrollment of 1,276 members and contributions totaling $1,538.94. This represents an increase over the 1934 enrollment which totaled 1,260 members and $1,412.43. It is believed that Fairfax County maintained ninth place on the chapter honor roll in Virginia.

Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, president of the chapter, displayed the honor flag awarded by national headquarters to chapters exceeding their quota. The Fairfax County honor certificate accompanying the flag was said to be one of the last to be signed by the late national chairman, John Barton Payne.

A resolution in respect to the memory of the late national chairman, Judge Payne, was adopted. Copies were ordered sent to the national Red Cross headquarters and to relatives of Judge Payne at Warrenton.

Egg Sale Seen Raised 30 Pct. If Bill Passes

Measure Would Prohibit Marketing of Produce Not Strictly Fresh.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—An increase of 30 per cent in the consumption of Maryland eggs was predicted at a hearing here today before the House agricultural and ways and means committees in the event the egg bill introduced by Delegate Charles C. Marbury (Democrat), of Prince Georges County, is passed.

The measure prohibits the sale of any eggs as fresh that do not meet specified standard requirements, and further stipulates that eggs must be graded according to size. It prohibits sale of shell-treated eggs as fresh unless marked "shell treated."

Enforcement of the proposed act will be carried out by the State board of agriculture. Agents of the board would be empowered to inspect warehouses, stores and markets to determine whether provisions of the bill have been violated.

Herbert D. Copeland, president of the Maryland State Poultry Council, explained the bill to the committees and predicted increased confidence by consumers should the measure be enacted, with resulting gain in consumption.

Production of State products would be increased and importation of eggs from other States would be discouraged by passage of the bill, Copeland declared. The speaker said provisions of the act correspond closely with recommendations of the Federal Government.

Indorsement of the measure was given by Mrs. Charles Fowler, spokesman for National Housewives, Inc., of Baltimore, and several producers from Harford and Eastern Shore counties.

Illustrating need for regulatory legislation, Paul A. Raper, of the Maryland State department of markets, conducted a test of several dozen eggs bought as fresh at nearby Maryland and Baltimore markets. Ten eggs of one dozen bought near Washington did not come up to the fresh-egg test, while all of another dozen bought in Baltimore failed to meet requirements.

Only one speaker, R. H. Sears, of Leonardtown, a large producer, spoke in opposition to the bill. Enforcement of the provisions would prove impossible, he stated.

Another hearing will be held Thursday, March 7, when representatives of the Baltimore Butter and Egg Exchange will express their views on the measure.

Jail Terms Given Two In Wounding of Jeter

Powhatan, Va., Feb. 27 (AP).—Found guilty by a jury of farmers this afternoon, Darrell and Cecil Richie, Powhatan County filling station attendants, were sentenced by Judge Edwin P. Cox to serve seven and five years, respectively, for the malicious wounding of George Jeter last October 29.

The prisoners were turned over to a deputy sheriff to be taken to the State farm pending their transfer to the State penitentiary at Richmond.

Appeals Made For Warehouse

Maryland House Group Told More Is Needed for Tobacco Work.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Although the State tobacco warehouse is practically self-sustaining, F. Brook Matthews, Charles County, State inspector, and representatives of the Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association told the House ways and means committee at a hearing today that the budget appropriation of $55,011 annually is insufficient for operating at high efficiency.

Inspector Matthews said the cost of operation last year was $69,000, and that a larger tobacco crop is anticipated the coming season.

Clarence Roberts, Prince Georges County, member of the growers' association, said the warehouse had been self-sustaining over a 10-year period, but that unless a sufficient appropriation is forthcoming, much business will go to the Baltimore and Ohio clearing house, in consequence of which the State will lose fees.

The State should not jeopardize the warehouse and permit private interests to step in, W. B. Posey, manager of the grovers' association, argued. He said the 1934 crop to be cleared was 7,000 hogsheads greater than the previous year. It was estimated the State appropriation should be increased about $20,000.

West Virginia Rejects Bonus

State Senate Kills Bill Proposing Amendment to Constitution.

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 27.—A proposed constitutional amendment to authorize the issuance of $10,000,000 in bonds and pay a bonus to West Virginians who served in the World War was killed in short order today by the Senate.

Without an argument, the Senators voted 21 to 8 against a resolution passed in the House which would have put up to the people in the 1936 election the question of paying to each former service man $15 for each month he spent in the service.

The judiciary committee headed by Senator James Paull, jr. (Democrat), Brooke County, recommended the rejection. The senators followed the advice of this committee also in rejecting a bill to give preference to war veterans for employment on public works projects.

At the same the House turned down on a resolution which would have requested the public service commission to investigate rates charged by gas companies in all parts of the State.

George decided this critical problem as he had decided all of his problems ever since he had met Sue and had made his avowal of love.

"You see, darling, it is because I love you more than all of the world that I come to you and tell you this."

Sue did not talk. She was thinking—thinking carefully.

"Claire is sailing on the Rex for Europe in a week, and I feel as if I owe it to her to give her an answer before she sails. Won't you please tell me if my plans are in accord with yours?"

Sue arose from her chair and walked slowly to the large window which overlooked Central Park and from where she could see the piers with transoceanic liners at their docks.

"I think your plans are quite honorable, George. But tell me this—suppose—something should happen to you while you're away on this expedition! Oh, George, take ME with you. I'd love it!"

Sue ran to George and threw her arms around him.

"From now on," she whispered, "I'm going to know the middle name and the ancestry of every little bug in your laboratory. Now run along and tell—Claire—that—oh, well; you know what to tell her."

A week later a train sped west with a cargo of love. At the same hour a boat sailed eastward.

New Air Force Tonight Makes Shift to Langley

Gen. Andrews Takes Control of Combat Units in Revised Setup.

Central operating offices of the new General Headquarters Air Force, the Army's revamped aviation setup, will move to Langley Field, Va., tonight, it was announced at the War Department yesterday.

Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding officer, has been occupying temporary quarters with his staff at the department.

Coincident with the move the new air force will become the operating Army aviation unit of the Nation's defensive scheme. Heretofore it has existed only on paper. However, on March 1 the present Air Corps tactical units will become units of the G. H. Q. Air Force.

Andrews in Control.

Under the new organization control of combat units will pass from Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, present chief of the Air Corps, into Gen. Andrews' hands.

Foulois' status then becomes identical with that of other chiefs of the military branches, such as the Cavalry and the Infantry. These officers have no direct command over the combat organizations of their services. Foulois will head the material division at Wright Field, where technical and procurement details are worked out, and he will supervise Air Corps depots and stations and special schools.

The transfer of the Army's planes from the Air Corps to the new force means the assignment of three new units to Bolling Field, Anacostia, D. C. Eventually this field will become a tactical center.

The Fourteenth Bombardment, Thirty-first Observation and 100th Service Squadrons will be assigned to duty here.

Change to Be Gradual.

Together with the station complement this will bring 72 officers and 392 men to Bolling Field. At present there are about 12 officers and 279 men at Bolling, with officers from the office of the Chief of the Air Corps, and Reserve officers also carrying on their flying there.

A total of 30 new type bombardment and observation planes will be brought here for use by the Army fliers. At present there are about 35 planes of various types at the field.

War Department officials explained that the transformation from the present organization to the new set-up would be gradual. The new airplanes are not yet available.

In addition to being Gen. Andrews' headquarters, Langley Field, Va., will serve as the operating center of the second wing of the General Headquarters force. This will consist of a bombardment group, a pursuit group, an airship squadron and an attack squadron.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

These Charming People.

If you doubt that charm is an all-important ingredient, deliberate on the fact that the three outstanding personalities of Broadway, at the present moment, are Jack Benny, Ethel Merman and Rudy Vallee, each of whom is liberally endowed with it.

In naming this trio as the standouts of the season, I'm taking no chances, running no risks. The Benny radio program, despite the Crosley reports or any other system of gauging, is definitely the No. 1 program of the air. Rudy Vallee, probably the most amazing showman of our times, now has definitely established himself as a flicker personality in his "Sweet Music" picture. Miss Merman is the No. 1 songstress of the country, a rating based on her astounding success in Cole Porter's "Anything Goes."

The charm of each of this trio has been an important factor in his top bracketing. Benny, permitting himself to be joshed by Mary Livingstone, Don Bestor and Frank Parker, convinced the country that he was a nice fellow. In refusing to take himself seriously, Benny clicked big.

Rudy Vallee has always exhibited a personal charm that has been a strong factor in his success. His introductions of performers always have been strongly colored by his own personality, for he always has been a builder-upper of young talent. He has never been smart-alecky. The only flaw in "Sweet Music," which I detected, was that part of it which had Vallee ridiculing Ann Dvorak, the dancer. He wouldn't do it in real life, and he shouldn't permit them to make him do it on the screen, because his greatest appeal always has been his fine treatment of those youngsters who have ambition.

Ethel Merman on stage is exactly a picture of Ethel Merman off stage. Like Benny and Vallee, she doesn't need to act or pretend. She follows the same pattern of "Be Yourself," which distinguishes her top-flight companions.

* * * *

Going through my files, I find the very first radio program which Jack Benny ever did. He was my guest on a Coast-to-Coast hookup over the Columbia chain in February, 1932, and let it be set down in the records that on that occasion your reporter served as Benny's straight man. I wasn't a good straight man, but I talked loud.

Jack Benny, in his first broadcast, three years ago, used the same self-kidding type of humor that he features today. Let's look at that 1932 script:

Jack Benny—"Ladies and gentlemen, this is Jack Benny talking. There will be a slight pause while you say, 'Who cares.' I am here tonight as a scenario writer. There is quite a lot of money in writing scenarios for the pictures. Well, there would be if I could sell one. That seems to be my only trouble right now, but I am going back to pictures in about ten weeks. I'm going to be in a new picture with Greta Garbo. They sent me the story last week. When the picture first opens, I'm found dead in the bathroom. It's sort of a mystery picture. I'm found in the bathtub on Wednesday night.

"I should have been in Miss Garbo's last picture, but they gave the part to Robert Montgomery. You know, studio politics. The funny part of it is that I'm really much younger than Montgomery. That is, I'm younger than Montgomery and Ward.

"You'd really like Garbo, Ed. She and I were great friends in Hollywood. She used to let me drive her car all around town. Of course, she paid me for it. I took her to dinner one night. We went to a real high-class restaurant—say, after all, she is Garbo, and when we got inside, I asked her what was her favorite dish, and she said cut glass. I nearly dropped my tray."

* * * *

To my way of thinking, the most amazing of this trio of tops is Rudy Vallee. I say that he is amazing because he has been one of the Big Five of radio for the last seven years. He started his sustaining program from the Heigh-Ho Club exactly seven years ago, in February, 1928.

His durability as an attraction would be sufficient reason for distinction, but in addition, Vallee, right now, is displaying a versatility that has startled Broadway. The ordinary performer, after salting away his first $1,000,000 would be content to rest on his laurels. Vallee's restless ambition, flogging him onward and upward after seven years of success, is something at which to marvel.

I saw him the other night playing a light comedy part at the Friars' Frolic. Cast as an English lord, he played the role as if to the English manor born, if I may pun. His British speech was perfect, his detachment and boredom and his solicitude about the Scotch and whisky for his guest was in the right key.

Vallee right now looks like the best bet of the entertainment world. What he has done so far will prove, eventually, to have been only incidental. If I were a Max Gordon, John Golden, Jed Harris, or Teresa Helburn, of the Theater Guild, I'd sign Vallee for a light comedy part in a legitimate show. It is my conviction, based on unmistakable evidence in his work, that Vallee, so cast, would be a sensation.

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 27 (AP).—Fifty fishermen, aided by their own boats and the United States Coast Guard, escaped from an ice floe in Keweenaw Bay today.

The Coast Guard station at Jacobsville, which sent boats to the scene and took off four fishermen, reported that 30 men had returned to the mainland by jumping from the floe to shore ice after the frozen surface of the bay had begun to crack up in a strong southwest wind. Twenty other men had pulled their boats out across the ice to safety.

Drive Planned To Instruct D.C. In Use of Fuel

Campaign Is Prepared by Groups Supporting Anti-Smoke Bill.

An educational campaign on the proper use of fuel is being planned by organizations supporting the antismoke bill now before Congress, it was announced yesterday by People's Counsel William A. Roberts.

A petition is being circulated among various civic organizations which will be presented to Congress in urging the adoption of the law.

"Interest has been stimulated in the problem," Roberts said, "as a result of scientific disclosures that the smoke nuisance is not only detrimental to health and the cause of considerable property damage, but it is also an indication of wasteful use of fuel causing vast financial losses."

A study of the Roberts bill is being made by Assistant Engineer Commissioner Howard F. Clark. He was a member of a committee named several months ago to draft a new smoke law for the District, but Roberts' bill was introduced before the committee had received approval of the Commissioners to its tentative draft.

Steel Output Off In Week, Is Report

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 27.—Steel production and scrap prices have suffered further declines, said Iron Age in its weekly review today.

It added, however, "It is still a moot question whether consumption of finished steel has suffered a setback. The automobile industry has by no means abandoned its plans for continued heavy production and container manufacturers and farm equipment makers remain active users of mill products. * * *

"As for April, motor car makers have sent mills large orders for sheets for that delivery, and these will be entered on March 1, when second-quarter books are opened.

"Other steel makers are in no haste to get protection for next quarter. The spirits of the trade have ebbed with the recession in steel works activity and long-term undertakings are again being delayed."

The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Applied For.

By Morgan Baker.

BAKER.

THE big bubble of expectations that "several hundred" persons would soon be added to the staff of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Justice, was pricked last night by Director John Edgar Hoover who revealed that tentative plans call for only 38 additional employes.

The bubble has been swelling with reports of vast expansion in the bureau—that it will be made an American Scotland Yard. Making it a "Scotland Yard" would be somewhat retrogression in view of the fact that this bureau already is greater in scope and equipment than the famous British organization. For instance, Scotland Yard's activities are confined principally to London—a sort of municipal police organization—whereas the Federal Bureau of Investigation operates throughout the United States and territories. But that is another story.

Knowing the qualifications required for employment in the bureau, it seems futile for a horde of job-seekers to stampede the bureau's personnel office. Instead of the rumored wholesale additions, the increase will consist of 38 special agents under the appropriation now pending in Congress.

Mr. Hoover said last night:

". . . it is anticipated that this bureau under the appropriation for the current fiscal year will have in its employ on June 30, 1935, 670 investigators, consisting of 545 special agents and 125 accountants.

"The $5,000,000 estimate now pending in Congress will provide, as of July 1, 1935, for 708 investigators, consisting of 583 special agents and 125 accountants. In other words, the pending appropriation for the next fiscal year will permit the employment of 38 additional special agents."

Action on Will Shows 'Poverty' Of Gen. Harries

Leader in A.E.F. Had Only $200, Claim on Fund When He Died.

With the exception of a claim against a Chicago trust company, Maj. Gen. George Herbert Harries, famous military leader in the A. E. F., died almost penniless, it was shown yesterday, when a petition for the probate of his will was filed.

The claim amounts to a one-fourth interest in a trust fund that at one time totaled $1,244,819. It is now valued at less than $500,000 and is the subject of litigation in Cook County, Ill., where the trust company is charged with failing properly to supervise and conserve the fund.

The petition revealed Gen. Harries had only $200 when he died last September 28. He had books which were valued at $100 and a pension check for a like amount.

Gen. Harries was war-time commander at the port of Brest, France, for the American forces. After that he resumed his command of the District National Guard, a position he held for 17 years.

Group Opposes Milk Unit Bill

Montgomery Dairymen Object to Control Board Plan.

Producer-distributors of milk in Montgomery County, meeting yesterday in Rockville, voted opposition to the proposed bill for the establishment of a milk control board for Maryland. A committee consisting of Chester F. Clagett and N. O. Terpenning, both of Rockville; Maurice Cissel, Sandy Spring, and Mrs. E. A. Hills, Colesville, submitted a report in favor of the bill, but the action was disapproved by a small mapority.

The bill provides the establishment of a board to have the power to arbitrate all disputes arising out of any phase of the milk industry.

According to O. W. Anderson, county agent for Montgomery, the dairymen in general favor the bill, but feel it discriminates in favor of the producer-distributor, who would not be called upon to carry the burden of production control.

It was suggested the board, if established, should be selected from present State officials who have knowledge of the milk industry.

U. S. Dismisses Two Brothers In Fraud Case

Hammermans Are Freed of Mail Misuse Charges in Baltimore.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 27.—The Government today nolle prossed charges against Samuel L. Hammerman and his brother, Herman, both of Baltimore, accused of using the mails to defraud in the sale of lots in subdivisions in eight different States.

A Federal court jury earlier this month had been unable to agree in the case and District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn asked Judge William C. Coleman to approve dismissal of the charges.

Flynn explained the step was concurred in by Walter L. Barlow, special assistant, who conducted the prosecution. He offered no further comment in asking the possibility of retrying the two be abandoned.

Before approving the motion, Judge Coleman asked George E. Brill, postal inspector, who conducted the investigation leading to the indictment, if he had any statement to make. Brill, who worked for approximately six years, traveling through many States making his inquiry, said he had no comment.

Scores of witnesses were called and more than a week consumed in taking testimony in the proceedings ending in mistrial. The Hammermans were represented by Robert R. Carman, Baltimore attorney.

Farmer Convicted Of Liquor Charge

Jury Finds Man Guilty of Illegal Possession.

By the Associated Press.

Danville, Va., Feb. 27.—A jury in United States Court for the Western District of Virginia found Geoffrey Caulden, of Henry County, guilty of possession of more than 700 gallons of illegal liquor late today. Judge John Paul deferred passing of sentence.

Trial of the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Richard B. Thomas, Hampstead, N. Y., architect, against Dr. H. J. Langston, of this city, is expected to begin on Friday.

Managers of the offices insisted that the attorneys be specific as to the dates of any messages they desired to obtain. Whether private messages entrusted to the company can be released legally is to be argued later.

Ignored on State Cooperation, Winchester Official Protests

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 27.—This city, so far as receiving any consideration as location for State institutions or receiving "interested State cooperation" is concerned, might as well be in West Virginia.

Thus did Arthur M. Field, city manager, write to William A. Smith, director of the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration, it was made known today. The letter was in reply to a communication announcing the location of the regional office in Front Royal.

The comment was prompted by the failure of Miss Dorothy Smith, regional director in charge of the Front Royal office, to inspect quarters which were secured for the office, rent free, by Winchester citizens, it was stated.

"We do not question your desire to locate the office in Front Royal," Mr. Field wrote. "However, after you advised that this matter was in the hands of Miss Dorothy Smith, and after we called Miss Smith on the telephone and she assured us that they would come up and make an inspection of the several quarters which we arranged to provide without cost to you, we were, frankly, rather chagrined not to have had the courtesy of a call.

"In this connection, and without any unpleasantness, your attention and that of the other State officials should be directed to the rapidly mounting feeling in the community that Winchester might as well be in West Virginia, so far as receiving any consideration as a location for any of the State institutions or receiving interested State cooperation is concerned."

The letter from Mr. Smith said the office was located in Front Royal because that town is more centrally located in the area in which relief must be administered.

Made to Order Figures on Sale At Capital Shop

Foundation Garments of One Piece Are Available in Several Materials.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

NOWADAYS your figure is pretty much what you make it. If you want a bay window and a flat chest, to say nothing of flabby hips, then all you have to do is fit yourself with the wrong kind of foundation garment. But if you prefer sylphlike lines, and well regulated curves, then it is up to you to consult someone who knows how to fit your corselet or girdle and to select one that will flatter your figure to the utmost.

It so happens there is a small local concern that makes a specialty of "fitting" and there you can purchase a one-piece foundation garment that gives you the kind of figure you've always envied. Just this one light little garment gives you a well-molded hip line, smooth diaphragm control, and uplifted bust. And best of all, it comes in so many different sizes and proportions that it suits any figure.

Hundreds of women have found that it's the best little figure regulator they have ever tried. And they're delighted, too, that it comes in several different materials, and may be put in the tub and scrubbed without shrinking or losing its shape.

One of its best selling points is that it's suited to either daytime or evening wear due to its adjustable back.

• • • •

In the same shop the young sportswoman will find a certain "bib 'n tucker" set, which is probably what she's been wishing for all this time. It is a lightweight garterless girdle with a separate brassiere which buttons on. The girdle itself is made from a two-way stretch fabric that fits snugly without binding. The "bra" is of dainty looking lace that amazes you with its wearing quality.

New Cosmetic Kits.

Your week-end trip becomes a real pleasure jaunt if you take along one of the new kits sponsored by a well known beautician.

You have long associated her name with the aristocracy of cosmetics so when you find that you can buy one of these kits for only $1.38, you'll be completely "bowled over." But you see, it's this way. She arranged these kits especially for the large sale in a downtown store and set the price accordingly. Ordinarily you'd pay four or five times the sale price.

The kit contains a cleansing cream which is famed for its purity, another velvety cream ideal for delicate skins, a skin tonic, a finishing cream, tooth paste, perfume and powder.

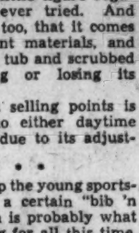
Depilatory Treatment.

America's foremost depilatory specialist brings her salon into your home with a new set which includes a complete treatment for removing the superfluous hair from your arms, legs, or face.



It's truly a boon, for there's little hope of concealing these unsightly growths. They are embarrassingly apparent through your sheer hosiery and you're ever so conscious of them on your arms when you wear sleeveless gowns. And, also for facial growths, the cause of many miserable hours.

However, with this new complete set, chasing away superfluous hairs becomes merely the matter of a moment. You have all the materials to work with and even extras which positively insure the safety and effectiveness of the treatment. The set includes a cream which cleanses and softens the skin primary to the use of the depilatory, the remover itself, an antiseptic for a rinse, and a soothing salve. Can you imagine—all this for $1!

Bright Colored String Gloves.

There are already signs of spring on the glove counters, gay, bright colored string gloves that make you restless for balmy days and light ensembles.

Though you aren't glove conscious and haven't made glove plans for spring, the chances are you will when you see these.

Little Albania Approaches Utopia, Says D. C. Woman, There Six Years

All Albanian women will learn to be scientific homemakers if the young ruler at the left, King Zog, has his way. On the right is a typical Albanian peasant woman. She may not have much money but she is happy, well fed and well dressed. All Albanian women are thus blessed, according to an American who spent six years among them.

No Breadlines in Tiny Adriatic Kingdom, Declares Mrs. H. Hays Mirkil; Lauds King Zog for Promoting People's Culture, Happiness.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

ALONG THE ADRIATIC lies a mellow little country which comes about as near as any spot in the world to being Utopia, believes an American, Mrs. H. Hays Mirkil, who recently came to Washington to live after spending six years in Albania.

In Albania everybody has enough to eat. There are no bread lines, no downtrodden peasants, no frustrated men or women. Everybody is happy. At least that's the way it seemed to Mrs. Mirkil who went to this ancient but little-known country as a member of the Near East Relief Foundation.

Women are especially blessed in Albania, according to the American. She gives most of the credit for this circumstance to the country's ruler, King Zog. It was this young, unmarried monarch who said:

Pleaded for Girls' School.

Occasion for King Zog's remark was when the Near East Relief Foundation asked him several years ago for a land grant to establish a boys' school. King Zog was generous in giving land, but pleaded that a girls' school be placed upon it.

And so a girls' school was founded in Albania and Mrs. Mirkil became one of the teachers. For the first five years the curriculum was similar to that of a normal school, including a course in the English language. But now that the first few crops of students have been trained to become teachers the curriculum consists mostly of home economics.

Since all Albanian women get married—or at least hope to marry—a course in homemaking and child care is of most value to them, Mrs. Mirkil pointed out. She found the natives eager for education of any kind.

Walk Miles for Schooling.

"I've known many a woman," she said, "to walk six or eight miles to the school with a sick child on her back so she could learn how to care for it. After the mother had talked with the doctors or nurses she had to walk the six or eight miles home again."

Then there was the time the Near East Foundation persuaded the men in an isolated village to let them use one room of an old mosque for a school. Women are not permitted to enter the mosques, and while the men were willing for the boys to attend classes it took a deal of persuasion before girls could be admitted to the improvised schoolroom.

Later while both boys and girls were being taught their lessons the men of the village formed attentive little groups outside the mosque near the open windows.

"It was as if they were pupils, too," said Mrs. Mirkil.

No Factory in Land.

One of the chief objectives of all the schools is to keep alive the arts and handicrafts of the country. Since there is not a single factory in the land, all cloth is hand woven. Silkworms are cultivated, cotton and sheep are raised. The women spend most of their time spinning, weaving, sewing.

"I've never seen such an industrious people," Mrs. Mirkil said. "They never walk down the street without spinning as they go along. And they carry huge baskets on their heads. That's what gives them such beautiful carriage."

The Albanians do superb weaving, according to the American. Their clothes are colorful, quaint and comfortable. Even the peasants are dressed in fine fabrics with exquisite handwork on them. A few of the Moslem women still are veiled but the younger generation is leaving its face uncovered.

Religious Tolerance Gains.

Religious freedom and tolerance has reached amazing heights in the little country by the Adriatic since it his been freed from Turkey.

"The population is divided into Moslems, Roman Catholics and Greek Orthodox Catholics. Yet there is never any trouble," said Mrs. Mirkil. "When the Catholics have a holiday the Moslems close their shops as a courtesy. The Catholics do the same on Moslem holidays."

There are no railroads in Albania. Everyone travels leisurely and the traveler is always made welcome in any home he chooses to visit.

"The Albanians are the most hospitable people in the world," said Mrs. Mirkil. "And they are kind and law-abiding. Their country is one place where a woman can travel alone in absolute safety. That's more than can be said for the United States."

Zog Maligned, She Says.

Mrs. Mirkil believes King Zog has been greatly maligned outside his own country.

"Outside of Albania there's always a lot of talk about his mistresses and that sort of thing," she explained. "I don't think there's any truth in it. If there were, his own people would have learned of it. Those who know him well say he is one of the world's most enlightened and beneficent monarchs."

HOW to KEEP WELL

By Dr.. Irving S. Cutter.

Convulsions in Pregnancy.

FORTUNATELY there are but few disease conditions for which pregnancy may be primarily blamed. This normal physiological process proceeds in an orderly manner and nature functions with safety to mother and child.

There are, of course, certain obstetrical complications or accidents, the prevention of which taxes the skill of the modern trained obstetrician. Most of these, with proper care, can be rendered harmless, and childbirth is becoming safer year by year. No longer is it considered an expiation of "original sin" that a woman should undergo without relief a prolonged, painful and health-destroying labor. Modern management, with its accompanying anesthesia and hospital safeguards, has greatly improved the outlook of the expectant mother.

However, there occurs occasionally a condition known as eclampsia which is attended with some danger. The most careful observation is necessary for its prevention.

Eclampsia is not a disease, but a symptom of some underlying state which has not as yet been clearly explained. There is a tendency to sleep, with muscular cramps in the legs, loss of appetite, headache, some mental disturbance and dimness of vision. If the condition increases in severity nausea, vomiting and pain over the stomach may precede the actual onset of convulsions.

The following directions are of value in avoiding complications: (1) visit your physician every three or four weeks after pregnancy develops; (2) follow his directions as to mode of life, clothing, exercise and diet; (3) should any of the symptoms mentioned above be noted, report without delay and appear for an examination if the symptoms do not quickly abate.

What Today Means

"Pisces."

IF FEBRUARY 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. and from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m.

If you wish to use good judgment in meeting people on this date, act perfectly natural and refrain from any form of posturing. Those who resort to artificial artifices to attract attention to themselves are more likely to receive ridicule than admiration. Business may have to be stimulated by strenuous personal efforts to overcome an inclination on prospective buyers' part to procrastinate. Social activities of an informal nature may prove more popular than those of an ultra conventional type.

The wise hostess will exercise care in the preparation of her invitation list so as not to include anyone who is likely to be uncongenial. Married and engaged couples, as well as those ready to avow their love, may find it a good policy to refrain from trying to be funny at the other person's expense.

If a woman, and February 28 is your birthday, you will do well to cultivate two things, one is a cheerful outlook on life, and the other is self-assurance. If you will force yourself to smile, when things seem to go wrong, you may be surprised to see how often they right themselves. Borrowing trouble is as bad as borrowing money; sometimes you may have to do the latter, but there is no excuse for your doing the former. If you have confidence in your own ability, there are no limitations as to what you are capable of accomplishing.

Educational, literary, and journalistic work, acting as hostess or receptionist, as well as employment of a clerical nature, are lines of activity from which you should be able to select congenial means of livelihood. A great deal of contentment and happiness should be available through having your own home and family.

The child born on February 28, as a rule, when it completes its high school course, has very definite ideas as to what future career it wishes to follow. Parental cooperation is essential. Opposition to this child's ambition may later on prove to be a mstake.

If a man, and February 28 is your natal day, if you will depend more on your own judgment, and not be swayed by the opinions of others, you probably will find your own ideas are more often right than wrong. You should find married life very satisfactory. The study of natural history, medicine, law, engineering, as well as theology or a specialized line in industrial selling, may provide a lucrative means of livelihood.

Successful people born on February 28:

John Tyler, jurist and statesman.
Mary Lyon, educator.
Samuel S. Schmucker, theologian.
William S. Barnard, naturalist.

Crushed Velvet Predominates For Negligees

Spending an evening at home is a joy when one has a hostess gown as stunning as this. The material is a heavy crushed white velvet which resembles fur.

IF there's ever a time when a woman wants to look down right pretty it's when she's in negligee. She may hope to look boyish in her sports clothes. She probably yearns to appear dramatic in evening gowns. And of course she wants to be striking, smart, and all that sort of thing in street costumes. But in her relaxed moments by her own fireside, she usually goes in for soft femininity and sheer prettiness.

There are a good many ways to achieve this effect. Long lines undoubtedly play the most important part; long lines that may either cling to the body or flutter in graceful drapery. At this time of year the glued-to-the-figure type is in the ascendancy, but you who like butterfly effects will be able to find plenty of them as spring deepens into summer.

Right now one of the most important materials is a luxurious crushed velvet which resembles short-haired silky fur. It is stunning in white, but is also mighty good-looking in beige, gray pastels, or black. When white is chosen for the negligee itself, a pastel satin usually makes the lining.

Princess Effects Becoming.

Other fabrics favored for slinky, trailing hostess gowns are heavy satin, transparent velvet, bagheera and crinkly crepe. Even faille is used to some extent.

Princess effects are excellent. They are becoming to the short as well as to the tall figure. Empire lines are extremely fashionable just now but are at their best on women of average height or more. The small person can wear long, slim skirts with fitted basques successfully. Then there is the monkish type of negligee with cowl neck, cord sash, and side opening from top to bottom. It can be worn to advantage by almost anyone.

Aside from long, slithering lines, the dominant feature of the new hostess gowns is their sleeves. Years ago they all would have been long and serviceable looking, intended to cover arms and keep them warm. But in this decorative age they may stop halfway between elbows and wrist or they may be slashed from shoulder to hand in one or several slits.

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

IT'S NO USE worrying constantly about dangers that may beset the children, but it is worth while to reduce the possibilities to a minimum. And there are many ways in which a little thought may prevent accidents.

From the time the baby arrives make a practice of closing a safety pin as soon as you have removed it from his clothes, preferably pinning it down somewhere instead of leaving it in an accessible place. By the time he is old enough to reach for things and put them in mouth, you will have formed the habit of keeping them out of his way, reducing the danger of his swallowing an open pin.

When you are raking leaves and are called away from your task, be sure to put the rake with the prongs down, and insist that the elder children adopt the same precaution. In this posltion, the rake is not the hazard that it is if it is left with the prongs up.

Pencils and pens, left where children can reach them, can inflict unpleasant and often dangerous wounds. Make a practice of keeping them in a high place, beyond the reach of the curious 2-year-old.

Don't lift a pot or kettle of steaming water from the stove to the sink without making certain first that the toddler is not underfoot. A false step, and he can be scalded.

Carefulness is a habit that can be acquired by persistence. You can not escape accidents entirely when children are around, but with care you can minimize them.

How Does One Apply for Job With "Alphabet" Agency, Reader Asks.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Can you advise me how and to whom one should apply for a job with the NRA or any other of the alphabet organizations which have been operating during the Roosevelt Administration?

I have a good English education and have studied Latin for two years. I taught school for several years. HOPEFUL.

Routine Procedure.

DEAR HOPEFUL: For the person without significant qualifications and influential contacts, there is no alternative but to follow the formal procedure in making application for a post with one of the Federal agencies.

• • • •

This procedure begins with the gathering of written indorsements from the Democratic Senator from your home State and the Representative of your district. Armed with these, you apply to the personnel department of a given agency and ask for an application blank. The blank is filled out, indorsements are attached, and the application duly filed.

• • • •

The next step is to have your Senator or his secretary make a call, in person or by telephone, to the personnel officer of the agency in question, urging immediate consideration of your petition for employment. This is necessary, I am told, if your application is not to remain indefinitely on file, since every agency is literally swamped with such petitions.

• • • •

Mr. Morgan Baker, who, as editor of "The Federal Diary," which appears daily in The Post, handles scores of queries similar to yours each week, tells me there are over 125,000 such applications on file with the personnel department of the Library of Congress, more than 75,000 with the RFC, and at least 125,000 with the AAA.

• • • •

The above procedure applies to persons whose residence is in one of the States. Citizens of the District of Columbia "apparently haven't a chance," Mr. Baker says, "unless they have civil service rating." I suggest you call at this office at your convenience and discuss your problem with Mr. Baker, who is in constant contact with Federal employment machinery. M. H.

Blending Is Key To the Success Of Chiffon Pie

Delicate Filling Demands Flaky Crust and Here's a Recipe.

By Dorothea Duncan.

LET'S DELVE into the many mysterious qualities of the chiffon pie. Above all, the flavoring, whether egg-nog, pumpkin, lemon or merely vanilla, must be so delicate as to be almost indescribable. The whole substance of the filling is light, almost airy, and it has a real melt-in-the-mouth quality that puts it far above any other kind of pie.

The success of chiffon pie depends upon careful blending and cooking of ingredients. Certainly the ingredients are commonplace things, eggs, gelatin, sugar, flavoring for the most part. Then, too, to insure a warm reception and creditable applause for this master of pies, the crust which is baked before the filling is made must be crisp and flaky. The filling will lose most of its attractiveness if surrounded by a cardboard textured crust.

The crust is made before the filling, so let's start with that.

Pie Crust.

2 cups sifted cake flour
½ cup cold shortening
½ teaspoon salt
¼ to 1-3 cup ice water

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and sift again. Cut in shortening until mixture looks like meal. Add water, a little at a time, mixing with a knife or spatula until dough cleans bowl of all flour and pastry. Use as little water as possible. Chill before rolling. Handle dough as little as possible. Roll out half to fit pie tin. Crust may be baked either on the outside or inside of the pie tin. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes.

This recipe makes enough dough for two nine-inch pie shells. The other half may be used to make nine tart shells to be used the following day with a different filling.

If you have never tried a chiffon pie start with strawberry. Your family will appreciate the fresh berry flavor. Here is the recipe.

Strawberry Chiffon Pie.

1 tablespoon plain gelatin
4 eggs
1 cup fresh crushed strawberries, pulp and juice
¼ cup cold water
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¾ cup sugar

Soak gelatin in cold water until soft. Beat egg yolks separate from whites and beat in ½ cup of the sugar. Add lemon juice and salt to the egg yolk and sugar mixture. Cook egg yolk mixture in double boiler until of a custard consistency. Add the softened gelatin to the custard and stir until gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Cool and when this mixture starts to congeal fold in the egg whites which have been beaten stiff and to which the last ¼ cup of sugar has been beaten in. Pour into baked pie crust and set in a cool place to become firm. Do not set in refrigerator, however, as this may change the texture of the crust.

Before serving the pie, top with a thin layer of sweetened whipped cream, and decorate each slice with several whole perfect berries. The cream may be omitted if a less expensive or less rich dessert is desired.

Try the following recipe as a filling for the tart shells made from the leftover pie crust.

Marvel Lemon Filling

1 package lemon flavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups boiling water
¾ cup sugar
Grated rind and juice of 2 lemons
2 egg yolks
9 tart shells

Combine gelatin, sugar, salt and lemon rind with 3 tablespoons water. Add egg yolks and stir well. Add remaining water, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Cool. Add lemon juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, turn into cold tart shells. Chill until firm. Cover with meringue or serve with whipped cream.

Square Dealers Call Off Parley In Baton Rouge

House Committee, With Long Present, Approves 22 of His Bills.

By the Associated Press.

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 27.—The Square Deal Association, pledged in its platform for "repeal of the Huey Long dictatorship," today notified its membership to come to Baton Rouge to talk with legislators, but later rescinded the order.

The legislators, hastily summoned into extraordinary session yesterday, assembled for their night meeting to consider 80 bills Long personally sponsored.

Long's legislative program was dumped last night into the hoppers while the Legislature met under the protection of fixed bayonets of militiamen on duty in the martial-law reign in East Baton Rouge Parish.

Committee Approves 22 Bills.

Neither House met today, but the House ways and means committee held an hour's session at which Long was present and approved 22 of his 80 bills, all the Senator asked the committee to act upon today.

The bills were ready to be referred back to the House tonight, when the Legislature was expected to act upon a concurrent resolution authorizing the Governor to use his discretionary powers in rebating 4 cents of the 5 cents a barrel tax on refining oil.

This tax last December caused a serious break between Long and the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana and stirred young industrialists of Baton Rouge to organize the Square Deal movement.

Move to End Job Indorsed.

One bill approved today by the House committee would eliminate the job of Powers Higginbotham, commissioner of streets and parks in the Baton Rouge city government. This department, Long said, had not cooperated with him in his plan to make a little "District of Columbia" out of East Baton Rouge Parish.

Another approved bill doubles the maximum $1,000 supervision and inspection fee paid by utilities for support of the Louisiana Public Service Commission.

Local option liquor laws were proposed to be repealed with a general local option law which, Long said, should meet approval of the courts which have questioned the legality of existing statutes in wet Louisiana.

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 27.—Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer paid a farewell visit today to his 19-year-old son, Phil, in the Pawnee County Jail here as commitment papers were completed for the youth's commitment at the State Penitentiary to start serving a 25-year term for manslaughter.

Sheriff C. M. Burkdoll, who had not returned today from McAlester, where he delivered two other prisoners to the State Prison, will determine when young Kennamer is to be taken there. The commitment papers were drawn and signed this afternoon by Mrs. Nora Harshbarger, District Court clerk.

Currently Mr. Lincoln, world adventurer, is affiliated with the Buddhist faith. He is a monk, and has changed his name to Abbot Chao Kung, in lieu of his former name, which was Ignatius Timothy Trebitch Lincoln. Previously he had allied himself with several other faiths; first Jewish, then Lutheran, later Presbyterian, Anglican, and Quaker.

His many faiths are not the only highlights of his varied career. Born in Hungary, he preached in Canada, later went to England where he was elected to the House of Commons. He censored mail during the World War, later joined the German secret service, had trouble with the law in New York, and eventually served a three-year prison term in England.

It was after that that he was converted to Buddhism. He tried to preach the faith in England, but was refused entry there.

Strange as it seems, J. A. Hayes, San Francisco, has perfected muscle control to such a degree that he can exhibit his spinal column through his abdomen. He is able to force his abdominal organs into his chest so completely that the segments of the backbone can be clearly seen from the front. Another feat of muscle control demonstrated by Mr. Hayes is the expanding of one side of the chest while the other side remains in normal position.

Alabama Vote Sustains Law Against Liquor

Late Returns Give Victory to Drys; Arkansas House Votes Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 27.—Alabama, one of the only two States in the Nation retaining rigid prohibition laws, tonight in a popular vote had sustained dry statutes for the first time in the history of the State.

The vote on three questions submitted to the electorate yesterday on returns from 1,902 out of 2,156 ballot boxes in the State today gave the following results, subject to revision on official canvasses:

1. For modification of existing dry statutes, 89,354, and against, 94,998.
2. For legalization of beer and wine, 89,328, and against, 93,872.
3. For legalization of hard liquor, 87,903, and against, 95,085.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 27 (AP).—By a two-thirds vote, the Arkansas House of Representatives today joined the Senate in approving an immediate end of prohibition in this State, dry for 19 years.

The House, 67 to 30, attached to the Thorn package-sale liquor bill an emergency clause which would make the prohibition repealer effective upon passage by the Senate, which has passed a similar bill.

'Prince' Drugged Her Before 'Divorce' Raid, Woman Alleges

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 27.—"Prince" Michael Romanoff today heard himself castigated as a gay deceiver who "doped" his fair companion's drink so her husband could obtain divorce evidence.

All day in Supreme Court Mrs. Wilma E. Gould lashed at the "prince" and said he was the hireling of her husband, Edward Gould, and his family.

The "prince"—in reality Harry Gerguson, a one-time pants presser from Hillsboro, Ill.—sat across the courtroom from Mrs. Gould, suave as usual, never flinching in the face of the charge he compromised her for pay.

Even her introduction to Gerguson was arranged by the husband and his relatives, who are defendants in a $500,000 damage suit filed by Mrs. Gould, she testified.

"He swept me off my feet," Mrs. Gould said of the bogus prince.

"He proposed marriage to me February 2, 1931, only several days after he met me. Almost every day he invited me to the theater or to dinner."

Mrs. Gould said she was fascinated by such attention from a "member" of the old Russian imperial family—only recently has Romanoff been unmasked.

Then came the eventful night of February 10. They were at dinner. Mrs. Gould felt dizzy after drinking some wine. The "prince," she charged, took her to an apartment he rented.

"I was awakened by a terrific noise. I started to sit up. I found myself lying on my left side covered with a sheet in a bed," the attractive Mrs. Gould said.

"Romanoff jumped up and ran into the bathroom."

The terrific noise was the breaking down of the door by the husband. A detective was with him.

"Is this your wife?" the detective asked.

"Yes," Gould said.

Just as they were leaving the "prince" rushed out of the bathroom.

Chicago Police Seize 21 Striking Teamsters

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP).—Wounding of two coal truck drivers, as violence was resumed today in the 10-day-old strike of the Chicago Teamsters Union, was followed by a police raid on union headquarters. Twenty men were taken to the State's attorney's office for questioning.

Officials said the raid was part of a drive to stamp out violence, which had resulted in the wounding of more than a dozen truck drivers and the dumping of hundreds of tons of coal on Chicago streets by bands of roving hoodlums.

Veasey Asks 3.8 Millions Bond Issue

Counters Nice Proposal for 10 Millions in Emergency.

Proposes Tax on Beer to Finance the Smaller Loan.

By Francis O. White, Jr.,
A Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Indications of an additional battle over financial legislation cropped out today with the introduction in the Maryland Senate of a counter proposal to the $10,000,000 bond issue plan already on file.

Senator Milton L. Veasey, Worcester County, takes the view that there is no necessity of a loan greater than for the actual immediate emergencies and he therefore sponsored a bill providing for issuing $3,800,000 bonds, to offset the estimated deficit of $2,229,000 at the close of the fiscal year in September, and to provide $1,500,000 working capital.

So it looks as if the impending battle will be waged by forces aligned with Senator Veasey, against those headed by Senator J. Allan Coad, St. Mary's County, majority floor leader.

Satisfied that the $10,000,000 bond plan agreed upon by Gov. Nice and other State leaders, together with members of the fiscal committees to cover all emergencies, will be approved by the Assembly, Senator Coad expressed his opposition to the substitute proposal.

Financed by Beer Tax.

Veasey said the new proposal would be financed by a tax on beer, a bill providing for which was presented by him several weeks ago.

Senator Coad explained the larger loan would also cover items which must be included in the supplemental budget and avoid the necessity of diversion of road funds into the general treasury.

Coad added the finance committee, of which he is chairman, is ready to make a favorable report on the larger loan within the next day or two. Senator Veasey countered that he would have his bill made a substitute.

Concerning the financial situation, sub-committees of the Senate Finance, and House Ways and Means Committees were appointed to confer tomorrow with Herry Greenstein, relief administrator for Maryland, relative to the State's relief needs. As a result of this conference estimates will be prepared to be forwarded to United States Senators Millard E. Tydings and George R. Radcliffe, who will, in turn, present them to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Named on behalf of the Senate are Senators Stedman Prescott, Montgomery County; Richard S. Dodson, Talbot County; Joseph M. Wyatt, Baltimore City, and Veasey, of Worcester County. The House group consists of Kent R. Mullikin, Prince Georges County, chairman of ways and means; Dr. Charles V. Hayden, St. Mary's County; William G. Gassaway, Howard County; P. Elliott Burroughs, Wicomico County, and Thomas E. Conlon, Baltimore City.

New Legislation Offered.

Introduction of a number of new legislative proposals, final passage of about a dozen local measures which now go to the Governor, additional hearings on budget appropriations and other bills, combined to make a fairly lively legislative day.

Washington, Prince Georges, Carroll, Charles and Calvert Counties are included in a bill by Delegates Wilson and Meade, of Baltimore City, under terms of which the off sale of liquor, wine and beer would be prohibited in drug stores.

The bill to place Montgomery County airports under jurisdiction of the county commissioners occasioned a brief but lively fight on the floor of the House, and it was finally recommitted for redrafting. The bill came from committee with an unfavorable report. Delegate William R. Howard, Baltimore County, committee chairman, charged that licensing of county airports would tend to hinder both aviation and the State aviation commission. Delegate Joseph Cantrel, of the Montgomery County delegation, sponsor of the measure, which was the subject of a protracted hearing yesterday, defended it against the several attacks.

By a vote of 17 to 11, strict party lines being drawn, the Senate voted down the proposal to reduce the license fee on automobile tags by 37½ per cent. This bill was backed by Gov. Nice as a substitute for his campaign plank urging $2 tags, subsequently abandoned. Chairman Coad of the finance committee said adoption of such a measure would mean the loss of $600,000 annual revenue, which the State can not afford.

State-Wide Proposals.

Among new State-wide proposals were several providing minor changes on the workmen's compensation law.

New measures before the Senate include:

Directing the commissioner of motor vehicles to refuse licenses for automobiles owned in Chestertown and Betterton, unless taxes have been paid, and another bill authorizing the Kent County treasurer to collect motor vehicle taxes, repealing the existing liquor license tax law by placing the scale of fees from $75 to $300, according to classification. Under the present law the tax ranges from $25 to $50 for on or off sale licenses. The new proposal would permit one-day licenses in cases of outings or other forms of entertainment; fixing the court clerk's fees for docketing at $2.50 and 75 cents for each defendant to an action. By Veasey, of Worcester; Donovan, of Howard, and Higgins, Dorchester, permitting voters of those three counties to use only one mark to vote for all candidates of one party.

By Veasey and Donovan, regulating filing of certificates of candidates for nomination in Howard and Worcester Counties. By Harry Legore, Frederick County, three bills, changing the date of the tax levy in Frederick from September 1 to July 1, and authorizing Frederick County and Frederick City to aid the C. Burr Artz Library. By J. Allan Coad, St. Mary's County, providing for transportation of school children in that county. By Steadman Prescott, Montgomery County, two bills providing for the appointment of a superintendent of county aid, and a superintendent of school property in Montgomery County.

The Senate passed the following House bills which now go to the Governor for his action:

ABC in Virginia To Tighten Rules On Liquor Dealers

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.—The alcoholic beverage control board is considering new regulations aimed at the closer enforcement of the principle that wine and beer licenses and operators of licensed establishments be persons of good character. Maj. S. Heth Tyler, chairman of the board, announced today.

Maj. Tyler said inspectors of the board have reported some licensed establishments are being operated by persons other than those who obtained the original licenses.

Virginia's ABC Ruled Exempt On Federal Tax

State Stores Not Required to Pay Income Levy on Their Profits.

By the Associated Press.

Virginia will not have to pay a Federal income tax on the profits from its State liquor stores.

This matter of concern to State officials since the Internal Revenue Bureau ruled last year that Oregon must pay an income tax on its liquor earnings was cleared up yesterday by a new Treasury ruling.

The ruling held Montana liquor profits were exempt from the Federal tax and reversed the Oregon ruling, which had been applied to other States, including the Old Dominion.

State officials said approximately $500,000 of annual State income tax was involved in the decision.

Other States Affected.

The other States affected by the ruling are Washington, Maine, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Michigan, Iowa, Montana, New Hampshire, Oregon, Ohio and West Virginia.

The Treasury's new stand was made known for the first time when a Virginia committee called on Secretary Morgenthau to ask his attitude toward the bill exempting State liquor store profits. The group included Senator Byrd, Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, and Attorney General A. P. Staples. They were accompanied by Representative Samuel B. Hill, of Washington, author of the exemption measure.

They were told immediately that passage of the bill was unnecessary under the new ruling and were handed copies of the opinion of Herman Oliphant, Treasury general counsel. The conference lasted only a few minutes.

Morgenthau's Statement.

Byrd said Morgenthau informed them "no effort would be made" to tax the States' stores incomes. The Federal stamp tax will continue to be collected on the alcoholic beverages sold by the Virginia dispensaries.

Hill said "apparently we can forget about my bill."

The Treasury ruling did not pass upon whether the Government had the right to tax such profits but held it was not the intent of Congress that such taxes be levied under existing laws.

"It may be assured," Oliphant wrote, "that Congress did not desire in any way to restrict a State's participation in enterprises which might be useful in carrying out those projects desirable from the standpoint of the State government, which, on a broad consideration of the question, may be the function of the sovereign to conduct; and it may reasonably be considered that it was the possibility of such restriction which persuaded Congress not to include State income within the subjects taxed by the various revenue acts since 1913."

The Oregon ruling held that the State liquor businesses were nongovernmental functions and therefore subject to the corporate income tax.

Woman Hunted In 'Hex' Theft Of $4,600 Cash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27.—A woman clairvoyant is being sought in four States today on information supplied authorities by a railroad worker whose identity the police would not reveal.

The victim told police the fortune teller departed several days ago with $4,600 he had given her to pray over so a "hex" could be removed from his system.

The victim told police he had been ill and consulted the woman, who established herself here several weeks ago. He was told, he said, that he had been hexed because of evil money he held. He was advised to bring her the money, that she would pray over it 24 hours and it would be cleansed as well as his system. He complied, and the next day the woman and other members of her family disappeared.

The police sent out notices requesting that the woman be held; that she was last seen traveling in a car bearing West Virginia license tags.

The three contended Byrd lent them the machine, which the taxicab driver denied, contending they took the car after one attempted to hold him up with a revolver.

Conference to Launch Drive For Standard Milk Ordinances

State Health Chief to Outline Requirements at Hagerstown; Session Opens March 7; Several Counties to Send Delegates.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 27.—A program to standardize milk ordinances in every city and incorporated town of Maryland will be outlined at a two-day conference opening here March 7. Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State department of health, will preside.

The conference here is one of several to be held in the State during March and will be attended by health officers and sanitarians. The meeting will be attended by these officials from Montgomery, Howard, Frederick, Carroll and Allegany counties.

The first day of the conference will be devoted to the discussion of the standard milk ordinance, sanitation and other matters.

March 8 sanitarians of the five counties will confer with Fred W. Caspari, special engineer and representative of the United States Public Health Service, who will direct intensive work on milk sanitation.

The standard milk ordinance has been operating in Hagerstown four years and has been found effective in the protection of public health, while it is also acceptable to dairy owners and distributors. Annapolis is the only other Maryland city which has adopted the standard milk ordinance.

So popular is the standard milk ordinance in Washington county that a group of milk producers has requested the county health department to endeavor to have larger incorporated towns in the county adopt the ordinance.

Under the standard milk ordinance, milk is graded according to the quality. Sanitation of dairies and bacteria count are bases for grading. While producers are not required to produce any specific grade, yet each grade must be so marked on the label. Grades produced by each dairy are published twice a year in the newspapers, so that dealers and consumers may know the quality of milk they are purchasing.

'Moonshine' Output Rises

Concern Over Quantity of Illicit Liquor in Virginia Is Expressed by Tax Enforcement Officer; 32 Stills Seized in Week.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.—Concern over the "decided increase in moonshine activities" in Virginia was expressed today by John H. Wickham, in charge of alcohol tax enforcement for the State.

Mr. Wickham said he was "astounded" at the quantity being manufactured in this section, and complaints from citizens and reports from his agents show there has been a decided spurt in the manufacture of illicit whisky the last several weeks.

"What is occasioning this increase I don't know," Mr. Wickham said today. "I do know that last week my inspectors did more work than at any time since repeal."

Thirty-two illicit distilleries were captured and destroyed last week and 88,856 gallons of mash captured. The mash seized had a potential output of 8,885 gallons of distilled spirits.

Utility Fight Ends in Pact

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 27.—The City of Charlottesville and the Virginia Public Service Co. have settled their differences over a street lighting franchise and a municipal share in company profits with an agreement under which the utility will make a capital outlay of approximately $40,000 here and the city will drop proposed legal proceedings against the company.

The agreement, which has been signed by Vice President R. A. Jones and Secretary L. W. VanBibber, for the Virginia Public Service Co., calls for:

The construction of a "white way" on Main street at an estimated cost of $11,500.

Replacement of the present antiquated system of street arc lights with a more modern system of incandescent lights of a type to be selected by the city.

A new contract for the city's water pumping requirements at a rate of .0165 per kilowatt hour. The reduction in the rate is about 50 per cent.

Payment by the Virginia Public Service Co. to the city of $1.75 per year on each pole owned by the company within the corporate limits. City Manager Seth Burnley today estimated that this will bring the municipality revenue of between $3,000 and $3,500 annually.

Cumberland City Faces $.04 Boost In Its Tax Rate

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 27.—An increase in the Cumberland City tax rate, which was 92 cents last year, is regarded as certain this year by city authorities. The rise will be at least 4 cents, it was declared.

Increased estimated expenses in the 1935 budget were cited by the councilmen.

Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill authorizing the mayor and council to put 4 per cent of the total levy into a sinking fund, which over a period of years would enable the city to build up a reserve, has found many adherents.

City Auditor Frank A. Wolfhope stated he believes establishing of such a fund would raise the tax rate about 4 cents.

Virginia Lists $200,000,000 In Works Needs

State Projects Exceed Half of Sum; Towns, Counties Top 98 Millions.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.—Public works needs of institutions, agencies and political subdivisions in Virginia compiled today were estimated to exceed $200,000,000, Col. James A. Anderson, State PWA engineer reported.

State departments and institutions listed projects estimated to cost $101,681,806.72, while cities, towns and counties submitted projects estimated to cost $98,749,968.81. Others were to be added before the report goes to Washington tomorrow.

These figures were compiled from the answers to questionnaires sent out by the PWA in an inventory of needs for the information of those who would administer the $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund asked of Congress by President Roosevelt, should the measure pass.

Col. Anderson emphasized that the institutions, departments and localities are not now making application for PWA funds for these projects, but merely are participating in the inventory. If the appropriation is granted, they then may make application for the money.

The State Colony for Epileptics and Feeble-Minded listed needs costing $175,000; the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind, $396,000; Virginia Industrial School for Boys, $84,000; Eastern State Hospital, $500,000; Virginia Polytechnic Institute, $1,450,000; Fredericksburg State Teachers College, $650,000; Virginia State College for Negroes, $928,000; State Library, $1,113,576.15; Central State Hospital, $960,000; Farmville State Teachers College, $235,000; State Industrial Farm for Women, $200,000; University of Virginia, $2,605,000; State Farm and Farm for Defectives, $26,000; Virginia State School for Colored Deaf and Blind, $30,000; Medical College of Virginia, $2,689,735.57; State Highway Department, $25,795,000; Virginia Commission for the Blind, $500,000; Virginia Penitentiary, $73,000; State Forest Service, $586,890; State Conservation and Development, $59,618,405; Catawba Sanitarium, $260,000; Blue Ridge Sanitarium, $317,000; Piedmont Sanatorium, $316,000; State Commission on Conservation and Development, Division of Parks, $1,987,375; Blue Ridge Industrial School, $85,000; Gloucester Library, $25; Whitaker Memorial Hospital, $100,000.

Teachers at Quincy May Miss Another Pay

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Feb. 27.—Unless the semiannual State appropriation of $7,800, less 30 per cent, arrives before Friday, teachers in Quincy Township schools will go without salaries for the second consecutive month, J. Merle Freet, member of the board, said today.

Inability to collect taxes also has been a cause for delay in salaries. Teachers were without pay in January.

Crawford's Alibi False, Lawyer Says

Charles H. Houston, of Howard, Upholds His Defense of Case.

Says He'll Prove Today Utmost Was Done to Fight Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.—A promise to prove tomorrow, through an interview with George Crawford, now serving a life sentence in the Virginia Penitentiary, that the Negro did not have an alibi defense capable of being presented at his trial in December, 1933, for the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsey, was made today by Charles H. Houston, dean of the Howard University School of Law, Washington.

Houston, who conducted Crawford's defense on behalf of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, recalled that there had been some published criticism of his manner of handling the case, particularly his failure to present the alibi which Crawford had offered at extradition hearings following his arrest in Massachusetts for the murder of the Middlesburg, Va., society matron and her maid.

On the question of this alibi Houston said he would bring to Richmond "certain clothes which Crawford abandoned in Washington when he fled this city after the murders." These clothes, he said, were obtained at a place Crawford said they would be found and will be examined by Crawford in the presence of newspaper representatives who may question him about them.

Houston said that he and his associates did not represent Crawford at Boston and that, while they do not question the sincerity of his counsel there in presenting the alibi or of the witnesses who testified to it, he and his associates discovered before the Virginia trial that the alibi was not true.

Tomorrow's interview, to which Crawford has consented, is intended, Houston said, to clear the national society of any blame in connection with the way the case was conducted.

Peery Will Act On Road Plans

To Confer With Ickes on Scenic Rights Needed for Parkway.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Byrd said yesterday Gov. Peery of Virginia would confer with Secretary Ickes on the question of obtaining scenic rights to property adjoining the proposed Shenandoah-Great Smoky Mountains parkway.

Earlier, Byrd planned a call on the Interior Secretary, but decided to wait until the Governor could get to Washington.

Construction of the parkway, which will connect the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia with the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, has been held up while Virginia obtains 400 feet scenic easements on either side of the 200-foot right of way.

Virginia officials said they had obtained from 70 to 80 per cent of the easements and urged that construction be started immediately on the northern end of the road between Jarmans Gap and Swift Run Gap.

Interior Department officials, however, said Ickes would not permit the work to begin until the requested easements are acquired.

Samuel L. "Roxy" Rothafel Refutes Fantastic Tales of Fabulous Theater Losses

Wild Rumor's Fallacy Bared By Showman

Returns to Phila. in Fall; Roadsiders Incorporate; Gossip of Theater.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Some fantastic reports have come out of Philadelphia recently concerning the amount of the losses sustained by the Roxy-Mastbaum Theater during the 10-week period it has been under the managing directorship of Samuel Lionel (Roxy) Rothafel. The reputed sums in which the Roxy-Mastbaum has gone in the red have ranged from $200,000 to $450,000 on the typewriters of a few of the less thoughtful reporters.

This, of course, is utterly ridiculous. It is possible to make or lose vast sums of money in the theater in comparatively short periods of time, but not that much in the brief interval of 10 weeks.

It seems no more than the part of simple justice, therefore, to present at least a skeleton of Roxy's side of the case. Mr. Rothafel, indeed, does not deny that the Roxy-Mastbaum lost money during his stewardship, but insists, with a fair share of corroboratory evidence on his side, that the total losses have not exceeded $30,000, including the rental of the property, which would have to be paid whether the theater was operating or not.

Figures Outrun Reason.

"Even if we had given away all our admissions," observed Mr. Rothafel in a recent New York interview, "we could not have lost as much as $200,000. The average weekly budget, which I strictly stayed within, was $24,000. The average 'take' for each week was $27,000. We had some excellent weeks, twice hitting a high of $43,000, once $37,000 and another time $28,000.

"The average profit per week, exclusive of rent," continued Roxy, "was $3,000. Rent during the 10 weeks came to $58,700, leaving a net loss of about $28,000 or $30,000."

The alleged misrepresentation of the actual economic status of the Roxy-Mastbaum probably had its genesis in the thought that Sam Rothafel goes in for showmanship in the grand manner and either makes enormous profits or suffers staggering losses on the flip of a production, so to speak. It is true that his most flamboyant successes in theater management have been scored when an unlimited bankroll was at his immediate and unrestricted disposal. Sometimes he has cashed in handsomely; on some other occasions he has not.

"Put on a Show" Here.

Among the few exceptions may be mentioned the first few weeks of operation of the Fox Theater in this city, when Roxy brought down a huge chorus, ballet, spectacular effects and whatnot and ran up a "nut" that the Fox box-office just simply could not crack. Instead of cracking the nut, it cracked down on Roxy's extravagant policy. Even so, it didn't crawl out of the red for many, many months.

However, the Philadelphia experience seems not to have been the debacle it has been represented. In substantiation of that belief is the statement that S. L. Rothafel will return to the Roxy-Matsbaum in the fall with every expectation of turning in a highly profitable season. This comes both from Mr. Rothafel and the Warner Brothers and so may have some foundation in fact.

At any rate, Sam has gone places since the old days when he used to perspire through the back of his white duck Marine uniform pumping the "William Tell" overture out of the only piano-player on the island, which, many years ago, reposed in a rear corner of Bob Holmes' La Margarita Cafe on the Plaza Principal in the sun-drenched city of San Juan, Puerto Rico!

He played a very fine piano—with his feet.

That unnamed doe which for the past week has occupied a conspicuous place in the improvised stall in the lobby of Loew's Fox Theater, where its presence is designed to stimulate interest in "Sequoia," the current screen feature, will immediately be named Bonibu—if she hasn't been already. This, as you have already suspected, is a combination of "bon," meaning good, and "ibu," meaning deer, and is the prize-winning name submitted by 16-year-old Eve Mark-Wardlaw, daughter of Commander A. L. P. Mark-Wardlaw, Naval Attache of the British Embassy. Miss Mark-Wardlaw, a student at the Cathedral School for Girls, will soon be thrilled by the receipt of a $5 check from Loew's Fox, rewarding her originality and ingenuity in devising a name that really means something.

The Roadside Incorporates.

Incorporation of the Roadside Theater, Washington's original "barn" theater, in preparation for its second summer season, and the affiliation with the organization of Edwin H. Etz, as treasurer, were announced yesterday by the trustees.

In order to lay the groundwork for a permanent organization and to facilitate the transaction of the theater's business, those who organized and operated the first "barn" theater the Capital ever had, so successfully last year, decided to form a nonprofit-sharing corporation, under the laws of the District of Columbia.

Walter Pick, who conceived the idea of giving Washington a summer theater, comparable to those which are so popular in New England and on Long Island, and who acted as general manager of the enterprize; Richard Creyke, business manager; Catherine Prichard, director of publicity; Edith I. Allen, designer-technician, and Anton Hardt and Harrold Weinberger, play directors, headed the Roadside Theater last summer.

No Stock for Sale.

Edwin H. Etz, who assumes the post of treasurer, is head of the long-established optical firm bearing his name in this city. He has been associated with local dramatics for a number of years, particularly as a member of the Arts Club of Washington.

No stock will be sold in the Roadside Theater, inasmuch as a nonprofit-sharing corporation under the terms of the law must devote any profits that may accrue from its activities to the advanement of the objects for which it was organized—in this case, "for the development of literary, artistic and dramatic talents and to educate and to give opportunity for practice in the dramatic arts." Stock in a corporation of this type does not pay dividends, even if it earns them!

The management and general policy of the Roadside Theater will be the same as last summer. The present officers are Anton Hardt, president; Walter Pick, vice president; Catherine Prichard, secretary, and Edwin H. Etz, treasurer.

Here's wishing the energetic Roadsiders as prosperous and generally successful a season in their second year as they enjoyed in their first!

One gathers from subterranean sources and persistent rumors that are being bandied about that the Roadside Theater group will not suffer from its former property's having been converted to other uses, concerning which litigation is now pending. While sentimental attachment will no doubt center for a time in the old shoe-heel factory, out Rockville pike way considerably beyond Bethesda, Md., there are those who will tell you that a lease was signed last Saturday for a new "barn" playhouse out on that same Rockville pike, but nearer Washington and both more visible and more accessible from the "main rud" than the rambling brick building so close to the railroad track that the trains practically ran through the auditorium about the middle of every second act!

The new theater will have virtually the same seating capacity as the former one and will possess the additional advantages of larger stage, more space for dressing rooms and other facilities essential to the satisfactory presentation of plays.

Who asks, "What's become of the Roadside Players?"

On the Second Ring.

The postman rang twice again yesterday and slipped this interesting communication from Mr. Robert Pier Elliott, consulting organ architect, War Department, Office of the Quartermaster General, 2242 Munitions Building, through the slot in the door, February 26 having been the date of its writing:

My dear Mr. Bell: Apropos your comments inclosed (This would be a clipping from yesterday's column pertaining to the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co.—Ed.) you have found the truth at the bottom of that well. I feel precisely as you do about the Savoy operas, and I have suffered through the first Gilbert and Sullivan revivals I ran upon here, in which the libretti were "gagged" until I gagged in sympathy.

Living in South America for some years, I found I enjoyed the grand opera we used to get, even on the West Coast, which was less populous and prosperous than the Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro of those days. And I reasoned it out that it was better to hear a balanced company of the Italian, Spanish and French traveling troupes we had visiting us in Chile and Peru than to hear one or more stars of the Metropolitan "supported" by indifferent singers and a poor chorus.

There was a time when opera here was all for show, all "names," and the devil take the musician who wanted real opera. I think I learned more operas in those years in South America than in all the rest of my life, until I lived in Chicago and heard the excellent Ravinia Park organization every summer.

They, too, took the trouble to work up and sing the unusual operas that rarely were given a chance in the metropolis—and they loved to do it. That was a happy operatic family, five and ten years ago.

Thought you might be interested. I just read your article.

Yours truly,

(Signed) R. P. ELLIOT.

You revive extremely gracious recollections, Mr. Elliot, of days when I, too, wandered around the West Indies and South America and heard better opera, in the large view, than much I have heard since back in the States—especially a memorable performance of "Lucia di Lammermoor," in which Tetrazzini, not yet discovered by Oscar Hammerstein, pere, and the East, "made a fool of the flute," in the so-called mad scene, at 50 cents, 75 cents and $1! Later on, the same performance sold for $5, $7.50, $10 and up, on Broadway.

A good many notes have wafted through the pipes since then, but it is pleasant to recall.

It is Ninth street's Chesterfieldian Beau Brummel, Old Col. Jimmy "Sports Arena" Lake, who nudges me to say that among the reasons this week's attraction at the Gayety Theater is being hailed as one of the best of the season is that Nate Busby is in it. This blackface comic, whose fun is the backbone of the "book" of the "Baby Vamps" show, was a featured member of the cast that presented "The Blue Ghost" in the Belasco Theater in this city before the Lafayette Square house went foreign movie, and also was a featured player in "The Gorilla," when that eerie melo was presented in the Oxford Theater, London, under the management of the celebrated C. B. Cochrane. It seems to me, too, that Nate has been featured a few times on vaudeville stages in the Capital in a comedy skit or two.

As for the preeminence of the "Baby Vamps," I suspect that Maxine De Shone has something to do with it, along with Mr. Busby. Maxine adds charm as a singer to numerous others that she possesses, taking her place up there in the first flight of burlesque's arch enemies of concealment beside Ann Corio, Hinda Wausau, Nadja and one or two others.

Gem of the Ocean Is Busy.

"On Wings of Song" went into active production in Columbia Pictures' West Coast studios this week. This is the long-heralded and eagerly awaited second vehicle for Grace Moore, whose brilliant operatic endowments, aided and abetted by a pretty good story and the able assistance of Tulio Carminati and an A-1 cast, made "One Night of Love" one of the sensations of last year.

This time, Leo Carillo heads the supporting cast. After 10 days of voice tests and auditions, in which hundreds of singers were heard, choruses for the mammoth musical numbers have been chosen and rehearsed for the critical ear of Victor Schertzinger, who once more will wave a baton and wield a megaphone over the goings-on.

Actual recording is under way by the "hill and dale" method that proved so effective in capturing the glorious Moore voice in the earlier vehicle. Further improvement in sound recording is promised by a new gadget that is said to prevent blasting, or overloading the recording mechanism, when the higher notes are registered.

If Columbia hadn't already done it with "It Happened One Night" and "Broadway Bill," we'd be tempted to say they couldn't repeat with Miss Moore. In view of past performances, perhaps they can. Odds of 6 to 5 and take your choice is what we always say at times like this.

Columbia, however, is pulling another one about which I would not be so sure. A late bulletin announces that Wiley Post, round-the-world, solo-flight record holder, is postponing his stratosphere flight to make his motion picture debut in an important part in Columbia's "Air Fury." The flight, which Mr. Post expects will better the coast to coast record by several hours, will be made an integral part of the action of the picture. The airman will fly from Los Angeles to New York at an unheard-of altitude, a feat made possible by a new stratosphere flying suit of his own invention. And who is going along with him in that other plane, to take the pictures, did you say? And, once more, just how long does Wiley think that Winnie Mae of his is going to hang together? Winnie Mayn't.

The Jayhawker Meets Diamond Lil

"How'm I doin'?" queries Mae West, and as far as Fred Stone is concerned she seems to be doin' all right. Stone, in Hollywood to make his first talkie for Paramount—following the short life of the Lewises' "Jayhawker," on the living stage this season—wanted to meet the blonde star as soon as he arrived on the lot and was taken at once to her "How'm I Doin'?" set. As Bill Hay would say, here they are.

Navy Musicians Present Works Of D. C. Artists

Members of Washington Composers Club Well Represented.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

The Navy Symphony Orchestra concert in the sail loft last night was an important civic event for two reasons: The orchestra, usually heard as a band unit, did a more than creditable job with difficult symphonic music; and the program offered Washington a cross section of its musically creative efforts.

The following members of the Washington Composers Club were represented: Edward C. Potter, who offered "The Lotus Eaters" and "The Hairy Ape;" Mary Howe, "Dirge;" "Impressions of the Bowery," by La Salle Spier; "Cathedral Cliffs," by R. Deane Shure; "Impressions of New Market Caverns," by J. Alden Finckel, and a piano concerto by Louis Malone. In addition, "Rickshaw Ride," by R. H. Greenwell, and "Querida Mia," a habanera by Lieut. Charles Benter, the leader, were played.

As evidenced by his two compositions and their diverse treatment, Mr. Potter is by no means a one-sided composer. The "Lotus Eaters" is in a fragile mood, with shifting harmonies and pale tone colors depicting a true feeling of forgetfulness. "The Hairy Ape," a visualization of O'Neill's play, is best described in the program notation:

"The elation of brute strength, a vision of beauty, the contact with conventional society, disillusionment, despair and death.

"These four contrasted movements made the composition a unified and interesting whole. When the singular thematic loveliness of the 'vision' was followed by the bumptious five-tone pattern that must have been the ape's own simple boorishness, it was an indication of the imaginative qualities of the composer.

"Impressions of the Bowery" has been heard in Washington before, and a second hearing enhances its delightfulness. It has vigor and movement, gayety and quick humor, tenderness and the eerie quality that the composer found in Chinatown. Its noisiness is to its credit — something not often achieved in the realm of music. Better, its themes are outstanding and leave a decided impression.

While on impressions, Mr. Finckel has presented a many-sided view in his "Impressions of New Market Caverns." The first movement, "Entrance and Mirror Lake," in which he sees phantom cities in the water, brings color and mysticism to the eyes as it does to the ears. The second movement offers "The Ballroom," in two sections, a waltz and a love song. The waltz has almost a Viennese lilt; a suggestion of antiquity like the wave of an old fan. In the love song Mr. Finckel borrows a trick used by our finest dance orchestras—a simple sentimental melody played by solo trombone. "Shadow Dance of the Stalagmites" is a droll movement. One almost expected to see a gnome hopping over a cavern puddle.

Mary Howe's "Dirge" has the elements of real beauty, dulled in spots by what appeared to be, on first listening, too sharp discords. There is intensity in the "Dirge," a musical moan that is carefully restrained, dying at the end with an upward sweep of the strings.

Mr. Shure has presented a clear musical form in his "Cathedral Cliffs." Themes are cantrasted well and brought clearly to the attention; the orchestration is full and evenly balanced. From the pictorial standpoint the visualization is not as pronounced as it might be. However, Mr. Shure has used several solo instruments to good effect, his sense of tonal color showing a knowledge of orchestral possibilities.

With the exception of Mrs. Howe's "Dirge," the only other bit of nondescriptive music on the program was Louis Malone's piano concerto, played by the composer. This, too, shows a versatile musical mind and good wormanship. The first theme, crisp and rhythmic, sprouts with the trumpet, grows on the piano, blossoms with the full orchestra and slips smoothly into the second subject, a melody that truly "sings" and keeps one humming as one leaves the hall. Mr. Malone played it with an absense of temperament that is creditable to a composer intrusted with the care of his brain child; his phrases were finished; his interpretations sincere. K. S.

Watching Them Make Pictures.

Hollywood, Feb. 26.

ON THE set of "The Call of the Wild" there are Jack Oakie, Clark Gable and two large, fine looking dogs. These actors are the leading players in the flicker. Oakie is displaying a red beard, and it was not furnished by the makeup department. He grew it himself. His dark brown hair sprouts a prominent red on his face. Gable is wearing a pair of coarse trousers and a flannel shirt, the outfit of a Klondike miner, and only recently he was named one of the best-dressed men in America.

The two dogs standing there are a Great Dane and a St. Bernard, and in this Jack London tale it is the dog, Buck, who is the hero. The St. Bernard is playing the role of Buck; his real name is King, and he is making his picture debut as a star. The Great Dane is Grey Boy, and he already has a list of flickers to his credit. Grey Boy is a star from silent pictures. He played in, among others, "Dog of Flanders."

• • • •

Both dogs are owned by Carl Spitz, whose special business is to train dogs for the screen and hire them out. Spitz is always on the set, out of the focus of the camera, when one of the dogs is working. The dogs look to him for instruction and cues. He receives $450 a week for the two dogs and his service. King had to take a screen test to get the job. Both dogs have stand-ins, who pose there while Director Bill Wellman is making his set-up. These dogs know they are acting. Director Wellman will tell you that a dog, when he is a star, is more temperamental than most of the temperamental stars.

• • • •

Muir and Powell gallop over the course. Director Dieterle shouts, "No, no. Why do you purposely kick your dress so high?" He is talking to Miss Muir and not Mr. Powell. "This is Shakespeare and not a burlesque show," says Dieterle. "Didn't raise my dress any more than necessary," answers Miss Muir. Dieterle tells Jean Muir exactly how high she kicked up her costume, and the line gets a big howl from those on the set. It is another of Dieterle's classic remarks in his own particular style of English, which, of course, can't even be hinted at here. I can only tell you that it makes the sailor dialogue in "Sailor Beware" seem as if Cinderella were talking.

• • • •

Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson are playing a scene for "Oil for the Lamps of China." Miss Hutchinson is not as camera conscious as she was in the first flickers; she now looks at the player she is speaking to instead of taking sly peeps at the camera to see if it is there. Pat O'Brien went into training for this role. He took off weight; his face is thinner and his figure more trim. He was told that he had to acquire more sex appeal to play this romantic lead, and that was why he did it.

• • • •

PERFORMERS catch up with their card playing when they are working in a picture. On the set of "Man-Eating Tiger," while Director Clyde Bruckman is trying to get a scene with Claire Trevor and Walter King, Jack Haley, ZaSu Pitts and Mitchell and Durant play hearts for practically an hour. It is as amusing to watch Miss Pitts play cards as it is to watch her on the screen. Her hands flutter as she holds the cards, and you can tell by the amount of fluttering whether ZaSu is holding the dirty Queen Bess. She likes to talk while playing, and asks me: "Did you see 'Ruggles of Red Gap'?" I tell her that I did, and what a great picture it is. Miss Pitts says: "I played the love interest in it. Imagine that. It's the first time I've played the love interest for as long as I can remember. Me—the love interest. I'm telling you I was thrilled." The assistant director walks over.

"You'll all be needed in the scene soon, so judge your game accordingly." One can't allow a little picture to interfere with a good card game.

• • • •

Billie Burke is standing-in for herself in "Doubting Thomas" under the hot lights. Stars have stand-ins and pay them personally. Featured players are generally provided with a stand-in by the company. Billie Burke, a former Broadway star and silent picture star, hasn't a stand-in. Miss Burke doesn't ask for a stand-in because she doesn't wish to be believed temperamental. But Director David Butler becomes aware of this, and the next day the company supplies a stand-in. Will Rogers won't play a scene as directed. Director Butler asks why. "I won't play it that way," answers Rogers. "That's the way an actor would play it."

Parole Approval Delayed Pending Job Arrangement

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 27.—Parole Commissioner Gaylord Clark today filed for further consideration the application of Clarence Naill.

Naill was sentenced from Frederick County for causing the death of a man by striking him with his fist at a baseball game. Clark stated the parole was not recommended because Naill had not yet been offered suitable employment for after his release.

The commissioner referred the application of Clyde C. Koons, a Frederick County resident, for a pardon, to Gov. Harry W. Nice.

Ten paroles were recommended, 14 were declined and two were held over by the commissioner.

Babe Ruth to Become Manager of Braves 'In 1936 or Sooner'

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 27.

UNDER pressure from Owner Clark Griffith of the Washington Club, the Biloxi Chamber of Commerce this afternoon produced four hours of sunlight and reestablished the Gulf Coast in the favor of the Nats' boss.

After a second consecutive morning of wintry blasts that transformed the workout of the Washington rookies into a work-or-freeze proposition, Griffith let it be known in a general way that the St. Louis Browns contract for West Palm Beach as a training site expired this season and that the Washington club was interested in the Florida resort.

His remarks galvanized the chamber of commerce into action immediately. Secretary Anthony V. Ragusin, of the chamber, apparently lost little time in contacting the celestial authorities and his pleas were heard after a two-day break in relations, and the chamber's collective sigh of relief echoed across the Gulf like the siren-sound of a Kansas twister.

GRIFFITH.

Griffith was further pacified this afternoon, when by the strangest coincidence, he won a $2.75 raffle at the weekly Lyons Club luncheon on a 25-cent investment. Brother Griffith was the chief speaker at the luncheon, assuring the natives that Biloxi still was dear to him, that he had made a wise choice of managers in Bucky Harris, and that he regretted that he had but one Joe Cronin to sell to the Red Sox for $250,000.

Griffith's threat to remove the Nats training camp to Florida next year was vague. But it was hardly an idle one. In Biloxi, the Nats are off the beaten trail of the ball clubs in the South, and only with the greatest difficulty can they schedule training games here. Aside from Cleveland's presence in New Orleans, no other big league team is within a day's reach of here.

The Nats owner already has requested Outfielder Heinie Manush, a native of Palm Beach, to inspect the playing field there with a view to sounding out officials of the Florida town on concessions that might be made to the Washington club, although Griffith has repeatedly expressed his liking for Biloxi.

The sandy soil of Florida ball parks is a pet aversion of Griffiths, ever since the 1926 season when Outfielder Sammy West suffered a severe charley horse in his leg while attempting a quick start in the outfield at Palm Beach, where the Nats were playing the Giants in an exhibition game. The lure of eight other big league clubs within easy reach, however, finds Griffith contemplating the benefits of increased gate receipts at exhibition games.

The Nats' intake at games here does not approximate $1,000 throughout the spring and the barnstorming games en route North do not pay the traveling expenses. Twenty thousand is the figure it will cost the Nats to put the club through the spring paces this year, and it is from two week-end games against the Cubs in Chicago early in April that Griffith will recoup half of that sum.

Signed, unsigned, invited and uninvited, ambitious young rookies are swarming over the Washington training grounds daily, representing the largest crop of young talent ever to appear in the South with the Nats. Two hitch-hikers from Washinton, a second baseman from Mobile, and a slew of ambitious kids from all along the Gulf Coast are overrunning the field and the dressing rooms.

The Nats are out of uniforms and they work out in attire that bears the emblems of sandlot teams, school teams and CCC camps. The uninvited live in boarding houses here, cook their own meals in the clubhouses, or commute from points along the Coast. Owner Griffith and Trainer Mike Martin deal kindly with them, but opine that there isn't even one potential big leaguer among 'em.

Not in the memory of Griffith's 48 years in baseball has a lad trudged into a big league training camp and made good. The good ones do not arrive uninvited. With the elaborate scouting system now employed by both major and minor leagues, no player of any appreciable talent escapes the eyes of the ivory hunters. Thus, the free lancers get little official notice here.

Griffith today modestly declared he can distinguish a ball player simply by looking at him, or talking with him. How he arrives at his conclusions, he was neither prepared nor able to say, except that.. it may be a sixth sense. At any rate, he's not infallible. It cost him $20,000 and Pitcher Carl Fischer to get a look at Dick Coffman, of the Browns, a couple of years ago, only to discover that Fischer was a better pitcher than Coffman.

Myer Signs With Nats For 1935

Star Infielder Gets in Line After 2-Hour Conference.

Holdouts Plentiful as Real Training Period Approaches.

By Shirley L. Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 27.—Out of a hotel room blue with the cigar smoke of battle, seeped the information that Owner Clark Griffith and Second Baseman Buddy Myer had reached agreement on the salary terms of the Washington player's 1935 contract.

For two hours the Nats' owner and his second baseman were in conference, seemingly locked in a battle to enforce their own terms or asphyxiate each other in the attempt. Between pulls on the big black cheroots which are inseparable to both, they arrived at a satisfactory conclusion.

Whether it was an honorable surrender by both, or whether the little second baseman was forced to lay down his cigar in token of defeat, neither would say, but after groggily making his way to the lobby, Griffith announced that the terms were entirely satisfactory to both himself and Myer.

Myer Arrived Today.

The second baseman arrived here for luncheon with Mrs. Myer from their winter home in Ellisville, Miss., two hours' drive from the Nats' headquarters, to discuss the salary question with Griffith before visiting New Orleans and the Mardi Gras.

"Myer has accepted terms, but he has not signed the contract yet," said Griffith. "However, that is now only a formality."

Asked how much of a salary reduction Myer had received, the white-haired owner of the Nats stormed: "His salary wasn't cut."

To the query asking if Myer received an increase, Griffith said, "Yes, a little." Thus Myer appears to have won whatever honors either party gained during the smoke of battle. Myer's increase does not include, Griffith said, the additional $500 he will automatically receive as captain of the team in 1935, a post to which he has already been appointed by Manager Bucky Harris, who thus silenced finally recurrent reports of a former feud with his second baseman.

As captain, Myers' chief duty will be to tender to the umpires before the game the little slip of paper containing the line-up and batting order of the Nats.

Keeps Terms Secret.

Griffith refused to divulge the terms of Myers' contract, but it is reliably reported to be in the neighborhood of $10,000, which is considered a nice neighborhood in these days.

Thus Griffith's hold-out troubles are reduced by one. Still out of the fold are First Baseman Joe Kuhel, Shortstop Lyn Lary and Pitchers Earl Whitehill, Bobby Burke, Walter Stewart and Jack Russell.

Griffith admitted today that Kuhel had been given a cut in his $9,000 salary of last season in view of his absence from the line-up in 1934 as a result of his broken leg, but declared that the salaries of none of the other hold-outs had been reduced. Whitehill and Burke, he said, were offered raises. Lary's offer salary equals the highest figure he received during his three years with the Yankees, Griffith said.

The baseball training camp of the Nats will take on the semblance of a baseball training camp tomorrow when Manager Bucky Harris arrives from Washington. Harris advised Owner Clark Griffith that he was leaving the Capital today.

The 20 rookies of assorted talents who have been inhabiting the Nats training grounds since Monday have been leaderless except for the presence of Trainer Mike Martin, who has been barking commands with great gusto and little authority.

With Harris' arrival the talent here will begin to adjust itself, within a few days at least a half dozen of the lads who have been cluttering up the dressing rooms will be kindly dispatched home and those of promise taken in hand by Harris.

The millennium, or something, arrived for Biloxi today when the hotel waiters announced that the kitchen was fresh out of shrimp, the national dish here.

Walking to town has supplanted ping pong and the slot machines as the chief recreation of the rookies. They walk the mile down the Gulf road to Grant's drug store and then walk back again.

Dick Lanahan, the former Eastern High School pitcher, was a patient of Trainer Martin's today with a wrenched leg, a member which he broke three years ago. His ambition is to land a berth with Chattanooga.

Derringer, Lombardi Cardinal Hold-Outs

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 27 (U.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds have two definite holdouts, Larry MacPhail, general manager of the club, announced on his arrival at the winter training camp here. They are Pitcher Paul Derringer and Catcher Ernie Lombardi.

MacPhail said Outfielders Adam Comorsky and Sammy Byrd, and Pitcher Denny MacFayden also failed to accept terms, but no difficulties are expected with them.

Southern Conference Court Play Opens

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 27.—Five Southern Conference basket ball squads from the States of Virginia and South Carolina invaded Raleigh tonight and prepared to fight it out along with three North Carolina quintets for the 1935 title in the annual tournament that begins here tomorrow afternoon.

Clemson's Tigers, who qualified first time in four years, led the contesting teams into the city, and for a conference tourney for the during the afternoon took a brisk workout in the gymnasium at North Carolina State College.

Washington and Lee, defending the title with four of the men who won it in 1934 on hand, was the second squad to get in. The Generals also limbered up and sharpened their goal-shooting ability before dusk.

Virginia's cavaliers, the cadets of V. M. I. and the South Carolina Gamecocks were arriving early tonight.

Duke's Blue Devils and the favored Tarheels of North Carolina went through their final paces at their home bases less than 30 miles away. N. C. State's Red Terrors were of course on hand as the "At Home" Club.

State and V. M. I. will inaugurate the event at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with Gov. Ehringhaus tossing the basket ball onto the court at Municipal Auditorium for the game. Duke and Virginia will follow in th esecond game at 4:30.

North Carolina's virst-ranked outfit will attempt to stem the attack of the South Carolina birds in the "piece de resistance" of the first day's play at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Washington and Lee will face its first test in Clemson's squad in the finale about 9:30.

Raleigh's principal street was decorated in bunting, the colors of the eight competing teams today, and a street parade will be staged at noon tomorrow. Civic clubs and alumni of the various institutions were welcoming the visiting athletes here.

The semifinal games will be played Friday night with the winner of the "battle of the Carolinas" meeting the N. C. State-V. M. I. victor in one tilt. Either Duke or Virginia will clash with Clemson or Washington and Lee in the other. The title game will be staged Saturday night.

North Carolina and Duke are the pre-tournament favorites by virtue of their seeded positions, while Clemson, because the Tigers have met few conference teams in the regular season will be the "dark horse" outfit. The Bengals, however, cut a wide swath through Southeastern loop squads.

South Carolina may upset North Carolina's hopes, and N. C. State may meet a tartar in V. M. I. Virginia will be battling against odd will be battling against odds with Duke, but figures to put up a stiff scrap.

Ruth Seen Key To Flag Hope Of Braves

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 27. Boston's Braves, waking up to the full realization that it wasn't all a dream and they actually have Babe Ruth, went soaring happily today along the road to all the things they believe the Bambino means to them.

To Wilkinsburg Bill McKechnie, whose managerial assistant the Babe will be as well as player and vice president, the home run monarch of the Yankees means the punch the Braves have lacked for years, close ball games won instead of lost, the possibility even of figuring in the 1935 National League pennant award.

To the jubilant ball players, all of whom worship the big fellow, he's a baseball Moses come to lead them.

Greatest Chance.

"He's facing the greatest chance of his career—and I know how great his career has been," said McKechnie today.

"If the Babe wants to come here wholeheartedly, be an organization man, help himself and everybody else, there are no limits to his opportunities. He's always been Boston's particular idol. He has a chance to be king now for the rest of his life."

Talking to McKechnie, there's no question of the relationship between Babe and the Braves. They want his mighty bat for the immediate future, the power plant that has

Tennis Movies War Joined By French

Plan Which Would Allow Perry to Take Cash Is Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The French Lawn Tennis Association, a powerful unit of the International Tennis Federation, has joined the United States association in opposing abrogation of the antifilm rule which prohibits amateurs from receiving compensation for appearing in action motion pictures.

Walter Merrill Hall, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, announced today receipt of a letter from Pierre Gillou, president of the French association, who emphasized that despite the current trend of amateurs to swell the professional ranks "the principles of amateurism must be safeguarded."

Act to Stop Perry.

Voiding of the international federation's rule was proposed by Czechoslovakia and seconded by the British association, which admitted frankly it is trying to make the amateur game sufficiently attractive to Fred J. Perry and take his mind off tempting professional offers.

Perry has already made a series of educational tennis films for the B. L. T. A., but the films have not been released since to do so would cost Perry his amateur standing and weaken considerably England's chances of keeping the international Davis Cup.

Taking the same line of objection as Hall did several weeks ago in a

Long Count Aids Dave Barry; Fraud Mistrial Is Declared

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Dave Barry, the referee who gave Gene Tunney 14 seconds to get up off the floor and resume his last battle against Jack Dempsey, got the benefit of a long count himself today.

The count this time was only 12.

Judge Michael Feiberg, of the criminal court, counted the dozen jurors who had heard the $55,000 embezzlement case against the noted ring arbiter and Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, out of the box and declared a mistrial.

The reason was the sudden illness of Barry's counsel, W. W. Smith, defender of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop in her sensational murder trials. Barry declined to choose another attorney and the judge discharged the jury. But prosecutors planned to get Barry and Karatz into the arena for a finish fight at a later date.

At the opening of the first round last week, the State charged Barry, Karatz and Joseph Baiata, former Eastern convict who pleaded guilty, induced Otto Van Derck, clerk at the Amalagamated Trust & Savings Bank, to embezzle $55,000. Prosecutors said they planned to use the money to gain control of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance Co. of Springfield, Ill., and an unnamed Indianapolis bank and to reap a fortune by supplanting sound securities in the vaults of those institutions with stolen stocks.

The trial was replete with counts—reminiscent of the night in 1927 when Tunney sat on the canvas of the battle pit in Soldier Field while Barry attempted to escort Dempsey to a neutral corner.

Barry and Karatz counted themselves as dupes in the alleged conspiracy. Barry admitted he signed blank checks on the account he and Baiata maintained at the bank in the name of their tavern partnership. But he insisted he did not know what use was made of them. Karatz claimed he was out of town during the purported plot.

Harris Sees Fair Chance For Nats

Manager Entrains for Camp; Pitchers His Chief Worry.

By Dillon Graham.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

JUST a dozen years ago an unsung Washington club, with Stanley (Bucky) Harris as its youthful manager, battled to an American League pennant

As he rattled Southward last night, a veteran heading into his twelfth managerial campaign, Harris carried with him a feeling that his present band of Senators may deal the baseball world as much of a surprise as did his original Washington team.

"I feel just as optimistic, or perhaps more so, about this club than I did about the other," he said before leaving. "We surprised ourselves that year and I think we're willing to surprise ourselves and others again this season."

Reminded that most critics were labeling the Nats for the second division, Harris smilingly conceded them a right to an opinion.

Nats Have Chance.

"But their conclusions don't alter mine," he said. "I know the potential strength of this club and I think, with some fair luck, we have as good a chance as any."

Harris, who has managed both Detroit and Boston, figures his chief worry may be the pitching corps.

"If four or five of our pitchers have a good year, we'll be all set," he said. "We could use another pitcher and it is possible we may obtain one early in the season."

Hadley, Whitehill and Weaver are tagged as starting pitchers and, Harris said, the other starter must come from among Burke, Linke, Stewart and Russell. He's not optimistic enough to look for much help from the dozen or more rookies cavorting around the Biloxi, Miss., training quarters.

An injury to young Cliff Bolton might leave the Nats weak behind the bat but, Harris said, "Sam Holbrook already has informed some he's going to beat out Bolton as regular catcher, so maybe we have nothing to fret about."

The infield is set, except for the shortstop battle between Lyn Lary, Ossie Bluege and Ralph Kress.

"It remains for them to decide among themselves—and prove to me—just who will play short," Harris explained.

There are no outfield troubles, he added.

"We haven't any long-distance wallopers, but we do have a good hitting club. And, remember," Harris cautioned, "don't sell Washington short."

Medwick Off for Home Today After Operation

Dead Heat Run At Santa Anita

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 27.—Santa Anita Park saw its first dead heat in 56 days of horse racing today when Sweet Man and Len Helker finished whisker for whisker in the last event on the program, a mile-and-a-sixteenth affair with $1,000 added.

Len Helker paid $7.60, $8.40 and $6.20, while Sweet Man was worth $3.60, $4.60 and $4.20. Their time was 1:47 flat. Sweet Man was claimed from E. E. Keeler by H. Frazier for $1,000. Len Helker's owner was Paul Kelly.

Joe Flores, winner of the feature, moved out in front from the gate and held the position throughout to take his third consecutive race, finishing in front of Arson by a nose. Impeach was third. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:44 2-5. The Clyde Phillips gelding paid $4.80, $3.20 and $2.80.

Club to Give McKechnie Better Job

Boston Is Expected to Be 'Out of Red' by Mid-Season.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Babe Ruth paused long enough today—in the midst of preparations to assume the triple robes of office under the banner of the Boston Braves—to confirm the general expectation that he will succeed Bill McKechnie as the full-fledged manager of the club by 1936, if not sooner.

For the time being the Babe will enjoy the novelty of combining his remaining resources as a player with the nominal jobs of assistant manager and second vice president of the Braves. He has pledged and will give full allegiance to McKechnie, who will have absolute authority in running the team this year, but there also is a positive understanding about the future.

Definitely Decided.

"It's been definitely decided that I will take full charge of the Braves on the field next year," said Ruth. "My main ambition still is to manage a big league club and I am going to Boston with the understanding it will be fulfilled. I'll have three years, at least, with the Braves and I certainly hope things develop so that I can establish myself firmly in Boston for the rest of my baseball life."

Ruth's statement clarifies a feature of the arrangement touched upon only in general terms by Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Braves, in announcing the deal. After giving McKechnie a rousing vote of confidence, Fuchs suggested that there would be "no handicap" to Ruth's taking complete charge of the club on the field at the end of 1935.

Will Be Elevated.

The understanding is that McKechnie, who has piloted the team since 1930, will be elevated to the post of general manager, leaving the path clear for Ruth to take full responsibility for all "master minding" on the diamond. This is logical. The Babe's playing days are definitely numbered at the age of 41 and after 21 years in the majors so that there would be no purpose in tying him up to a long-term agreement unless his potentialities as a leader also were to be exploited.

Ruth not only looms as the financial saviour of the Braves, who came close to losinb even their ball park during the recent crisis in the club's affairs, but he stands to do pretty well by his own bank account. Proceeds from the exhibition games alone this spring should mean enough extra for the Braves to cover the Babe's flat salary for 1935, understood to be around $25,000. From there on the "velvet" should begin to accumulate, with Ruth getting his "cut" from the profits which likely will mean lifting the Braves "out of the red" by midseason.

To Double Appeal.

It is difficult to gauge Ruth's drawing powers for the pennant season. They will depend on how regularly he plays and what success he has at the outset. It may be no exaggeration to predict the Braves will double their box office appeal for the early weeks of the campaign, with the Babe still ranking as one of the greatest drawing cards in any sport.

The Braves start the season at home, against the New York Giants, and the fans will be eager to see what Ruth can do against Carl Hubbell and the rest of Bill Terry's pitching "big four." His first appearance at the Polo Grounds as a National Leaguer will be on April 23. It will be the first week in May before the world champion St. Louis Cardinals and the celebrated Dean Brothers enter the "wigwam" at Boston, but it may produce some fireworks.

Only Jarring Note.

Dizzy Dean, spokesman for the celebrated pitching brothers, already has sounded the only jarring note in the otherwise universal National League welcome to the former home run monarch. Dizzy's blunt "resentment," voiced last night, took the form of sympathy for McKechnie, criticism of the American League for letting the Babe go and a prediction that National League players would put Ruth "on the pan" throughout the coming season.

Ruth was incredulous when he read Dean's remarks today and insisted he did not believe Dizzy could have said anything like that. A peaceful soul, the Babe harbors no ill will toward anyone, but it has always been risky to arouse his temper. The Cubs, who stirred his ire in the 1932 world series by their "razzing," will testify to that.

All of these players have accepted invitations but alternates were named. These were Bob McDonald, Jimmy Noonan, Ralph Stonehouse, Eddie Williams, Dick Metz and Clarence Clark.

American Association To Aid Players' Fund

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP).—American Association club owners, optimistic over prospects for a financially successful season, today voted to guarantee $20,000 for the players' bonus fund.

The split-season plan, offered for discussion by George Trautman, president of the Columbus Club, failed to stir up enough interest to cause its adoption. The league will play a straight 154-game schedule, as decided at the minor league meeting in Louisville last September.

The bonus fund, built up from proceeds from the all-star game and 2 cents from each paid admission throughout the season, totaled $16,000 last year. Under the same arrangement it may run higher this season, but the league heads voted to see that athletes share in at least $20,000. Members of the first four teams in the final standing will share in the "pot."

Ruth's Transfer Shifts 1935 Odds

Braves Drop to 10 to 1 and Yankees Go to 3½ to 1.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Feb. 27.—Odds on the 1935 chances of both the New York Yankees and the Boston Braves were shifted drastically today by Tom Kearney, St. Louis betting commissioner, as a result of Babe Ruth's transfer from the Yanks to Boston.

Kearney dropped the odds against Boston to win the National League pennant from 40 to 1 to 10 to 1. Odds on the Yankees to win the American League flag rose from 2 to 3½ to 1.

American U. Five Faces St. John's

Annapolis Clash Only One Involving Local Teams.

American University's dribblers will invade Annapolis tonight for a return game with St. John's College in the only bit of intercollegiate competition involving a local team scheduled today.

The Eagles are seeking revenge for a 45-21 drubbing earlier in the season, but the odds are all against them. The Johnnies have been traveling at a fast clip in their Maryland Collegiate Association games and they seem too strong for Coach Walter Young's men.

The only other item on today's card is scheduled at Catholic University, where the natators from the local colleges will splash around the Cardinals' pool in search of intermural swimming titles.

Miss Neilsen, 16, Wins World Skating Crown

Oslo, Feb. 27 (AP).—Laila Schou Nielsen, 16, Norway's foremost all-around sports star, was awarded the women's world skating title in the championships here today. No points were announced.

Miss Nielsen, holder of the national title, also is prominent in tennis and other athletics.

Kit Klein, the United States champion, finished ahead of the young Norwegian star in one event today when she won the 100-meters event in 1:46.7.

Bradley's Black Helen Wins First Start as Three-Year-Old

Filly Scores Impressive Triumph

Beats Out Good Harvest by Two Lengths in Hialeah Race.

By the Associated Press.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 27—An important Florida Derby candidate went on public approbation with the running of the one-mile Tavares Purse, for 3-year-olds here today. E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, diminutive bay daughter of Black Toney—La Troienne, which came South heralded as the early favorite for the big event here closing day, made her first start as a 3-year-old and won by two lengths in easy fashion, giving a very favorable impression.

The B. B. Stable's Good Harvest, top weight of the five starters, offered chief contention all the way and saved the place by a length from W. S. Kilmer's Night Serge. Dark Lady and Maddest brought up the rear. Black Helen was the first favorite of the day to win, paying $3.90. She ran the eight furlongs in 1:37 2-5, under 110 pounds.

Won Seven in Row.

Black Helen won seven straight races as a 2-year-old. She then failed in two attempts to beat stake horses in Maryland's fall racing. Brought along slowly and carefully since arriving in Florida, the undersized filly entered today's competition in fine condition. Her connections were confident and her race justified the faith placed in her.

Good Harvest was unable to test severely the filly's distance running ability. He was not good enough. Don Meade rode confidently, sending Black Helen right to the front out of the mile chute from his inside post position. Good Harvest went after the filly and Coucci seemed to have plenty of horse under him until Meade let out a notch rounding the final bend. Black Helen opened up daylight and was well in hand through the closing stages.

Black Bess Winner.

The third time proved the charm for Mrs. G. D. Widener's Black Bess. The black daughter of Jock, after two creditable efforts at this point, survived the most thrilling finish of the meeting in the opening dash for 2-year-old platers. The Maemere-Phillips entry of Transit Lady and Edri, held in strong favoritism, followed the $15.60 shot across the wire, all noses apart. Georgie Watson went to the front with Black Bess. The entry was hot on the trail, however, and it was a close battle to the end.

Hardware, one that pays a good price when he wins, was first home in the graded handicap class B of 1 mile, paying $21. The gelding was perfectly handled by Jockey Haines and, forging to the fore in the stretch, drew off easily to beat Stocks by two lengths. The latter closed fast to head Nice Talk. The heavily backed and inconsistent Rebel Yell failed to run back to his recent winning effort.

Some Good Triumphs.

Some Good, paying $9.80, accounted for the first division of the graded handicap, class "C," which occupied third place on the eight-race card. Wayne Wright made it two in a row, rating his mount close off the pace, sending the colt to the front in the stretch and holding him together in a tight finish. It was the Idaho idol's twenty-eighth winner at the meeting. He is far out in front of the local riding colony. Dancing Cloud finished fast to head Brindle, the favorite, for second money.

Cubist, one of Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Florida Derby eligibles, making his second start of the winter, carried a mere 100 pounds to an easy victory in the second division of the graded handicap, class "C," at seven furlongs. Carl Hanford sent the son of Mad Hatter to the front just after a good start and the colt held Hank McTavish safe all the way, finishing a length and a half clear in 1:25 2-5 to pay $10.20. Unencumbered was a steady finishing third.

McLean-Jaffee Race Plans Are Abandoned

St. Louis, Feb. 27 (AP).—The proposed series of four races between Bobby McLean, of Chicago, and Irving Jaffee, of New York, for the professional ice skating championship has been called off.

Earl Reflow, promoter, announced he had been unable to bring an agreement between McLean and Jaffee, 1932 Olmpic star, on the distances for the races.

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Hialeah Race Track, Feb. 27.

Mrs. Bennings' travel-worn boy didn't do half bad today, what with three winners, including Hardware at a $21 mutuel. In addition, we had them running all over the other money places. Joseph E. Widener, president of the local track, was pleased when he received word that Azucar had won the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap. His face should have been red, but it wasn't. Widener imported the horse from England as a 3-year-old chiefly to bolster the jumping division of his stable and he had always looked upon the horse as a timber-topper. Last summer, Widener withdrew from the jumping field and it was then that he disposed of Azucar for $8,000 to Fred Alger, jr. At that it wasn't a bad deal for Widener, who purchased the horse very cheap at the Doncaster sales. He recalled that he asked Jock Whitney and several others to buy Azucar from him for $10,000 but there were no takers at that figure. However, Best Play, another Widener jumper, went for $15,000. Azucar was bred in Ireland by Edward Kenny. BILL.

First race—Lemont has had enough education to warrant a selection in this maiden field. Breaks from the rail with Meade up and I expect no mistakes. Playful Tour has worked well and is dangerous. Jair to take care of the others.

Second race—Gallic, another with No. 1 post position, has displayed real speed of late and, providing Lindberg gives us a good ride, I forecast a set of brackets. Teddy Carl, assigned 95 pounds, may be a surprise here. My Purchase is ready and should be a factor all the way.

Third race—Ridge Mor draws Arcaro as the rider. Picks up quite a weight pack in those 117 pounds, but gets my call. Moane Keala's last was impressive. Porter Call is well liked by Clocker Mike.

Fourth race—Blessed Again has rounded into excellent form, and I expect the Bradleyite to take care of this sort of a field. Fake ran well last out, and slight improvement would put him in the thick of this battle. Janey Lee for the show.

Fifth race—Chartres, with Johnny Gilbert to ride, is going to have a lot to say about the purse distribution. Personally, I shall string along. Some Knight and Hoops to complete the money picture.

Sixth race—Stavka won for us here, and I like his position tomorrow. Jockey Porter must hustle all the way, however. Twoaday and Unknown Soldier will be ready if the top one makes mistakes.

Seventh race—Shot and Shell, Peedeeque and Cousin George all like the turf course. I'm going to try to make them finish in the order named.

Jesting Captures Fair Grounds Race

Washingtonian's Horse Wins by Two Lengths.

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Feb. 27.—Jesting, owned by Chester Bild, of Washington, D. C., a recent arrival from Florida, where she raced consistently, stepped home in front of six other sprinters to take the Garnet Purse at the Fair Grounds today.

Away in front, the 5-year-old mare never relinquished the lead as she reached the judges two lengths in advance of F. P. Letellier's Marie Jean, an outsider. Mose Goldblatt's Brown Witch was third after closing a big gap in the stretch.

Well backed in the mutuels, despite sixth place in her only other start at the New Orleans oval, Jesting paid $5 for a $2 win ticket. She was clocked in 1:12 1-5.

Turner Offers Promising Wrestling Tonight at Auditorium.

THE League of Nations has come to Washington and will hold a slam-bang session tonight at the Auditorium. The eight rasslemen, who threaten to exhibit their wares, represent as many nationalities. And, strange as it seems, each and every journeyman is a cream of the cropper. Somehow, Promoter Joe Turner's slogan, "We strive to please," seems decidedly appropriate.

Topping the novel bill, Herr Friedrich von Grobmier will endeavor to instill a bit of Teutonic culture into the crown prince of Rough-housemania, Signor Gino Garibaldi. However, it is quite evident that the bruising Italian boasts his own ideas of culture.

Grobmier Must Work.

Long, lean Grobmier, recognized as the foremost exponent of the Japanese scissors lock, will need every iota of his consummate skill in this encounter for Gino has developed dangerously in the last month. It all looks rather knotty. But no doubt the issue will terminate favorably within the confines of two out of three kerplunkos as is the custom. By the way, the winnah gets a title crack at Lord Jeems Londos.

In the 45-minute semifinal, a match that should provide a year's supply of pyrotechnics, Blue Sun Jennings has adopted warpath tactics as he is slated to jomahawk Rowdy Richard Daviscourt, whose deportment, while grimacing, is simply scandalous. This event veritably reeks with potential belligerency. Or at least that's what the alleged experts would have us believe.

Goldberg in Action.

International entanglements become apparent as soon as the meeting is called. Abe Goldberg, youthful Joosh sensation, intends to launch a tirade upon the sinewy chassis of Borisovitch ("Volga") Demitroff.

Of course the card wouldn't be complete without an Irishman. So Jim Henry has been chartered to use everything but a shillelah on the flying mare Dutchman, Andy Rascher.

11 Dealt Blow After Texas Dope Quiz

Two Are Barred for Life; Others, One Woman, Are Suspended.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 27.—Licenses of two trainers were revoked for life and nine others, including a woman, were suspended by the Texas racing commission today on charges that narcotics were used on thoroughbreds at Alamo Downs, San Antonio.

Commissioners, holding the evidence against Vic Gallo and G. Harris to be the strongest in 11 cases considered, barred them from further participation in racing at licensed tracks.

Mrs. E. M. Hector, 46, owner of a four-horse racing string, who received a trainer's license January 1, and J. Bainton and L. Burkes were suspended for a year.

"I do not know the source of the dope," Mrs. Hector told the commission, "nor who administered it."

Second in Nation.

The wife of a St. Joseph, Mo., barber, she was the first woman to receive a trainer's license in Texas and the second in the United States.

The commission ordered four trainers away from their charges for 60 days and two drew 30-day suspensions because saliva tests on their horses showed a minor narcotic which the commission said was contained in a patent medicine.

Gov. James V. Allred instituted a widespread investigation of the drugging of race horses at Texas tracks recently, charging that gamblers were winning heavily through the illegal practice.

75 Quintets Enter A. A. U. Court Tourney as Deadline Passes

Officials Pick 3 Referees For Event

25 More Entries Due to Be Received Today in Mails.

SOME 75 teams representing the cream of talent within a 15-mile radius of Washington already have entered the District A. A. U. Basket Ball Tournament which The Washington Post will sponsor at Tech High and Langley Junior High gymns starting next Monday night.

This was disclosed last night when the A. A. U. basket ball committee worked away feverishly until well past midnight receiving eleventh-hour entries and checking quickly on the list of eligible players.

Indications are that the century mark will be reached, inasmuch as the morning's mail is expected to bring in at least 25 additional entries. Last night at midnight was the deadline, but entries sent out yesterday will be good today, the committee stated.

Imposing Entry.

Chairman Winfree Johnson announced that Maurice Enright, Orrel Mitchell and Dave Keppel, well known referees in the Middle Atlantic section, been delegated to handle the championship games. Bill Royer was appointed as official scorer and Doktor Harry Fidesop as the custodian of the gym and head of the Red Cross department.

Close to 25 teams have entered in the unlimited division, with Sholl's, 1932-1933 District A. A. U. champions; Bureau of Investigation, its arch rival; Olmsted Grill and Company F of Hyattsville, as the leading challengers. Others who are signed up are Rockville, Fort Washington, Y. M. C. A., First Baptist, Miller Furniture, Fort Humphries, Eagles, Silver Spring Merchants, McLean Athletic Club, Rinaldi Tailors, Marine Barracks, Maryland Athletic Club, Washington Boys Club, Stewart's Pharmacy, George's Radio Store and Parchey's Comets.

145-Pound Teams.

Leading contenders in the 145-pound division are the defending champions, Heurich Flashes; St. Martin's, Certified Bakers, Northeast Boys Club, Young Men's Democratic Club of Falls Church, Ehrich, Bovello Plumbers.

In the 130-pound class Washington Grays, Northeast Boys Club, Georgetown Boys Club, Takoma Boys Club, Ebel's Grill, Ruff Riders, Boys Club Optimists and Washington Post Alexandria Branch are foremost on the list.

Y. M. C. A., the Eagles, Takoma Boys Club, Reliance, Northeast Boys Club, Georgetown Boys Club, Davaliers, Dewhursts, Red Sox, Fleet Wings are chief contenders in the 115-pound division, while the 100-pound group is made up mostly of teams from the six boys' clubs hereabouts.

Al's Athletic Club, Jewish Community Center, Agriculture Adjustment Association, Rockville, Democratic Club of Falls Church and the Virginians were among the top entries in the girls' class.

Ruth Is Seen Key To Braves' Hopes

terrorized the American League for almost half Ruth's 40 years, but beyond that they want the bam to learn the ways of club management from McKechnie, go on from there to part ownership, or more, when his playing days are definitely done, setting the stage for a long and profitable relationship down through the years.

Not Well Acquainted.

Strangely enough, McKechnie, for all his years in baseball, does not know Ruth well. They never have had a chance to become well acquainted, functioning in different leagues. But McKechnie welcomes him wholeheartedly. He sat in with Fuchs in discussions when the deal was in the making and was first to know when the deed was done.

"We've got the kind of a club," says Bill, "that Ruth can make overnight, and from the things they tell me of him, that's exactly what he will do.

"We can use him either in the outfield or at first base. If he can play 80 or 90 ball games with the tremendous punch he'll give us in action, and the menace of him waiting on the bench, something the Braves never have had, we're going to do something."

Baltimore Woman Beaten in Florida

Miss Greiner Is Trounced in Golf Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 27.—First-round matches in the tenth annual South Atlantic women's golf championship were mostly one-sided affairs today, with Miss Marian Miley, of Lexington, medalist and Kentucky State champion, leading the way with an 8-and-6 victory over Miss Gladys Greiner, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Robert Mazet, of Plandome, Long Island, didn't allow Mrs. J. H. Sweeny, jr., of St. Augustine, Fla., to win a single hole, taking the match 8 and 7.

Miss Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. S. B. Lippitt, of Albany, Ga., won by the same margin. The Rhode Island title holder eliminated Miss Ella K. Banning, of Cincinnati, while the Georgia ...men's champion downed Mrs. ...derick W. Thomas, of Englewood, N. J.

'Tommyrot! Why, Baseball Helps Golfers,' Gardner, G. U. Prep Coach, Replies to Critics

Nee Had Great Year in '34 on Links and Field, He Points Out.

By John R. Vosburgh.

"TOMMYROT" says Joe Gardner, Georgetown Prep's highly successful three-sport coach, in the collective faces of critical Washington golf professionals who feel that the Prep's numerous young golf prodigies may be risking their careers by playing baseball.

"Nothing but tommyrot," the former Georgetown baseball, basket ball and football star will tell you. That is, he will tell you, if you adopt the attitude of various local pros and other golf sages and view with alarm the playing of such a dangerous game as baseball by such promising golf aces as Billy Dettweiler, Maury Nee, Frank Allen, Hughes Spalding, De Sales Powell, Bobby Troutman and Ray Higgins.

"Why, when Billy Dettweiler broke his finger in baseball last year," says Joe, "it brought a storm down on my head. But Billy is not only going to play baseball again this year, he is going to be captain of the team. I wonder what they think of that?"

Played Shortstop.

The 16-year-old Dettweiler, considered one of the best young golfers in the East, played shortstop last year. He suffered a broken finger in one game and was forced to forego some of the golf team's matches. Dettweiler is school champion, Maryland State junior champion and was a national amateur qualifier.

Dettweiler, Nee, Allen, Spalding, Troutman and the others carried Georgetown Prep's colors to the heights last year, winning the Maryland and District titles, the prep school invitation crown and playing second in a field of 27 schools in the twenty-third Eastern interscholastic championships at Greenwich, Conn.

"Why let these up-and-coming kids play baseball?' these pros and other golfing friends of mine ask me," Gardner says. "They say it ruins their stance, their eye and their form. They say it lays them open to injury and so forth.

"As a matter of fact, baseball affords something that no one can get in golf. It helps a boy's competitive nature and helps his eye. He only devotes 30 days a year to baseball. Frank Allan, captain of the golf team and our third baseman last year, had his greatest baseball season while he was having his greatest golfing season. He was a finalist in the National scholastics and Maryland State tournament and a mainstay of the team."

Points Out Heekin.

"Dick Heekin, Ohio State's all-American half back, who played here in 1931, played football, baseball, golf, basket ball and track. Maury Nee had a great golf year last year, and played center field on the ball team throughout the season. We invite all our boys to participate in as many games as their physique, academics and desire prompts them to.

Gardner has produced several other college greats in addition to Heekin. In the last five years, he also has turned out two football championship clubs, two title-winners in baseball and two in basket ball.

Nee, whose achievements include a record-breaking 67 for the Columbia Country Club course and a 30 for 9 holes on the same course, is now attending Notre Dame. Powell, first baseman, and Allen also were graduated. Spalding will captain the golf team this year and play left field on the ball team.

"Baseball and golf work hand in hand out here," Gardner declares. "If a kid wants to play a good old game like baseball, why keep him from it because he's a good golf player. After all, he can play golf all the rest of his life."

French Take Action Against Net Films

letter to the Czechoslovakian body, Gillou, in a letter addressed to Sir Samuel Hoare, president of the B. L. T. A., wrote:

"We believe that the presence of a paid player in motion pictures on tennis is an example itself of the direct pecuniary advantage which this player derives from the practice of the sport. The case would seem to us equally typical if a well known champion signs a contract with a motion picture concern to play any role whatever in a film production, provided that he plays tennis in it.

"Concerning the requirements of international lawn tennis on personal occupation of its renowned amateurs, I remind you that it belongs to the national federations (associations) to regulate, in the sense of restriction, the removal of these requirements or demands. The Davis Cup requires long voyages only for a small number of nations and associations are in no way obliged to send their best players every year to contend in individual competitions or others in far distant countries."

Bridge-Tea Planned.

The women's golf committee of Manor Club is sponsoring a bridge-tea and fashion show for the benefit of the ladies' golf fund on March 13. Members may invite as many guests as they desire. Invitations have been sent out to men and women golfers of other District golf clubs.

Those serving on the committee are Mrs. Howard Simons, golf chairman; Mrs. Harold Beck.

Ruth's Signing Cheering to Braves

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 27. The Braves regulars aren't due into camp until tomorrow, but of those that are here you can get some small idea of their sentiments regarding Babe Ruth from the following exclamations:

Ed Brandt, star southpaw—"Well, I see where I don't lose any more 1-to-0 games for a while."

Bill Urbanski, shortstop—"When I tell the Babe I get on plenty, he'll agree not to leave me there."

Fred Frankhouse, right-hand pitcher—"At last, we're beginning to look like a ball club."

Hank Gowdy, coach—"Heaven help the right-field walls in St. Louis, Philadelphia and Brooklyn."

Loew's Five Winner.

The Loew's Theater basket ball team, which had not won a game all season, closed their year in a burst of glory by defeating the Bureau of Standards, 36 to 34. Campbell sunk the last two baskets to put the game on ice for the theaterites.

LaSalle Quintet Gains Revenge Over Barton

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 27.—LaSalle Institute gained revenge over Barton in a Western Maryland Interscholastic Basket Ball League contest on SS. Peter and Paul court, winning, 54 to 21.

It was the Institute's fifth victory in 11 starts and the Blue and Gold must win its final game from Beall, of Frostburg, next Tuesday to finish the season with a percentage of .500.

Md.'s Boxers Shifted for Army

Coach Harmony Names Tentative Line-Up as Matches Near.

A TENTATIVE line-up for the boxing match with Army Saturday night at College Park was announced yesterday by Coach Jack Harmony of Maryland. The glove-swinging features Maryland's second annual all-university night program, a lengthy portrayal of extra-curricula student activities.

Harmony intends to use Dick Babcock in place of injured Ivan Nedomatsky in the 135-pound class, while Mike Lombardo has been awarded the 155-pound spot, which was vacated by Lyman McAboy, who is out for the remainder of the season with a broken hand.

"Stew" McCaw, Southern Conference light-heavyweight champion, will drop back into the 165-pound class for the evening's fun, with Johnny Gormley fighting at 175 pounds, and Al Farrell, heavyweight. This arrangement will give the Terps an even chance against the hard-punching West Pointers.

Trouble for Farrell.

Bob Stillman, rugged heavyweight, is Army's ace battler and its most consistent winner and he should be 200-odd pounds of trouble for Farrell, who has not appeared regularly this season because of an injured nose. The Cadets' other outstanding men are Bill Beard, 115 pounds; Johnny Dick, 125; Bill Meany, 145, and Bill Connor, 145 pounds.

Stillman, Beard and Dick are first classmen with two years of active competition behind them. The others are juniors.

A basket ball game between Maryland and St. John's, of Annapolis, opens the program at 7:30 o'clock.

A capacity throng of 5,000 fans is expected to sit in on the proceedings, which will be packed into three and one-half hours—if possible. Folk dancing, drill exhibitions, singing and several other items are scheduled.

Doors of the Coliseum will be closed at 8:15 o'clock and reopened at 9:15 to admit those tardy souls who invariably come late.

Two Are Upset In Bermuda Net Play

Bryan Is Victor Over Bell; McDiarmid Is Beaten by Murray.

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 27. With Berkeley Bell, No. 1 seeded player from New York, and John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., ranked No. 4, unexpectedly falling by the wayside, play in the Bermuda tennis championships today reached the quarter-final round.

Bell fell before the steady playing of Robert (Lefty) Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., 7—9, 6—2, 6—3, while R. D. Murray, of Montreal, eliminated McDiarmid in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4.

Bitsy Grant Wins.

The remainder of the quarter-final bracket was filled by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the diminutive Atlantan, and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J. Grant eliminated McCauliff, of Yonkers, N. Y., in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, while Hall had an easy time with J. W. Kirkham, of New York, winning, 6—0, 6—1.

In contrast, play in the women's singles ran true to form, with Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France's No. 2 ranking player; Jane Sharp, of Pasadena, Calif.; Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, filling the quarter-final bracket.

Mme. Henrotin gave a fine exhibition of tennis to take the first set from Florence Leboutillier, of New York, 6—2, but then let up and let her opponent take the second, 4—6. She came back strong, however, winning the final set 6—0.

Forced in First.

Mrs. W. M. Freisenbruch forced Miss Sharp to 8—6 in the first set, but the California girl stepped up the pace and won the second handily at 6—3. Mrs. Andrus took three sets to beat Mrs. H. C. Brunie, of New York, 6—8, 6—4, 6—3, but Mrs. Van Ryn disposed of Katherine Winthrop, of Boston, in two, 6—2, 6—1.

Other results:

Men's doubles—Bell and Hall defeated T. and D. Price, New York 6—1, 6—2; Murray and H. C. Brunie, New York, beat B. Even and Reid, Bermuda, 6—4, 6—0; McCauliffe and Grant eliminated H. C. Smith and McDonald, Bermuda, 6—1, 6—4, and McDiarmid and Bryan defeated W. and E. Freisenbruch, Bermuda, 6—3, 6—1.

Women's doubles—Henrotin and Andrus won by default; Winthrop and Leboutillier defeated Mrs. W. M. Boocock and Mrs. Edwards, Bermuda, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

No Favorite In W. & L. Mat Meet

6 Colleges Represented in Lexington Event This Week-end.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Feb. 27.—With four institutions entering full teams and two others sending their best men, the Southern Conference wrestling tournament at Washington and Lee this week-end looks now like "anybody's meet," observers pointed out here today.

North Carolina State grapplers, who will come to Lexington at full strength, have won two meets this year, defeating Virginia Military Institute and North Carolina. V. M. I., entering men in all events for the tourney, has, in turn, won over Duke, North Carolina and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, losing a meet to State and getting a tie with the Navy.

Washington and Lee, defending champions, won a hard-fought meet from North Carolina State, 14 to 12, and has had equally good luck with the other Tarheel teams, defeating Duke, 19 to 11, and the University of North Carolina, 28 to 0.

Virginia Poly Strong.

V. P. I., entering a full team in the tourney like State, V. M. I. and W. and L., has won over both North Carolina State and Davidson, losing to North Carolina, V. M. I. and the Generals. To give the Gobblers from Blacksburg an even higher rating in pretourney speculations, State in turn has dropped a meet to Davidson.

So local statisticians are puzzling over just what to expect at the meet in Doremus gymnasium, where Coach Mathis has turned out one of the best Washington and Lee teams this year.

Both North Carolina and Duke University entries probably will cause some of the full teams worry. The Tar Heels are sending four men, each a star in his own right, and Duke is sending two grapplers, including the speedy Ardolino, who has not lost a bout all season.

The wrestlers will not know their opponents until after the first weighing-in Friday morning at 11 o'clock, after which drawings will be made.

S. S. Hollobaugh, former Penn State wrestler, will officiate at all of the matches.

Washington-Lee Plays Tomorrow.

Washington-Lee High's court team faces Suffolk High at Ballston tomorrow night. The game will start at 8 p. m.

BERNIE LIEB.

Bernie Lieb, 6-foot 3-inch center of Catholic University's basket ball team yesterday was elected captain of the 1936 Cardinal quintet by lettermen of the squad. He is a junior in the School of Economics.

A product of Eastern High School, where he played for two years and subsequently was named on The Post's all-high team, Lieb has been one of Catholic's court mainstays during the past two seasons. He concluded the current campaign with a total of 142 points in 17 games for an average of 8.35 points a game.

Dog Events Postponed For Third Day by Snow

Grand Junction, Tenn., Feb. 27 (AP). The kings of dogdom shivered in an icy wind today as they were taken into the fields for workouts in anticipation of the starting tomorrow of the national bird dog championships, postponed today for the third successive morning because of sleet and snow.

The skies began clearing this afternoon, and officials said they were hopeful there would be no further postponement. Fear that the dogs might take pneumonia or cut themselves on the ice influenced the judges in holding up the start.

C. U. Ringmen Are Awaiting Carnegie

Cards Nail Horseshoe on Their Side of Ring for Saturday.

AN old and rusty but trustworthy horseshoe was tacked to the Catholic University side of the ring which will be the scene of combat Saturday night when the Cardinal uppercutters square off with Carnegie Tech at Brookland.

The iron shoe was nailed in place at the direction of Coach Eddie La Fond, who, while not superstitious, does not believe in inviting the wrath of the gods. It seems that LaFond is endeavoring to offset the figure 13-to-13 knockouts his men have scored in battle this season.

Entrance Was Suggested.

The shoe was placed on the C. U. side to direct all of any good luck it may bring in the Cardinals' direction. A suitable position over the main entrance had been considered, but this, La Fond feared, would distribute too much good luck and possibly aid Carnegie. Then again, it might have tumbled down on the unsuspecting head of one of the C. U. boxers, thus producing a negative effect.

Knockouts have been delivered by five members of the squad in this fashion: Ruben Miro, 115-pounds, and Dan Pyne, heavyweight, one each; Capt. Eddie Thibideau, lightweight, three; Tom Oliver, 155 pounds, three, and Red Fleming, light-heavyweight, five.

It was Fleming's technical kayo over Barnes, of Manhattan, that registered 13 last week, but the carrot-top has promised La Fond that he'll get the team off the spot with another knockout win against Tech.

George Raft Gets Offer From Toledo Ball Club

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 27 (AP). Any time George Raft wants to, he can go to work for the Toledo Baseball Club.

Drop Ring, Mat License Fees, McCloskey's Clean-up Goal

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—At the recent sports writers banquet at Harrisburg, Pa., I had the excitement of meeting the new chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, a strange and positive party by the name of Eddie McCloskey, a former prize fighter who, in addition to being the boss of the wrestlers and boxers of the Keystone Commonwealth, is also the Mayor of Johnstown. You might even put it that he is still the Mayor of Johnstown, and that all seems to have been forgiven, for there was one time when Johnstown was just the least bit irritated at its frisky chief executive.

When the Bonus Army was driven out of Washington in 1932, Mayor McCloskey's Irish hospitality got the better of him and he invited the bonuseers to come to Johnstown. They did. Mr. McClosky soon had to give considerable thought to the problem of how to get them out of Johnstown. In this he was aided by his brother, known as Squint McCloskey, who always aids Eddie in his deeper moments of celebration. Squint also will aid Chairman Eddie of the Pennsylvania Boxing Board. He has, I suspect, begun to aid him already.

Friend of the People.

Edward is a stocky little red-headed Irishman with a pugnacious countenance and a sort of high-pitched, querulous type of oratory. He is a friend of the common peepul, and, if I were writing his epitaph, I would have inscribed on his slab the news that he abolished prohibition in Johnstown considerably before the Nation got around to that excellent idea.

Go Ahead, Sell Beer.

He told the boys that inasmuch as the Government was not making a conspicuous success of enforcing prohibition, it ought not to expect the simple constabulary of Johnstown to waste time which ought to be devoted to more ardent and dangerous malefactors than dry law violators. So he said, "Go ahead and sell beer, but it's gotta be good beer." By George, it was too. Remember that good Pennsylvania beer you used to get in these dear, dead but unlamented days? Anyway, now Eddie is the new chairman of the boxing commission under Gov. George H. Earle, himself a red-hot sportsman. Eddie's instructions from the Governor are to clean up boxing and wrestling.

Mr. McCloskey made an impassioned speech at this banquet in which he implored the sports writers and the freeholders of Pennsylvania to rid the boxers, wrestlers, judges, referees and seconds of the license fees which they are forced to pay in order to ply their trade. He pounded the table and cried, "Why should a boxer have to pay $10 to fight? Does a ball player or a bike rider, or a football player have to pay a fee to do business? They why should a fighter or a wrestler or a judge or a second have to pay a fee?" I thought this over carefully and honestly could see no reason why this should be.

Increase the Tax.

"If," bellowed Mayor McCloskey, "we can not support the State athletic commission out of the 5 per cent State tax (for one delirious moment I thought he was going to say, "Then let us abolish the State athletic commission"), then let us increase the tax until we can, but do not charge these poor athletes and officials for the privilege of doing business." I mean, we were all touched.

Mr. McCloskey has been quoted as having the only workable test to determine the honesty of a wrestling match. "If," say his quotes, "neither wrestler at any time throws the referee out of the ring, then the match is on the level." It is barely possible that this is one of Squint McCloskey's frequent cerebrations, but it is also possible that we have to deal with local customs and habits. In Pennsylvania the wrestlers may have accustomed the public to seeing the referees flying through the air. For all we know, the air of Pennsylvania arenas may have been darkened with referees for many years. It sounds logical. You can just see a couple of wrestlers on their way down to Philly, or Johnstown, or Lebanon, together on the train, talking it over and saying, "Hey, Charley, how's for instead me throwin' you outta the ring tonight, or you me, we toss the referee up into the balcony? It's gonna be a lot easier on us and mebbe the crowd likes it just as much."

Would Be Immense.

I know that my personal gratification at seeing a wrestling referee ascending gracefully to the shelf in the manner of Hugo Zacchini, the man fired out of a cannon, would be immense. I have no doubt that the Pennsylvanians took to it immediately. Thus Chairman McCloskey's promise is not quite as comic as it seems at first blush. You can see that Eddie, or maybe it was Squint, has correctly gauged the intelligence of the average wrestler. He, or they, know that if the wrestlers thought that one up about curving the referees over the plate it is their thought for the decade, 1934-1944, and they will not have another until about 1945, which gives Chairman McCloskey plenty of time to plan his next counter-move.

Gov. Earle, incidentally, is dead on the level about cleaning up professional sports in dear old Pa. He is even willing to accept an advisory committee of sports writers to work on the job, which is considerable more interest than any other Governor has ever taken. I suspect that whenever New York's Gov. Lehman hears his State Athletic Commission mentioned he places his hand to his brow in the manner of a gentleman who has a severe headache. Well, so he has.

Buying Flurry Raises Wheat 1½c a Bushel

Cotton Market Is Steady With May Futures up to 12.47.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—A flurry of buying late today hoisted the wheat market 1½ cents a bushel, responsive largely to augmented fears of drought damage to crops.

Trade reports emphasized dearth of subsoil moisture throughout much domestic winter wheat territory, as well as in spring wheat areas both sides of the Canadian line. Only rainless conditions immediately ahead were indicated for regions where moisture relief is most essential.

Wheat closed strong at practically the day's top figures, ⅝ to 1½ above yesterday's finish; May, 97⅞ to 98; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ up; May, 84⅞ to 85; oats unchanged to ½ higher, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

Complaints of dry weather formed the main factor in the wheat pit from the outset. Almost the sole precipitation worthy of mention was in the Ohio Valley, and although numerous traders said the date was too early for a crop scare a sufficient amount of buying developed to give the market an upward trend all day. Friends of higher prices stressed assertions that March is not generally a month of price declines, and also pointed out that Chicago public elevators contain at present but 1,250,000 bushels of red wheat, some of which is available for feeding purposes alone.

Late Buying a Feature.

To a considerable degree, late buying of wheat today was for operators who earlier had sold on account transient weakness of securities. Not a little notice was taken of likelihood of a substantial new decrease of the United States wheat visible supply next week. In some quarters, predictions were heard that with anything like normal flour buying, and with no apparent chance of an increase of the domestic movement of wheat from rural sources, the May wheat future would soon become congested.

Corn and oats were responsive to word that Japan was buying large quantities of Argentine corn. A further sustaining influence was the fact that the domestic corn-hog ratio is the best in about two years.

Provisions averaged lower, affected by setbacks of hog values.

Public Utility Holding Company Bill, If Enacted, Will Be Advantageous to Some Issues But Devastating to Others.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 27.—The keen concern of both investors and managements over the effects of the pending public utility holding company bill, if enacted into law, reflects realization of the devastating effect it would have upon the value of certain holding company securities while unduly enriching the holders of other issues that happen to occupy a strategic position in connection with the liquidation of such concerns.

There has been intense activity among analysts of public utility securities in trust companies, brokerage houses and other financial institutions latterly in an effort to appraise the likely practical effects of this measure upon particular issues.

The highly unequal and discriminatory effects the pending measure would have upon various securities of a given holding company system may be illustrated by the case of the North American Co., one of the oldest and largest concerns of the kind in the world. The North American Co. is purely a holding corporation, owning the stocks of various holding and operating utility companies. However, being in relatively strong financial condition, it does not face as serious a situation as do holding companies with heavy short-term debts outstanding.

One of the largest subsidiaries of the North American Co. is the North American Edison Co., all of whose common stock is owned by the parent concern. Owning properties in Cleveland, St. Louis and various Wisconsin municipalities, it seems certain that the North American Edison Co. itself would be required to dissolve within a five-year period if the pending bill were enacted into law. In order to effect such a dissolution, it would be necessary theoretically to call in the funded debt of North American Edison, amounting to more than $52,000,000.

North American Edison In Strategic Position.

North American Edison also has outstanding 367,660 shares of $6 preferred stock, which is entitled to $100 a share and accrued dividends in the event of liquidation or dissolution of the company. This stock is currently quoted around 60 on the New York Stock Exchange. If this intermediate holding company is forced to dissolve its preferred shares also would be placed in a strategic position.

Now it is obvious that North American Edison does not have the cash to pay off either its debentures or the holders of its preferred stock. It would probably have to divide its assets among three new companies and distribute securities in the three successor companies among its present security holders. Another solution suggested has been to exchange stocks of certain of its subsidiaries for shares of other operating companies, so as to give it continguous properties that could be operated as one geographical unit, and thus remain intact under the proposed law.

In any event, however, the debentures and preferred stock of North American Edison, owned by the public, would be in a very strategic position in connection with such a forced dissolution of the existing system. Holders would be able to demand their "pound of flesh" if they are so minded. The more they receive, however, the less would be left for the 490,000 shares of common stock owned by North American, which is one of the latter's most valuable assets at this time.

Similarly, the bonds and preferred stock of the North American Light & Power Co., the Illinois Power & Light Corporation and several other intermediate concerns would be in a position to whittle down the equity of the common shares of these companies owned by the North American Co., in the event of dissolution.

North American Controls Washington R. & El. Co.

The Washington Railway & Electric Co., which controls the Great Falls Power Co. and the Potomac Electric Power Co., as well as the Washington & Rockville Railway Co., is controlled by North American through ownership of 95 per cent of the common stock. It seems doubtful that Washington Railway & Electric would be compelled to dissolve, even if the bill were passed in its present form, because of the geographically compact character of the holdings of this company. However, North American would be compelled within five years to dispose of its holdings in this company. For other subsidiaries that do not enjoy the great financial strength of the Washington company, loss of support of the parent company may prove a serious handicap for the future.

While the North American Co. is maintained intact as a going concern, its holdings of stock in various subsidiaries furnish it sufficient income to give its own securities substantial value. Its common shares, while they have fallen severely marketwise in the past two years because of the declining trend of public utility earnings and prospects of antagnostic legislation, still receive a dividend of $1 a year, which is earned by the system as a whole with a substantial margin to spare. However, if dissolution is forced under the pending bill, the strategic position of prior securities of various subsidary holding companies may reduce severely or actually eliminate the equity in them of the parent concern. Then again, North American Co. has outstanding its own $25,000,000 of debentures and $30,333,900 of preferred stock, which would have to be paid off or otherwise satisfied before its remaining assets could be distributed among its common-stock holders.

Railroad Bonds Rebound After Sharp Decline

Reassuring Statements of Two Presidents Stimulate Market.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 27.—A reversal of sentiment toward secondary railroad issues gave the bond market a decidedly better tone today.

Many of the heavy losers of Tuesday regained most, if not all, of their declines. The improvement in this division was reflected in high-grade corporate loans, although United States Governments continued to lag.

Reassuring statements from two railroad presidents and reports from Washington that the lengthy conference between Jesse Jones, RFC head, and a group of prominent carrier executives yesterday was nothing more than a meeting to iron out the difficulties in the way of disposing of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road had a stabilizing effect on these securities.

Gains were most pronounced in Southern Railway 6s which were around 5½ points higher at 61⅝. New York Central 4½s, up 3 at 51½; New Haven collateral 6s, up 4⅜ at 44⅞, and Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s, up 2¾ at 62¾. Obligations of numerous other roads were 1 to 2 or more points higher, including those of the Erie, Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande Western, and Illinois Central.

With few exceptions minor advances were shown by the most active first grade corporate bonds, including American Telephone 5s, Consolidated Gas 5s, Inland Steel 4½s, American Smelting 5s, Shell Pipe Lines 5s, and Portland General Electric 5s. Union Pacific 4½s yielded ½ point to 106. The Associated Press averages were 0.2 of a point lower to 0.5 of a point higher.

Most of the Government list continued to be backward, although declines were small and there were a few issues, notably Home Owners Loans 4s, that bettered the previous day's prices. The turnover in this section was much less than on Tuesday.

In the foreign section, most of the Central and South American loans were a trifle lower, while some improvement occurred in German bonds.

Transfers aggregated $12,911,000, par value, compared with $13,592,000 on Tuesday.

Danville Mills Paid 16 Million, 4 Years' Wages

Holders of Common Get No Dividends in the Meantime.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.—The Riverside & Dan River Cotton Mills, Inc., of Danville, paid $16,206,884 in wages and salaries during the last four years while preferred stockholders received $455,000 and common stockholders missed their dividends entirely, according to the annual report just released by John M. Miller, jr., chairman of the board.

The statement was regarded by business leaders here as in the nature of a reply to recently renewed talk of strikes by textile union spokesmen.

In a companion report Robert R. West, president of the company, pointed out that employes remained "practically 100 per cent loyal" to the mill "in spite of all agitation, rumors and threats" and expressed appreciation of workers who continued their tasks without interruption during the general textile strike.

Preferred stockholders are still due $1,532,250 in acoumulated dividends, Chairman Miller's report continues, and every effort will be made to liquidate this sum "in a reasonable time" so that dividends to common shareholders can be resumed.

"The net working capital has been increased approximately $1,000,000," the report states. Volume during last year was up 30 per cent over 1933. Net profits for 1934 were $779,546.36. These profits, President West points out, represented 4.1 per cent return on sales and 5.2 per cent on capital stock.

Directors are John M. Miller, jr., chairman, who also is president of the First & Merchants National Bank of Richmond; D. Van Wagenen, of Richmond; Robert Rout West, James I. Pritchett, jr., Malcolm K. Harris, Julian C. Jordan, W. D. Overby, J. Pemberton Penn, all of Danville, and George P. Ray, of New York City.

Sugar Supply Continues Four Years' Decline

Consumption for 1935 Is Expected to Show Slight Increase.

This will be the fourth consecutive year in which a decrease in world sugar will be recorded, according to a survey just completed by Lamborn & Co., who state that on August 31, 1935, the world stock will approximate 9,225,000 long tons, raw sugar. This figure compares with 9,990,000 tons on hand August 31, 1934, a falling off of 765,000 tons, equivalent to 7.6 per cent.

World sugar stocks reached the peak August 31, 1931, with 12,362,000 tons. Since then the reduction has aggregated over 3,000,000 tons.

World sugar production during the crop year ending August 31, survey, will approximate 25,769,000 long tons, as compared with 25,709,000 tons during the previous year, a increase of 60,000 tons, or about one-fifth of 1 per cent.

World sugar consumption during the current crop year is forecast at 26,534,000 tons, as against 26,287,000 tons last year, an increase of 247,000 tons, or approximately 1 per cent.

The Lamborn estimates of production and consumption for the current season, by geographic divisions, compare with the previous year's figures as follows (in long tons—raw sugar value):

Chinese Dollar At New Peak; Americans Worry

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Feb. 27.—The Chinese dollar soared to a new high level today, spelling a further reduction in the rapidly decreasing buying power of thousands of Americans and other foreigners who are living in China on gold incomes.

The Chinese dollar closed at 39 1-16 cents, which means that the American dollar now buys only $2.56 of Chinese money as compared with $3 a few months ago.

The rapidly mounting Chinese dollar is causing concern to Chinese exporters, who fear the loss of foreign markets and an increasingly unfavorable trade balance.

Washington 4th City in Country In Construction

U. S. Far Behind Other Nations, League Survey Says.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Washington City was fourth in the entire United States for estimated cost of building construction licensed during January, according to building reports from 121 leading cities made public yesterday by the Department of Labor.

Although the 277 building permits issued here during the month placed ninth in the national survey, the estimated construction total outstripped all but three of the cities reporting.

The cost of local building planned during the month was set at $1,203,185. New York City retained its lead by licensing an aggregate of $6,277,567 in building construction during the first month of the year. Los Angeles was next, and the neighboring city of Philadelphia took third honors.

Outstanding among the permits issued in the Nation were three apartment projects in New York City for a total of $2,400,000. The building operations average for the United States during the month showed an increase of 23.5 per cent in construction totals and 15 per cent in the number of permits over the corresponding month of the previous year.

U. S. Building Lags.

Building activity in the United States is lagging fa rbehind practically all the countries of the world, according to figures contained in the monthly bulletin of statistics issued by the League of Nations.

Latest data of a comprehensive nature available point out that new construction in the States shows a gain of but 15 per cent as compared with building totals during 1928. Estimates of foreign countries, naturally subject to slight variations due to lack of uniformity in reports, still are considered a fairly reliable indication of the trend in each country.

In the world-wide summary, the United States placed last in a field of 11 countries. Switzerland, with an increase of about 120 per cent, led the list, closely followed by Great Britain with about 115 per cent higher totals.

Netherlands Places Third.

The Netherlands, with an aggregate of about 112 per cent, was a close third, while the Union of South Africa showed a 97 per cent gain. France was next with about 95 per cent more building activity. Belgium's increase stood at about 90 per cent. Italy also showed a fair upturn, with approximately 75 per cent more activity.

Czechoslovakia, Germany and Canada followed with the United States percentage gain in last place.

Taken as a whole, the increased activity of foreign countries has played an important part in their business recovery. In this country in normal times, building and related lines provide work for about 5,000,000 persons, about a tenth of the entire number gainfully employed. Present estimates state that about a third of the persons unemployed formerly made their living in building and allied lines.

Principal obstacles to increased building activity in this country are the high building costs, which are nearly double those of 1913. With per-capita income running about the same as in the prewar year, it is obvious that people can not afford to pay twice as much for housing.

High Labor Wage Blamed.

One of the main reasons that are blamed for the maladjustment is the wide variance in the wages that are paid skilled labor in the building trades and the wages that are paid skilled labor in industry and commerce. In the United States, building trade workers receive wage rates twice to three times greater than their colleagues in other lines. In England, one of the leading countries in the construction revival, wages of skilled labor in the building trades are only fractionally higher.

The greatest potential market for new building is placed in the lower income brackets. It is estimated that since the latter part of 1929 the number of families have increased by 1,500,000, representing a gain in the population of more than 6,000,000 persons. Based upon a recent survey made by the United States Department of Commerce it was found that around 17 per cent of the housing units were reported as overcrowded, due to doubling up of families.

Housing and real estate experts working on surveys for the Federal Housing Administration have variously estimated the deficit in building, modernization and repair of the United States at between $14,000,000,000 and $25,000,000,000.

Business Briefs

Louis Shecter yesterday was named director of sales and publicity of the Hecht Co., succeeding James Rotto, who has been associated with that company since 1925. Rotto will become sales manager of the A. I. Namm & Sons Department Store at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Shecter has been advertising counsel for a number of years to the Baltimore store operated by the Hecht Co. He has had wide experience in advertising, operating his own advertising agency for four years in Baltimore and later being associated with the Joseph Katz Advertising Agency in that city.

Rotto has made a splendid record with the Hecht Co., which, during his regime, has been one of the largest advertisers in Washington and has consistently broken records for sales over a period of years.

Curb Hardens After Period Of Indecision

Montgomery Ward "A" Loses 3 More Points in Trading.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 27.—The curb market developed resistance near the close today following a sag around midsession. Prices at the finish, however, remained slightly mixed.

Montgomery Ward A lost 3 points on top of a 2-point drop yesterday. General Tire & Rubber yielded 2, while Murphy Co. advanced as much. Parker Rust Proof conceded a point and fractional recessions were shown by Aluminum Co. of America, Hiram Walker and Electric Bond & Share.

Issues ending with fractional improvement included American Gas & Electric, Lake Shore, Sherwin Williams, Swift & Co. and Wright Hargreaves. Singer Manufacturing and Rubberoid both gained a point.

Helpful Exercise.

JAMES DINGBAT was the best of men, we all respected him; he'd passed his three-score years and ten, and still was full of vim. "I always walk nine miles a day," he sometimes said to me, "and I am brisk and strong and gay, as healthy as can be. Your life would surely be prolonged if you would walk some more, but no, while paths and roads are thronged, you sit by your front door; you sit through balmy eventides and read some dreary wheeze, while I am scaling mountainsides and climbing poplar trees. My muscles are as hard as steel, my wind is unimpaired, the sort of buoyant health I feel is by few giants shared." He often paused beside my gate and roasted me at length, because I would not pull my freight and thus renew my strength; because I would not leave my chair and climb a lot of hills, and cross the prairie bleak and bare, and wade through messy rills. I've always held that exercise should be suppressed by law; no delegate who's truly wise will pull a stunt so raw. When last I saw my good old friend he stopped a while to preach, and then I saw him briskly wend along the ocean beach. They found him on the yellow sands, amid the drifting fogs, an oaken cudgel in his hands, with which he'd swatted dogs. And he was dead, as might be seen, as Adam's old gray mare; 'twas too much exercise, I ween, that laid him lifeless there. There came physicians learned and smart, to view the sad remains; "The old man overtaxed his heart," the leading doc explains.

SHADOWS in PARADISE

By INEZ WALLACE

AS though the excitement of a premiere were not enough, my house was in a turmoil. The picture was scheduled for 9 p. m. and Ralph's wife was due at the Los Angeles airport at 3:40. The night before she arrived Ralph came out to the house for the last time, as we thought. Both of us were so low that scarcely anything was said till he was ready to leave.

"I'll have to sing myself to sleep tonight," I said, with a show of what was meant for bravery, "and get used to being alone."

"You needn't get used to being alone, sweet, because I've an idea. It's good, too, because it'll work two ways. First of all, I can't leave you. I just can't. And secondly, if you once see me with my wife, you'll know I'm not in love with her and that there's nothing for you to worry about. So here's what I propose: You ask us out here, both of us, just for over the week-end. That'll give you the opportunity to see for yourself and you'll find you're worried about nothing. Also, it will enable me to be with you, even if I can't touch you. At least I can look at you and, believe me, sweet, that's something."

"But I couldn't ask her here!"

So Helen Agreed.

"Why not? It'll be swell, too, for the columnists, who have taken all those fast cracks at us. That'll fix 'em. Do it for me, sweet, and don't make me stay away from you."

"I have an idea all this is dynamite—but I'm willing to entertain your wife, of course, if you wish it. All right, bring her out. I'll fix up the guest room with flowers and make it very gay."

I arranged the flowers and ordered the dinner myself (for the first time since I'd had a house) and now, a few minutes before landing time, I stood beside Ralph watching for the plane. She came in a bit ahead of time, like a big bird. How different, though, than the last time I had watched a plane landing. But there was no time to think of that. As Ralph stepped forward to meet her I had a chance to see what she was like—slim and cool-looking, with auburn hair, slick and shiny, perfectly planned clothes and that air of assurance which goes with good breeding.

"Hello," she called, walking up to Ralph and kissing him lightly. "And this is Helen Burns. I knew it. It's about time we met, isn't it?"

"High time. And you must be tired. Let's get right into the car and out of this jam."

A Gay Party.

Dinner that night was a gay affair. Lawson made up the fourth and we ate on the terrace, candles flickering in the soft velvet of the California night. Gloria looked stunning in evening clothes, and I liked her in spite of myself.

She was especially grand at the theater, when the crowds hemmed us in and I thought they'd tear the clothes off my back. They kept yelling for us to speak, but nobody could have heard two feet in that mob. Gloria said, "Take care of Helen, Ralph; I'm all right," and he finally picked me up and said, "Wave your little paddy, sweet."

Later on the way home Gloria said, "This is just like a movie—I wouldn't have missed it for the world." That was all. Not a word about her husband in the limelight with another woman. With all of her generosity she was certainly making it tough for me.

But she was beginning to look tired, so I told Lawson we wouldn't go anywhere and we dropped him, a very happy man, at his hotel. No sooner had Perkins taken our wraps than Gloria said, "You two can sit here and gloat over your success. I'm turning in."

"My only conversation tonight'll be with the sandman," I replied. "Be sure to turn out the lights, Ralph."

"You needn't tear away," he said, meaningly, but I walked up the stairs with Gloria's arm around my shoulders, went into my room and closed the door, without a backward glance over the bannister. Ralph Nome's wife wasn't going to be a bigger person than I!

Gloria Was Boss.

Next morning over a late breakfast they make their plans, and it was apparent immediately that, when it came to family affairs, Gloria was the boss.

"I'm not going to live at the hotel where you play, Ralph," she said. "That way you'll just never get out of your shop. We want some privacy, so we'll take an apartment on Weyburn boulevard tomorrow." It was settled as easily as that.

I'm sure I don't know what I had expected, but practical things like leases and insurance seemed entirely foreign to the Ralph Nome that I knew. Now I heard him discussing them as though he had been accustomed to them all his life—and I realized, with something akin to shock, how little I actually knew about him.

One point was clear in my mind. He did not love Gloria as a woman. He respected her, but he didn't love her. As to her feelings toward him, I couldn't tell. She was tantalizingly sure of him. I'd never seen anything like it.

They had been settled two weeks, with Ralph calling me each night from the restaurant, but only coming to the house a couple of times.

Still Pleading.

He was always in a hurry on these occasions, but found time to say the same thing over on almost every visit.

"Don't lose faith in me, sweet. Remember, no matter what happens, it's you I love." And on that I tried to keep going—but it was a pretty lonely existence.

Lawson had landed an engagement for Mrs. Neville, my character woman, in London. She would be gone three months and I thought it would be nice to give her a little farewell party. As she had played in "Evening Song" with Ralph and me, of course, I invited him and told him to bring Gloria with him. He accepted and then, the day before the affair, called me to say he couldn't come.

"What's the trouble?"

"Well, Gloria's giving a blowout to some old society friends of hers from Pasadena. You know how those people are on form and I'll just have to show up."

"But you can't do this to me—you already promised me."

"I know, but sweet, you're supposed to understand. You know my nights are short, at best. I'll only have an hour or so between shows. Be sensible, will you? I never knew you to act like this."

Gloria Came First.

"I see," I said slowly. "I'm all right for anything, till your wife happens to want you herself. Then I'm supposed to be a big-hearted Hannah and understand. All right. We'll get along without you."

The party was so pathetically small that Lawson suggested the eight of us end up at a night club. That was fine until Mrs. Neville, on the way into town, remembered she hadn't told Ralph good-by and insisted on stopping to "kiss him good-by." I was on a spot, but it would have looked worse to wait in the car, so we all went in.

As we stood in the doorway a slim, sun-tanned man rose from a table and came over to us.

"Hello, Helen."

It was Jim Nelson.

"You're looking grand, Nelson," Lawson said, cordially. "And I hear 'Maid of Lyons' is scheduled to knock us cold."

"I hope so—but scheduled to hit and having already hit, as you did in 'Evening Song' are two different things. All I hope is that we can come through as well."

A nod to the others and he was gone—back to his own table. It happened I was sitting with my back to them so I said, without turning my head, "Tell me, Lawson, who's behind me with Jim?"

"Well, let's see. There's Winnie Green."

"Yeah—she would be!" from Vera.

"Then there's Alfred Sears, the writer, and a girl I don't know. Also an elderly woman, whose name I'll think of in a minute."

"Never mind. What's Ralph doing?"

Always Unhappy.

"Just left the stand and gone over to his wife's table. Sitting down now. Eating a rarebit, or something. Doesn't it just beat all, Helen, that every time we come down here we run into something to upset you? The gol-darndest situations pick on this place to happen—it would pay me to bring my cameras along and shoot a little melodrama in real life."

"I wonder if it's occurred to you, Lawson, that there are two men in this room, each supposed at one time or another to be in love with me? Yet here they are—both with somebody else. I'm a fifth wheel. You say I've had luck but I can't seem to find happiness. I just can't reach it and hold on to it."

I just wanted to cry and must have been dangerously close to it when he said, "Get hold of yourself. Here's Nome."

"Hello, everybody." He spoke to the crowd, then bent to say to me, in an undertone, "Can I see you tomorrow night? I've got to see you."

"I wanted to see you pretty bad tonight—but you couldn't arrange it. I'll see what I can do about tomorrow. You might phone me at 5. I'll be home from the studio by then."

There wasn't any all-night vigil for me that night. There wasn't any walking the floor or listening for the clock to chime out the wee small hours. I had thought it over and had decided in the car coming home just what I was going to do.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

A CASUAL conversation at luncheon yesterday brought up a new radio angle that deserves a word or two.

"Why," said one young lady, pausing between bites of chicken sandwich, "don't radio broadcasters consider the time element more?"

"Time element?"

"Yes. Take the late aftrnoon, just before dinner. Lots of adults listen in at that time—housewives preparing a meal, husbands who've just come home. Yet all the programs are intended for the children."

Her husband added, "I've heard lots of people camplain about that. You get Dick Tracy, Buck Rogers, Little Orphan Annie, Singing Lady—and very little intended for adult entertainment. Kids come home earlier than we do. Why not shove their programs back an hour or two?"

Seems like a reasonable point. Can anything be done about it?

FLAVOR

Most well-made Scotch Whiskies are smooth . . . mellow . . . full-bodied . . . just like LONG JOHN. ¶ In good whisky, those qualities are taken for granted. BUT, when it comes to FLAVOR, LONG JOHN is in a class by itself. Here's the true Scotch flavor a Scotsman looks for in his own "wee drap"—a flavor as round and brave and distinctive as the bottle it comes in. ¶ And isn't FLAVOR, after all, what you really want in a Scotch whisky?

LONG JOHN is made in Scotland's largest distillery, in Glasgow on the banks of the Clyde. It is imported solely by Austin, Nichols & Co., whose reputation since 1855 attests the quality of any product bearing their name.
